

Ex Convict 4241

Chapter 4241 Don't Let Him Be Greedy Again

"I may be physically disabled, but it doesn't mean I can't do anything. I still have my other hand, my two feet, and a functioning brain. I can do many things to support myself," Kit said. "Besides, I don't plan on living a luxurious life, so I don't need to rely on the Stephenson family."

He didn't want to lose even the last bit of dignity in front of her!

Having the Stephenson family as a support may be a dream come true for many, but for him, it might only bring pain.

Tina's gaze fell on Kit's disabled right hand again. "So, have you thought about what kind of work you want to do?"

"I plan to start by composing some songs. I've always been interested in that. It's just that I was too busy with work before and never had the chance to focus on it," Kit replied. "Now, I finally have the time."

"Eugenia told me about some of our past and showed me some posters and autographed photos you gave me. It seems like I really liked you back then, but that was just..."

"I know, it was just the admiration of a fan for an idol," Kit sighed, feeling helpless. "How are you and Chandler doing.

now?"

"We're doing fine," she said.

He forced a bitter smile and self-mockingly said, "Of course, you two were deeply in love. Even if you lost your memory, I temporarily deceived you with lies, but people who love each other will eventually find their way back."

Tina was momentarily stunned.

Did they really love each other once? Even if memories were forgotten, would they still love each other?

"It would have been nice if you hadn't lied to me back then," Tina murmured.

Kit remained silent, not answering her.

Deceiving her was his biggest lie in life, and he regretted it. It was because of that final car accident. If he hadn't deceived her, she wouldn't have been hurt.

But at the same time, he missed the times when he deceived her and the moments they spent together.

Those moments were the most precious memories of his life.

"Is there something you came to see me for today?" Kit finally asked after a long pause.

"I just wanted to come and see how you're doing and thank you for saving me. So, if you have any difficulties and need my help, I'll be there," Tina said.

Kit's eyelashes trembled, and his lips quivered slightly. In the end, all he managed to say was, "Thank you."

"Do you need me to find a better doctor for your hand to have further treatment?" Tina asked, considering the abilities of the Stephenson family to provide him with better medical care.

"No, it's not necessary. The doctor who is currently treating me is an expert with extensive experience. I'm making good progress with my rehabilitation under his care," Kit replied.

"Alright then," Tina said, intending to turn and leave.

But in the next moment, Kit's left hand grabbed her wrist.

"Is there something else?" Tina turned to look at Kit.

Kit's hand trembled, and with some difficulty, he let go of her fingers. He had only grabbed her wrist instinctively when he saw her about to leave. He was afraid of her walking away like that.

But she was supposed to leave, wasn't she?

She never belonged to him in the first place!

"There's nothing. I just hope Miss Stephenson won't come to see me anymore," Kit said.

Because if she did, she would only see more of his shameful side, and it would make his once-dead heart greedy again.

Chapter 4242 How Do You Want It

Tina glanced at Kit and after a while, she said, "Alright, I understand."

Kit smiled and slowly let go of her hand.

After Tina left, Kit sat weakly on the sofa, his normal left hand supporting his forehead. He laughed bitterly, "Haha... haha..."

As tears welled up, he tasted the salty flavor.

Whether it was before Tina's amnesia or after, he always showed her his vulnerable side.

If only she could see his good side.

He wished she could only remember him as someone wonderful.

So it's better not to see each other anymore! Even though he really wants to see her, it's still better not to see each other anymore. Maybe that's for the best!

Tina left Kit's place and went to Chandler's place.

Chandler was flipping through a book in the living room of the up to her. "What's wrong? Did something happen?"

Tina looked at the man in front of her, his face clearly showing concern. "Do you think something's wrong with me?"

"I can sense that you're unhappy. If there's any trouble, you can tell me and I'll help you solve it," Chandler said.

Tina didn't expect him to be able to see through her unhappiness. She thought she was hiding her emotions well.

Is it because he used to know her so well?

"I went to see Kit today," Tina didn't hide anything and told him the truth.

Chandler was taken aback, seeming a bit surprised. "So, did something unhappy happen when you saw Kit?"

"Don't you want to know why I went to see him?" she asked.

"You have your reasons for seeing him. You've never liked others asking you too many questions," Chandler said.

Tina suddenly felt like she was being seen through by the person in front of her. He understood her very well, but the amnesiac he didn't understand him at all!

"I saw a post online and learned that his hand is disabled, so I went to find him." Although it was true that she didn't like others probing her or explaining herself.

