

Ex Convict 2111

Chapter 2111

"Okay," Martin Weiss replied respectfully.

Mrs. Corbyn made dinner. She prepared four dishes and a soup, all of which were pretty good.

The small square table seemed to be more crowded than usual because Martin Weiss was joining them.

As they ate, Mrs. Corbyn said, "After what happened today, the whole neighborhood knows that you're married now, so don't do it again. Besides that, are you okay with the baby in Kyla's belly taking the last name Zhuo?"

Martin Weiss's eyes glimmered slightly as he clenched his hand holding the chopsticks. "Taking the last name Zhuo..."

"Yes," said Martin Weiss.

"And have you spoken to your family about your marriage?" Mrs. Corbyn asked again.

"I can decide my own marriage. I'll talk to my family about it when I have the chance," said Martin Weiss.

"Okay, I don't want your family to object and give my daughter trouble," said Mrs. Corbyn.

Martin Weiss nodded. "I won't let my family members give Kyla trouble, of course."

After the meal, Martin Weiss took the initiative to clean up the dishes. He took them to the kitchen to wash them.

Mrs. Corbyn did not stop him and let him do the dishes. Mrs. Corbyn looked at Kyla. "Let's leave your marriage as it is now. Now that the neighbors know, we can get away by saying that he's often away on business and won't be back much."

"Okay," answered Kyla.

Nelson Corbyn had now entered the kitchen. He looked at Martin Weiss, who was doing the dishes.

"Mommy said things will remain the same after you get married. Is that so?"

Martin Weiss paused and looked at his son before him. "It'll remain the same for your mommy, but not me. I feel honored to be her husband. It'll be my most honorable identity."

Nelson Corbyn seemed to listen with a hazy notion.

"Nelson, I love your mommy. My love for her is the kind where I can give up my life for her," said Martin Weiss.

"No. If you loved Mommy, you wouldn't have treated her like that. Mommy said if you really love someone, you won't upset them at all!" argued Nelson Corbyn.

Pain flashed through Martin Weiss's eyes. He put down the dishes he was cleaning and squatted down as he looked straight at his son.

Many of his son's features resembled him, but only his eyes looked like Kyla. When his son smiled, it was as if Kyla was smiling at him.

However... Kyla and even Nelson had stopped smiling at him because of his recklessness and willfulness.

Martin Weiss said solemnly, "That's because I was stupid enough not to realize that I loved your mommy. This is my punishment. Nelson, don't be like me. If you ever meet someone you like, don't be as stupid as me and hurt someone you like in a self-righteous way. It'll make you regret it for the rest of your life."

Nelson Corbyn listened quietly. Although he had always hated his father, he was not hostile to him right now. Instead... he somehow felt a little sorry for his father!

Chapter 2112

Life went on as usual. However, ever since Martin Weiss set off the firecrackers and distributed wedding candies, Kyla could distinctly feel the change in her neighbors' gaze.

Perhaps that was the way people were. She would divorce Martin Weiss after the baby was one year old. Then, she would move to another place once Nelson went to junior high.

A divorced woman with two children would have a better reputation than an unmarried woman with two children.

It was ridiculous. She had never cared much about reputation.

However, reality forced her to.

While Kyla was contemplating what she could do after her son graduated from primary school, a black Maybach pulled up at the store's entrance.

A woman in a modified cheongsam stepped out.

It was an elderly in her 60s. She also wore a fall-season cloak. Her hair was in an updo while she wore delicate makeup. She looked dignified and graceful.

Kyla shuddered as she recognized her.

She was the matriarch of the Weiss family... Martin Weiss's mother!

Speaking of which, she had only met her once. She accidentally ran into her back when she was dating Martin Weiss.

Mrs. Weiss was indifferent to her and did not care about her relationship with Martin Weiss.

When she was in jail, she figured out that Mrs. Weiss did not care because she knew Martin Weiss was not really in love with her!

As Mrs. Weiss walked up to her, Kyla asked calmly, "Can I help you?"