But at this moment, she wanted to make it clear.

Was she afraid that he would misunderstand?

Tina herself couldn't explain this feeling.

"And then?" Chandler asked.

"His hand really can't move, and I also met his father and heard some unpleasant conversations," Tina sighed.

"Do you want to help him?" Chandler asked.

She smiled bitterly, "He refused and hopes that we won't meet again in the future."

Chandler looked at Tina, "So you're unhappy because he doesn't want your help?"

Tina took a deep breath, "Because of his deception, I used to hate and resent him. In the end, I told myself not to think about it, but after knowing that his hand is disabled, I couldn't help but go see him again. During the car accident, he protected me and Quinn. His hand became disabled, maybe it's because he protected me during the accident. In my heart, I feel like I owe him."

This conflicting and complicated emotion enveloped her, leaving her at a loss.

"So what do you want to do?" Chandler's voice sounded gentle once again.

Tina looked blankly at the person in front of her as if no matter what she said, he would help her, he would stand by her side!

Chapter 4243 Unexpected Encounter

"I don't know either," Tina replied honestly, "maybe just do nothing."

After all, Kit had already refused her help and didn't want to see her again.

Of course, it would be best if they didn't meet at all given their current relationship.

Whenever she saw Kit, she would think of the time they spent together, and it would also remind her of how he deceived her.

"If you want to do something, I can help you," Chandler offered.

Tina looked at him strangely, "Would you help me no matter what I want to do?"

"Yes!" he replied without hesitation.

"Even if it's something bad? Something that would make you uncomfortable, would you still help?" she continued to ask.

Tes, he Hrmed again.

Tina bit her lip slightly, "Why are you willing to do this? Just because you love me?"

"Because you are Tina," he said softly.

It seemed that the fact that she was Tina was more important to him than the fact that he loved her!

Tina felt somewhat helpless, his kindness towards her was simply beyond her comprehension.

Perhaps it was because of her amnesia, she couldn't understand why he loved her so much!

A few days later, Tina and Chandler made plans to go see a photography exhibition together.

Tina arrived at the venue first, only to unexpectedly see a familiar figure.

It was Kit!

Tina was taken aback, she hadn't expected to run into Kit in a place like this.

Kit was standing in front of a group of photos, completely focused and engrossed.

Tina hesitated, considering whether to pretend she hadn't seen him and continue looking at the exhibition or go and say hello, or perhaps just leave.

But before she could make up her mind, someone walked up to Kit, grabbed him by the collar, and seemed to say something menacing. Kit's expression immediately changed, and they both left together.

Tina furrowed her brow, a sense of foreboding lingering.

The way that man looked at Kit was filled with violent cruelty.

Could it be that Kit had some sort of enemy?

With this thought in mind, Tina instinctively followed them, but when she reached the entrance of the venue, she didn't see Kit or that person.

Just as she felt somewhat disappointed, she suddenly heard someone pa*sing by hurriedly say, "There seemed to be a fight in the alley just now, it was really brutal. I didn't dare to intervene!"

"How could you stop it? If you had intervened, you might have been beaten too! Didn't you see that the person who was fighting had several accomplices with him?"

Should we call the police?"

"What's the point of calling the police? Aren't you afraid that the person who was fighting will find out your phone number and come after you for revenge?"

After hearing this, Tina's sense of foreboding grew stronger and stronger.

Could it be that the person who was beaten up was Kit...

"Which alley?" she grabbed one of the people who were talking and asked anxiously.

"It's this alley right next to us," the other person pointed in the direction.

Tina immediately rushed towards the alley.

"Hey!" a pa*serby tried to shout at her, but it was too late.

Afterward, two pa*sersby stood there, unsure of what to do.

"Is she going to save the person who got beaten up?"

"Is the person who got beaten up her friend? But if she goes over, others might beat her up too!"

"Shouldn't we call the police?"

Just then, another voice rang out, "What did you guys just say?"

Chapter 4244 Injured

The two turned around and saw a tall and handsome man standing behind them.

"There's someone in that alley who seems to have been beaten up. And just now, a woman heard it and rushed into the alley," one of them said.

The other suddenly remembered something, "Right, the person who got beaten up looks a bit like Kit! That retired celebrity..."

Chandler didn't bother to listen to what the two were still saying. He immediately ran towards the alley.

If the person who got beaten up is Kit, then the woman who rushed over is most likely Tina!

Tina absolutely cannot get into any more trouble!

Just thinking about when he saw her unconscious in the hospital bed, his heart felt like it was being tightly squeezed, making it hard for him to breathe.

At that time, he was so afraid that she wouldn't wake up.

alley, he only saw Kit lying weakly on the ground while a man was grabbing Tina's collar, mocking and laughing, "Who do you think you are? The daughter of the Stephenson family? The Stephenson family's daughter just came back from being injured not too long ago. Do you think you can run out here all lively to save someone? Do you think I'm an idiot?"

Tina's face turned bright red, and because of being grabbed by the collar, speaking became somewhat difficult.

"I really am the daughter of the Stephenson family. If you touch me, can you really bear the consequences? But if you let go of me and Kit, then we can easily resolve this misunderstanding. It's just a misunderstanding," Tina said.

"Misunderstanding?" the other person suddenly laughed, "This man actually wants to seduce my mom, and you're still saying it's a misunderstanding. Does the daughter of the Stephenson family really have a relationship with this Kit, as the rumors say? If you really are the daughter of the Stephenson family, then how would your husband Chandler feel when he finds out? Why don't I go tell Mr. Hunter about it?"

In an instant, Chandler's face flashed through Tina's mind, and her heart felt like it had been pricked.

"Don't go find Chandler, this is my own business!" Tina said.

The other person sneered, "Haha, you're really putting on a show, but let me tell you today, don't be overly brave, and don't pretend to be the daughter of the Stephenson family to come here and play the hero!"

As they spoke, they swung their fist and were about to hit Tina.

Tina instinctively closed her eyes, while Kit struggled to try and stand up to intervene!

Just then, a hand suddenly intercepted the person's fist in mid-air. Immediately after, those long fingers gripped the person's wrist that was grabbing Tina's collar.

The person exclaimed in surprise and let go of their hand.

Tina felt her neck loosen; and when she opened her eyes, she saw Chandler's face before her.

Tina stared at him in astonishment, "How did you come here?"

"Are you hurt?" Chandler asked with concern.

Tina shook her head, then suddenly thought of something and took a step forward, crouching down and struggling to help Kit, who was lying on the ground and struggling to get up, "I'll take you to the hospital right away!"

But just as she finished speaking, several people emerged from the shadows of the alley.

Chapter 4245 Chandler's Attitude

Tina recognized them. These people were the henchmen of that man. They were the ones who had beaten Kit earlier.

Instinctively, Tina stood before him, trying to protect Kit. And she nervously looked at those people.

Chandler lowered his gaze, observing every move Tina made.

"I'm really unlucky today. You all came here to ruin my plans. You brought this upon yourselves," the man said fiercely. He then raised his hand, intending to order his henchmen to attack Chandler and Tina together.

This would relieve his pent-up anger from earlier.

However, as Chandler slowly raised his head and looked at the man, he coldly said, "Walter, not long ago, I remember you had someone ask to meet with me. Is this what you call a meeting?"

Walter's pupils suddenly constricted as he stared at Chandler in shock.

The person who had wanted to meet not long ago was clearly...

"You are..."

How was this possible?! How could this person be here? This person was...

With that in mind, Walter switched his gaze to Tina.

If this woman was really the daughter of the Stephenson family, then everything would make sense!

Trembling, Walter said, "You are Mr. Hunter?"

"It seems that you do know who I am," Chandler said coldly, "So, what do you plan to do now?"

Walter felt a chill running up from his feet to his spine.

Chandler Hunter of the Hunter family!

He was someone Walter couldn't afford to provoke.

It was said that anyone who angered Chandler never had a good outcome!

"Mr. Hunter, I was also thinking of your best interests. This Kit is not a good person. He somehow seduced my mother, and now he seems to have hooked up with Miss. Stephenson. I couldn't stand by and watch, so I did this!" Walter desperately tried to shift the blame onto Tina and Kit, hoping Chandler would spare him.

"You're talking nonsense!" Tina exclaimed angrily. "Chandler..."

Chandler looked at Tina, who was eager to explain. "Tina, you don't need to say anything. I understand it all!"

With that, he looked at Walter again. "Are you planning to leave Emerald City on your own, or do you want me to chase you out? From now on, I don't plan on seeing you in Emerald City again."

Walter's face changed, realizing he could no longer stay in Emerald City.

The only advantage was that his life was spared!

He hurriedly walked away toward the end of the alley, and his henchmen naturally followed.