"I should have visited you long ago. Now that you and Martin are married, you should call me 'Mom', right? Kyla?" said Mrs. Weiss. Instead of the indifference Kyla had seen before, Mrs. Weiss's expression now seemed a little... obsequious.

However, she could not bring herself to call this woman 'Mom' no matter what.

Mrs. Weiss did not insist either. She only said a little sheepishly, "Speaking of which, the Weiss family and the Corbyn family have such an ill-fated relationship. Your father almost brought down the Weiss family, and Martin was hospitalized for leukemia. I almost couldn't take it. I really hated the Corbyn family at that time.

"But you happened to be the one who saved Martin. If you had refused to donate your bone marrow like Paisley Daniels, then Martin would have already died. And Martin wouldn't have been able to revive the Weiss family after our downfall.

"You saved Martin with your bone marrow, and Martin also cut out his liver for you. Our feud has long been incalculable. I know you've suffered a lot. The Weiss family has done you and Nelson wrong. I don't want to deal with all this anymore. I only want my son to live like a human being and not live in pain forever."

Mrs. Weiss's voice had a hint of imploration.

Never had a woman of her status spoken to anyone in such a tone.

Kyla was stunned. She never expected Mrs. Weiss to do this.

"Kyla, you're a mother too. Since you would marry Martin for the sake of your unborn child, you must know how I feel. A mother can do anything for their children," Mrs. Weiss said earnestly as her hands grabbed Kyla's.

Kyla was silent. As a mother, she naturally understood how Mrs.

Weiss felt, but...

Chapter 2113

Just then, another car came suddenly. Martin Weiss rushed out of it. As soon as he saw his mother grabbing Kyla, he immediately came forward and asked, "Mom, what are you doing here? What have you said to Kyla?"

With that said, he looked nervously at Kyla. "Whatever my mother says, don't take it to heart." He seemed afraid that his mother had said something to upset her.

Mrs. Weiss's face darkened. "Don't worry. I didn't say anything upsetting to Kyla."

Martin Weiss was skeptical, but Kyla said, "It's true. Your mother didn't say anything."

Martin Weiss seemed relieved. "Mom, what are you doing here..."

"I'm only here to visit my daughter-in-law. You didn't tell us that you've gotten married. Kyla's pregnant right now, so it's inconvenient for her to have a wedding ceremony. Once the baby is born and Kyla has recovered, we'll—"

However, Kyla interrupted Mrs. Weiss before she could finish. "There won't be a wedding."

Mrs. Weiss froze. Then, she smiled. "You're the Weiss family's rightful daughter-in-law. Of course, you'll have a wedding. The Weiss family will organize a grand wedding. You'll have everything you deserve."

Kyla knew that Mrs. Weiss had misunderstood. "Martin Weiss and I are only married temporarily for the sake of our unborn child. We'll get divorced when they're one year old, so there's no need for a wedding."

She had no intention of hiding it from Mrs. Weiss that the marriage was meant to be a matter of expediency.

Mrs. Weiss was shocked as she looked at Kyla in disbelief. Then, she looked at Martin Weiss. Finally, she turned around and got into the car without saying anything.

Martin Weiss looked at Kyla and said, "I'm sorry. I'll explain to my mother." With that said, he drove away in his car.

Watching the cars leaving one after another, Kyla bit her lip. Mrs. Weiss's attitude today had surprised her.

She thought Mrs. Weiss hated her because her father had a hand in the Weiss family's downfall.

However... perhaps it was just as what Mrs. Weiss had said. The feud between the Corby family and the Weiss family had long been incalculable.

Martin Weiss's mansion.

Mrs. Weiss looked at her son. "How dare you enter a sham marriage with Kyla?"

"It's not a sham. We've gone to the Mason Swansonvil Affairs Bureau to get a proper marriage license," said Martin Weiss.

Mrs. Weiss glared at her son. "You're going to divorce when the child turns one year old. That means you're getting divorced in less than two years. Isn't that a sham marriage?"

Martin Weiss said, "Not to me! This marriage is true to me, Mom. I have a marriage license with her. I'm lawfully her husband. On our children's birth permission certificates and birth certificates, we're husband and wife. Besides, I'm the father of her children!"

Mrs. Weiss looked shocked. "Have you... Have you lost your mind?"

Martin Weiss smiled wryly. "Mom, don't you know I've long ago lost my mind? I lost my mind back when I found out that the one who donated their bone marrow and saved me selflessly was Kyla, while Paisley Daniels deliberately framed Kyla but I became her accomplice and pushed her into prison!"

It had been so many years since he lost his mind that he had gone hysterical!

Tears welled up in Mrs. Weiss's eyes. "Ill-fated. This is ill-fated! How did this happen? Why... Why do you... insist on having her?"

"Yes, why must I insist on having her?" Even he could not figure out the answer.

Chapter 2114

Maybe this was what happened when you loved someone.

You would just fall in deeper and deeper. If that person did not love you, it felt like the end of the world.

Martin Weiss came to the Reed family's house at night.

Grace looked surprised when she heard what the butler informed her. "Martin Weiss is here?"

"Yes, he said he wants to meet Young master Reed. Besides, he seems to have had some drinks. He reeks of alcohol," the butler said.

Jason pondered for a moment and said, "Let him in." Then, he showed up in front of Grace. "I'm going to see what's up with him for coming over so late."

"Okay." Grace nodded. After all, she was curious about Martin Weiss's sudden arrival.

Could something have happened between him and Kyla again?

Martin Weiss walked into the Reed family's living room with a bottle of wine. Watching Jason walk down the stairs, Martin Weiss raised the bottle of wine in his hand and said, "How about having a drink with me?"

Jason raised his eyebrows slightly. "Did you come here for a drink?"

"Yeah, I came here for a drink. I can't even find someone to drink with in Emerald City. Come to think of it, I'm more familiar with you." Martin Weiss had come across Jason before when Kyla was hospitalized. It was also because of her that they met again several times after Grace returned to the Reed family.

“Don’t you still have your men? Ask them to have a drink with you. They’ll be happy to do it,” said Jason.

“That’s different.” Martin Weiss smiled sadly and said, “They can follow my orders, but they might not be able to really listen. Besides, it’s inappropriate to confide in them these trivial matters.”

“So you came tonight to confide in me?” asked Jason.

“Yeah, what do you think? Do you want some?” Martin Weiss raised the bottle of wine again, Jason smirked. “Okay, I’ll drink with you.” Therefore, he ordered the maid to bring the wine glasses and began drinking with Martin Weiss.

“Speaking of which, I made Kyla suffer so much for Paisley Daniels. You warned me back then, saying I would regret it someday. I scoffed at the time, but now it’s like a hard slap in the face,” said Martin Weiss. Then, he threw his head back as he took a swig of wine.

“Did things not go well between you and Kyla?” asked Jason.

“We’ve registered and received our marriage license. The baby will be born in 8 months. It’s going well, isn’t it? But... she still won’t love me. Tell me... What’s it gonna take to get her to take me back? Why is it so hard...” he murmured.

Jason looked at Martin Weiss quietly. He once thought that the man was similar to him.

Martin Weiss had put Kyla in prison while he had coldly watched Grace get imprisoned. Besides, Grace had also suffered a lot in prison because of him.

However, he was luckier than Martin Weiss. He was less ruthless than Martin Weiss, and Grace had forgiven him.

However, Martin Weiss was much too ruthless to Kyla back then!

“Regardless, you’re married to Kyla now. Since you’re married, you don’t have to be so desperate,” said Jason.

Chapter 2115

“Yeah... We’re married... Married...” mumbled Martin Weiss as he took another swig of wine.

He drank one glass after another, while Jason had only taken one or two sips. Finally, Martin Weiss passed out on the couch. However, even though he was drunk, he was still shouting out Kyla’s name.