"By the way!" Chandler's voice suddenly rang out. "If I hear any rumors or gossip about Tina from you in the future, I will make sure you won't be able to utter a single word!"

Walter's face turned pale as he could only nod and obediently say, "Yes...yes..."

After Walter and his henchmen left, Chandler walked up to Tina and Kit. He glanced at Kit, who was covered in injuries, and said to Tina, "Let me help him up."

Tina was taken aback, witnessing Chandler bend down and assist Kit.

Even Kit was stunned, seemingly not expecting Chandler to willingly help him up.

"I'll take him to the hospital," Chandler said.

"I'll go with you!" Tina snapped back to reality and said.

Chapter 4246 He's not Angry but Jealous

Chandler glanced at her. He didn't say anything, and just walked out of the alley while supporting Kit.

After the three of them got in the car, Chandler drove to the nearby hospital.

Kit, who was in pain and mentally relaxed, had already passed out.

Tina said to Chandler, "Thank you for everything today."

"Why are you thanking me?" Chandler asked.

"Thank you for helping me and Kit in the alley," Tina said, "and for taking him to the hospital now."

Chandler pursed his lips. "You're my wife, so there's no need for you to thank me for helping you out in the alley. Isn't it the husband's duty to help his wife?"

Tina was taken aback.

"As for me helping Kit and taking him to the hospital, if anyone should be grateful, it should be him. He should be thanking me when he wakes up, not you," He added.

Tina felt that Chandler's voice had a kind of coldness that she had never heard before.

"Are you angry?" she asked cautiously.

Chandler sighed. "I'm not angry. Don't think too much. We'll be at the hospital soon!"

Then both of them stopped talking.

True enough, they arrived at the hospital quickly, and medical staff placed Kit on a moving stretcher for emergency treatment.

Tina and Chandler stood outside the emergency room.

Tina looked at Chandler, who had almost no expression on his face and approached him, saying, "I'm really sorry for today. We didn't get to see the exhibition."

"It's okay. We can see it next time," he said in a flat tone.

Chandler's coldness made Tina feel uncomfortable.

He said he wasn't angry, but she always felt that he was. Tina wondered how she handled situations like this in the past.

Unfortunately, she had no memories of her past, so she naturally didn't know how to handle it.

All she could do was explain, "I was waiting for you at the exhibition hall. Then I saw Kit leaving with that man, and heard someone say that someone was beaten in the alley. So I went to take a look and saw Kit being beaten by that person's men."

"But what that man said wasn't true. Kit didn't seduce that man's mother. I had heard Kit's father ask him to be that man's mother's toy boy before, but Kit refused. He didn't want to rely on that kind of man to make money. He said he didn't need a luxurious life, he just wanted to earn a living through his own efforts!"

"I even suggested that the Stephenson family could help him, but he also refused. A person like him couldn't possibly seduce that man's mother."

Tina kept explaining, while Chandler quietly listened to her.

He understood that she was hoping he wouldn't misunderstand her, that he wouldn't get angry.

But Chandler wasn't actually angry. In fact, he was jealous.

He was jealous that she would protect Kit so recklessly, regardless of her own safety.

Did she ever consider what would have happened if he hadn't shown up in time? She might be lying in the emergency room right now, just like Kit! Even though she had faced so many difficulties in the past, why did she still rush into danger like this?

Was she not afraid of death? Or was she just too concerned about Kit?

Whenever he thought about these questions, he would be consumed by jealousy.

Chapter 4247 He Believed Every Word She Said

He was practically using all his rationality and self-control to suppress this jealousy!

Finally, after Tina finished speaking for a long time, she said, "I've said everything. It's just like that. It's just that I... even though he deceived me, he also helped me. Now that one of his hands is disabled, I just wanted to help him. There's really nothing between him and me."

Chandler stared at the person in front of him. If there really was nothing, then how could she risk her life to save Kit?

If it was truly nothing, at most she would have helped call the police, not face the danger of being beaten!

But her first reaction was not to call the police but to go straight to him.

Tina cautiously looked at Chandler, observing his expression. "Do you believe what I said?"

"I believe you," he said.

Tina never liked to lie, so she truly believed that there was nothing between her and Kit.

But perhaps this was something that only a see clearly.

Tina finally breathed a sigh of relief.

person could

Just then, the doctor who was treating Kit's injuries came out and said, "The patient seems to only have some minor external injuries and a slight concussion. We need to do further examinations to determine if there are any internal injuries. For now, he needs to be hospitalized for treatment."