Grace only saw the drunk Martin Weiss when she walked to the living room.

“What did he want with you?” asked Grace.

"To vent his grievances, I guess. He and Kyla had already received a marriage license, but he probably felt more miserable because of this." Jason looked grimly at Martin Weiss.

Grace also said emotionally, "He and Kyla could have been a happy couple. If he hadn't forced Kyla to kneel to Paisley Daniels, perhaps he and Kyla might not be where they are today. Perhaps... they might've been able to get back together when he reversed Kyla's case."

"Yes, people might be consigned to eternal damnation with only one mistake," Jason murmured when he suddenly turned around and hugged Grace hard.

He held her so hard it was as if he wanted to embed her into his arms.

Grace was caught off guard and felt that his hug was much tighter than usual. "What's wrong? Why are you holding me so tightly all of a sudden?"

Jason muttered, "Because I think I'm really lucky. I'm glad you were willing to forgive me and even... continue to love me."

Grace froze. Then, she understood that he was reacting this way because Martin Weiss had reminded him of their past.

"That's because you deserve my love." Grace's hands gently hugged Jason back.

His body quivered a little. He gently used his face to rub her neck as if he had an endless longing for her.

She was quite used to his occasional bursts of affection. It was as if a huge puppy was asking for a hug. "Alright, stop overthinking. Martin Weiss and Kyla have their own future, while we're only going be together in the future."

As she spoke, Grace reached over her shoulder and stroked his head with her fingers as if she was comforting him.

"We'll never be apart again," said Jason as he suddenly straightened up and carried Grace in his arms.

"Huh?" She was shocked, but he was already carrying her toward the stairs.

"Martin Weiss is still passed out on the couch." Grace reminded him.

"Someone will take him to the guest room to rest," said Jason, his beautiful peach blossom eyes full of deep desires and longing.

Grace instantly blushed. Even her neck that was exposed outside her pajamas seemed tinged with pink.

"Jay... Well, it's late. Why don't... we... uh... go to bed right away?"

"What's the matter? You don't want it?" Jason carried Grace back to their room and gently placed her on the large bed.

"Not... Not really." Grace blushed even more as his long fingers. were already unbuttoning her clothes. His eyes kept staring at her as if he wanted to engulf her.

'Does he not know how enticing he is right now?'

"It's... It's late now. I'm afraid I won't be able to get up tomorrow morning. I have to take Mick and the rest to kindergarten at seven o'clock," Grace said reluctantly as she resisted the temptation.

Chapter 2116

"I'll have someone else take them," he said. He had already taken off his shirt, and the look in his eyes was all the more captivating.

Grace could not help gulping. "But... But I..."

"Are you sure you don't want it?" He bent over, and his beautiful face magnified in front of her while his warm breath sprinkled onto her face.

Just like everyone, she could not control herself in front of a beauty. She eventually surrendered to his good looks.

It seemed that she could not resist him...

Grace put her hands around Jason's neck and kissed his lips to show that she wanted it.

When Martin Weiss woke up the next day, Grace said to him, "I don't care what will happen to you and Kyla in the future, but I won't spare you if you hurt Kyla."

Martin Weiss looked at her indifferently. "If that ever happens one day, you won't have to do anything. I won't spare myself either."

She was silent.

Martin Weiss turned to leave but suddenly stopped.

He asked, "Grace, why do you want to be with Jason?"

"What?" She paused.

"Jason was involved in your imprisonment, so why did you choose to be with him?" asked Martin Weiss.

Not many people knew Jason had looked on coolly back then, but Martin Weiss had looked into the matter after Grace fell into the sea. He accidentally found out about it.

Grace stared at Martin Weiss. After a moment, she said, "Because I know no one in the world loves me more than him. If I lose him, I'll regret it for the rest of my life!"

Martin Weiss smiled sadly. "I see."

'Maybe... Kyla never believed that I'm the one who loves her the most.'

It was because he had hurt her deeply in the past. Even all the promises he made back when they were dating had become lies in her mind. It was why Kyla could no longer trust him!

A few days later, Martin Weiss and Kyla went to the Family Planning Commission to get the birth permission certificate.

The staff gave Kyla a form, and she filled out the information as required. Then, she and Martin Weiss handed their marriage license, ID, and household registration book to the staff.

Once that was done, they sat on chairs and waited.

Martin Weiss looked at the silent Kyla and said, "I've explained the details of our marriage to my mother. She won't bother you again. If she has said something that upset you, please don't take it personally."

"Your mother didn't say anything that upset me. Now that she knows everything... That's great," said Kyla.

"Really..." Martin Weiss was a little sad. She had always spoken to him in such a flat tone. It was as if he meant nothing to her.

Thinking of his conversation with Grace the next morning after getting drunk at the Reed family's house, he suddenly asked, "Kyla, how much do you trust me now?"

Chapter 2117

Kyla froze and looked at Martin Weiss with a puzzled face.

"I just want to know... whether you're willing to trust me again? Will you believe every word I say?"

"Does it matter whether I trust you or not?" Kyla asked flatly.

"Yes," he said with great certainty.

Kyla said, "Okay then. I trust you. I trust that you'll do as you promised. Just like how we got a marriage license after you agreed to marry me. You also agreed to divorce me in the future, so I reckon you'll keep your word then as well."

Martin Weiss's heart that had just felt joy sank again.

One moment, he was happy that she said she trusted him. However, he felt as if he had been sent to hell the next moment.

"Do you believe I love you, then?" Martin Weiss asked with trembling lips.

Kyla looked at him with some shock. It was as if she was wondering why he had suddenly brought this up again.

Just then, the staff member handling their birth permission certificate called Kyla to collect the certificate.

Kyla hurriedly got up and took the birth permission certificate. She said to Martin Weiss, "Alright, let's go."

She had only taken two steps when he suddenly grasped her arm. "You haven't answered my question."

Kyla sighed, turned to look at him, and said, "Martin Weiss, I believe that you think you love me and that some of the things you say to me are true. But... do you really think you love me? Or is it just guilt and regret? You don't love me that much at all. When we first met each other, wasn't everything just an act? You pretended to love me, and I believed that. Perhaps people would sometimes pretend for so long that they would even start believing it's real."

Martin Weiss looked blankly at Kyla and said hoarsely, "So do you think... I'm just deceiving myself that I love you?"

"Back when we were together, you didn't really fall in love with me. You were willing to trust Paisley Daniels instead. Did you fall in love with me during the many years we were apart, then?" Her nonchalance seemed to be taunting him.

With that said, Kyla yanked her arm back forcefully and turned around to leave.

Martin Weiss was still standing there in a trance. He felt a hint of bitterness in his mouth. It turned out she did not believe he loved her at all!

Maybe she stopped believing when he testified against her in court?

However, could he accept it? Could he accept having things remain the same until their divorce? No! He would not accept it!

Martin Weiss quickly ran in front of Kyla, stopped her, and said, "Kyla, I know it's hard for you to trust me again after all that I've done. I do feel guilty and regretful to you. But I didn't fall in love with you because of this. I've loved you from the beginning."

very

Kyla only looked at him silently. Though he spoke lovingly, nothing stirred in her heart.

Martin Weiss's mouth filled with bitterness, and he finally said something he had never told her before. "You know what? It was... love at first sight."

Yes. When he first met her, he felt as if something had struck him as she stood there and smiled.

However, when he first approached her, he knew she was the target of his revenge and the daughter of his enemy. Hence, the more he loved her, the more he kept repressing his feelings.

Chapter 2118

"It doesn't matter now whether it was love at first sight," Kyla said flatly.

"I just want you to know that I fell in love with you from the very beginning," said Martin Weiss.

"That only proves that that's all to your love," she said and walked past Martin Weiss again, intending to head for the bus stop.