"Whoever is the patient's family member, please come with me to complete the hospital admission procedures," said the nurse next to the doctor.

Family member?

Tina thought about Kit's father, but that man didn't deserve to be called a father!

If she let that man come and handle the hospital admission procedures for Kit, who knows what might happen.

"I'm his friend, I'll handle the admission procedures," Tina stepped forward and said.

"Alright, please follow me," the nurse said.

Just as Tina was about to follow the nurse to handle the admission procedures, Chandler suddenly spoke up, "I'll go, you stay here and rest."

Before Tina could react, Chandler had already followed the nurse to handle the admission procedures.

And what Tina didn't expect was that Chandler had arranged for Kit to be in a VIP ward.

Although the cost of a VIP ward was nothing to him, he had never liked Kit, right?

Looking at Kit lying in the hospital bed, Tina said to Chandler, "Thank you."

Chandler replied, "Tina, stop thanking me for Kit. I've said it before, if anyone should say thank you, it should be him, not me."

After saying this, he looked at her and asked, "What about you? Are you going to leave the hospital with me now, or..."

"I..." Tina bit her lip. Kit's current condition made her feel uneasy.

It seemed like he understood what she was thinking, and he said, "Then I'll go back first. I've already arranged for a caregiver to take care of Kit 24/7."

After saying this, Chandler hurriedly left.

If he stayed any longer, he was afraid that his jealousy would erupt and he would do something he would regret!

In the hospital room, Tina suddenly felt a heavy weight on her chest, as if something was pressing down on her, making it hard for her to breathe.

Chandler's departing figure made her feel so uncomfortable.

Should she not have stayed here?

Chapter 4248 Please Don't Come to Save Me

Tina called home and informed them that Kit had been beaten up in an alley and that she was currently at the hospital with him.

"Are you hurt?" Lina asked worriedly.

"I'm fine," Tina replied.

"Then I'll come pick you up now!" Lina said hurriedly.

"No need, I'll come back after Kit wakes up. The doctor said he'll wake up in a while," Tina said.

Lina sighed slightly over the phone, "Alright then, I'll have the driver wait at the hospital to pick you up later."

"Okay," Tina agreed.

After ending the call with her mother, she turned and walked to the bedside, looking down at Kit lying on the hospital bed.

His body was covered in bandages, making him look like a fragile doll.

Even though she could have just stood by and watched, or even called the police, why did her body rush forward first?

If Chandler hadn't coincidentally appeared today, maybe situation would be worse than Kit's.

Tina thought to herself as she pulled out her phone and started browsing news about Kit.

It's worth mentioning that the internet has a memory, even things from a long time ago can be found.

Because of that, she could find out about Kit's past and learn about his days of fame as a celebrity.

The more famous he was in the past, the more it highlighted his current downfall.

How many people, from fame to downfall, can't help but want to take shortcuts and return to fame?

But he was completely different!

After an unknown amount of time, Kit slowly opened his eyes, and when he saw Tina sitting by the bedside, he was clearly taken aback.

"Tina!" he couldn't help but exclaim, but his voice was very hoarse.

"Your condition isn't very good right now, don't talk too much," she said. "You fainted earlier, so Chandler and I brought you to the hospital. The admission procedures have been taken care of, and a caregiver has been arranged. The doctor said your condition needs a detailed examination tomorrow, and if there are no major issues, you can be discharged in a couple of days."

Kit's eyes dimmed after hearing Chandler's name.

Before, he saw her being dragged by someone like Walter in the alley, being threatened! He wanted to stand up, to help her fend off the danger, but he couldn't do anything. Instead, it was because of him that she was dragged into danger.

And now, he had to be taken to the hospital by Chandler.

He and Chandler were really so different!

That feeling of inferiority almost enveloped him!

"The situation has been resolved. Walter won't come bothering you again," Tina said. "So rest well, I'll go back."

Tina said that and was about to leave.

Kit twisted his neck, struggling to sit up. "Why did you save me?"

"Because you once saved me," Tina replied.

At the same time, she told herself the same thing!

She would save him, only because he had saved her, so she would do anything to save him!

Apart from that, there was no other reason!

Kit smiled bitterly. "Then next time, if a situation like this happens again, please don't save me!"

Tina looked at Kit somewhat surprised, feeling that at this moment, he seemed to be filled with an indescribable sadness.

Chapter 4249 Leaving

In the end, Tina didn't give Kit any response and left the hospital.