Martin Weiss yanked Kyla. "I'll take you home."

"No thanks. I can do it myself"

He interrupted her and said, "Are you going to take the bus? There are a lot of people at the bus stop here. You're a pregnant woman. Will you get on a crowded bus? Aren't you worried that you'll throw up? Since we're husband and wife now, isn't it a matter of fact that I take you home?"

"We only got the marriage license for the children. We're not husband and wife at all. Martin Weiss, you're not going back on your word, are you?" Kyla said nervously.

He stared at her. "Do you think I'm the kind of person who goes back on their word?"

She froze.

He muttered, "You only got the marriage license with me for the sake of the children, so I'm not your husband to you, but... Kyla, you know what? To me, you're my wife, my one and only wife."

Kyla froze and looked somewhat blankly at the person in front of her. His voice was low and somewhat hoarse.

Martin Weiss's words somehow made her heart clench a little, causing a small pang of pain.

His voice continued to ring in her ears. "Also, if you really want a divorce one day, I'll do it as long as you ask. You don't have to worry that you'll be stuck in this marriage forever."

Even though... he really wished that marriage could bind her and keep her with him..

While Kyla was in a trance, Martin Weiss had taken her to the car. He put her in the front passenger seat and bent over to fasten her seat belt carefully.

"Ah!" She snapped back to her senses and saw his magnified face in before her. "You..." She was so caught off guard that her cheeks flushed.

He looked at the blush on her cheeks and seemed to see the old her as he fell into a trance.

His proximity and intimacy had always made her cheeks blush with shyness and joy. He would even deliberately do something just to see her blush.

3/3 "Kyla, I'll make you trust me again one day," said Martin Weiss before straightening up and returning to the driver's seat.

He could not be impatient. Since he was the one who broke her trust, he was willing to piece it all back together. No matter how long it took, even if it would take a lifetime, he would do it.

Kyla froze. 'Should I trust him again? Trust in what? Trust that he actually loves me?

'But how is that possible?'

She had once trusted him with all her heart, and she ended up in jail.

She never wanted to go through that hopelessness again.

Chapter 2119

‘So let’s keep things as they are. I’ll divorce him after the baby is one year old!’ Kyla looked down at her flat belly and said to herself.

Kyla thought that there would be no more contact between her and Martin Weiss after obtaining the birth permission certificate and they would continue living their separate lives as before.

What she did not expect was that Martin Weiss showed up at the store’s entrance on the day of her pregnancy check-up.

“What are you...” She stared at him.

Martin Weiss said, “Don’t you have a pregnancy check-up today? I’ll accompany you to future check-ups.’

Kyla felt a tingle in her scalp. If he was going to accompany her to her pregnancy check-ups, then he would probably show up at her place several times a month. Perhaps... even more often than that.

“No thanks. I can go to the pregnancy check-ups myself. I don’t need anyone to accompany me,” she said quickly.

Martin Weiss said, “I’m not just accompanying you but also our baby. I didn’t accompany you when you were pregnant with Nelson, so you and Nelson suffered a lot. I don’t want the same thing to happen to this baby. At least let me take my responsibility as a father.”

Kyla was silent.

Martin Weiss went on and said, “Besides, you’re pregnant. In case anything happens, I can help you run errands if I accompany you during the check-ups. Do you wanna run up and down the stairs in the hospital when you have a big belly?”

Mrs. Corbyn, who was looking after the store, also said, “Kyla, why don’t you... let him accompany you to the check-up? I’ll feel more relieved that way. It’s safer to have someone with you just in case something happens.”

Kyla bit her lip slightly and agreed.

Martin Weiss drove Kyla to the community hospital.

Pregnancy check-ups up before a pregnant woman was 24 weeks along were performed at community hospitals.

However, a grave look came over the face of the community hospital doctor after he got a detailed understanding of Kyla’s past medical history.

"You've undergone liver transplantation and recently got past five years of the recovery period. The general pregnancy check-up here might not be suitable for you. You'd better go to a tertiary women's hospital for further examination," the community hospital doctor said.

Kyla's expression froze when she heard that.

It had been five years... since the liver transplant. Even though her condition was under control, would it still impact the baby?

"Okay, got it. Thank you," said Kyla.

"It's better to go to Municipal Women's Hospital. They have the most authoritative and experienced gynecological and obstetrical doctors," the community hospital doctor said.

Emerald City's Municipal Women's Hospital was the most famous public women's hospital in Emerald City.

Kyla responded in acknowledgment and walked out of the maternity consultation room.

Martin Weiss was waiting outside. When he saw Kyla coming out, he could not help asking, "So soon?" She had come out only after going in for a few minutes. The examination usually took more than ten minutes.

Chapter 2120

"We need to go to Municipal Women's Hospital to see the specialists there," said Kyla.

"Municipal Women's Hospital?" Martin Weiss's brows furrowed instantly. They had to go to a tertiary hospital, so there must be something a regular community hospital like this could not deal with. "What happened? Is there something wrong with your health?"

"Having undergone a liver transplant, the maternity examination here isn't suitable for me," Kyla said as she took out her phone. She logged into tMason Swansonty's hospital registration system but found that the specialists in Municipal Women's Hospital had all been fully booked. She could not book an appointment at all.

All the specialists in the registration system... were even fully booked for the coming week. She could only wait for the system to open for appointments a week later.

Kyla seemed troubled. She pondered about it and thought she could only ask Grace to help her get an appointment with a specialist from Municipal Women's Hospital.

She was thinking of dialing Grace's phone number when Martin Weiss's voice rang in her ears.

"It's me, Martin Weiss. I want to see a specialist from Municipal Women's Hospital. Yes, today. This morning!"

Kyla looked up and saw Martin Weiss speaking to the other end of the line.

Moments later, Martin Weiss ended the call and said to Kyla, "Let's go to Municipal Women's Hospital. You can see a specialist as soon as you get there."

Kyla froze. "You got an appointment?"

"Yea, I asked someone to arrange it for me," he said.

When they got to Municipal Women's Hospital, a young man was already waiting there. As soon as he saw Martin Weiss, he came up to them. "Mr. Weiss, this way, please."

The young man led the way while Martin Weiss and Kyla followed him. When they reached the clinic's entrance, Kyla realized it was no ordinary specialist clinic but a VIP specialist clinic.

After waiting at the lounge for a while, a nurse came and led Kyla to the consultation room. Martin Weiss followed.

Kyla was seen by a middle-aged specialist in her 40s. Kyla looked at the nameplate placed on the desk. She was called He Yunxia. Kyla had heard of the name after she got pregnant. She was one of the top three obstetricians in Emerald City, so one could imagine how astounding she was.

Dr. He looked a little solemn after going through the liver transplant case report Kyla brought over.

Then, she went through some of Kyla's initial pregnancy reports and asked, "Are you taking any medication?"

"I used to take painkillers when I felt some pain after the liver transplant. I took them on and off for five years, but I had already stopped taking them for a while before I got pregnant. I haven't taken them since finding out I'm pregnant," said Kyla.

"It has been five years since your liver transplant. You don't have any recurrent symptoms, so you're probably safe now. But pregnancy puts a strain on your organs, including the liver.

You might be okay right now, but the burden will become more obvious as you're further along in your pregnancy. You've undergone a liver transplant, so your liver is a little more fragile than the average person's. There's a good chance your body won't be able to handle it," said Dr. He.

Based on her current medical report, the pregnancy would be risky.

"What will happen... if she can't handle it?" asked Martin Weiss.

"There might be changes to the liver. The baby might not be able to survive, and the mother might be at risk," said Dr. He. Then, she checked Kyla's age. She was already 35 years old. "Actually, I would recommend you to terminate the pregnancy if you already have children."

Kyla's heart sank immediately.

Terminate... the pregnancy?"