She didn't agree, nor did she refuse. Because she didn't know what answer would be right.

If Kit encountered danger again, would she go save him?

She didn't know.

But she definitely wouldn't do it in such a foolish way again, at least not without protecting herself first!

Back at the Stephenson family, Lina immediately approached her daughter and asked, "How is Kit?"

"He should be fine," Tina said.

"And what about you? How are you?" Lina asked again.

"I'm fine, I'm not injured either. Chandler came just in time and saved me and Kit," Tina said.

Lina hesitated for a moment and asked, "Did Chandler say anything?"

Tina lowered her gaze. "He didn't say anything, but he accompanied me to take Kit to the hospital and helped with his admission procedures, then he left first."

Lina sighed and suddenly held her daughter's hand. "What are you really thinking, Tina?"

"Huh?" Tina was taken aback.

"Do you like Kit?" Lina asked.

Tina was stunned for a moment and then replied honestly, "I don't, I just couldn't bear to see him being beaten up like that because Kit once saved me. Besides, those people were in the wrong, Kit is innocent!"

"Then, does Chandler believe what you said?" Lina asked.

Tina froze.

Lina touched her daughter's head. "Tina, tell Mom, do you like Chandler? Even though Mom knows you don't have any past memories, based on your current understanding and interaction with Chandler, do you like him?"

Tina pursed her lips and honestly said, "I think I do like him, maybe it's not love yet, but I think I like him!"

The time she spent with Chandler made her feel comfortable and at ease.

Even just sitting together, not saying anything, there wouldn't be that awkward feeling.

Since you like him, don't let Chandler misunderstand," Lina said. "Don't let unnecessary misunderstandings affect your feelings for each other. You may not remember everything from the past, but those past emotions still have an influence on you. Just like how you quickly came to like Chandler now, I think it's because deep down, you still have feelings for Chandler."

Pausing for a moment, Lina continued, "Mom isn't forcing you to fall in love with Chandler again, even though I've always thought that child Chandler is great. But your life is yours to grasp, Mom just doesn't want you to regret it because of today."

Tina quietly listened to her mother's words, and the last image that came to her mind was Chandler's departing figure.

Would Chandler misunderstand?

Misunderstand her feelings for Kit?

Thinking about this, her chest suddenly felt heavy.

"Mom, I understand. I'll go find him tomorrow and explain everything. Even if he misunderstands something, I'll clarify it," Tina said.

Hearing this, Lina smiled and said, "Good!"

But the next day, when Tina went to find Chandler, she was told that Chandler had already left Emerald City.

And when Tina called Chandler, it showed that his phone was turned off!

Chapter 4250 Longing

What's going on?

Even if he's going home, he doesn't need to turn off his phone!

Or is it that he misunderstood something? So he deliberately avoided her, and even refused to answer her calls?

Thinking about this, Tina couldn't help but bite her lip, a feeling of unease surged in her heart!

She took out her phone and called her mother: "Mom, do you know where the main branch of the Hunter family is? Chandler went back there, and I want to go find him!"

Half an hour later, with a driver arranged by Lina, Tina was escorted to the Hunter family.

Lina originally wanted to accompany her daughter, but Tina said, "I want to go by myself. After all, this is between Chandler and me. If you come with me, it will become a matter between two families."

Although Lina was worried about her daughter, she admitted that her daughter was right.

Hadwin, on the other hand, fully agreed with his daughter going to the Hunter family alone: "Since she wants to resolve things between her and Chandler, then let her solve it herself. There are some things we can help with, but there are some things we can't!"

Tina knew that she had been to the main branch of the Hunter family before, but she had no impression of it at all.

This place was unfamiliar to her!

However, the people of the Hunter family all recognized her and immediately welcomed her into the mansion when they saw her.

But the first person Tina saw was the old Mr. Hunter and Chandler's parents, but Chandler himself did not appear.

Tina took out the prepared gift.

"You prepared it with great care," the old Mr. Hunter nodded.

"Grandfather, where is Chandler? I came here today specifically to find him," Tina said.

Although she didn't have that married feeling yet, in fact, she and Chandler had already obtained a marriage certificate. In the eyes of the law, they were already husband and wife. Moreover, they had a daughter, Quinn, together.

So now, Tina called the people in the Hunter family by their family names, just like Chandler did.

“Chandler is not convenient to see you right now. I’ll have someone arrange a room for you first. You can stay here for a few days, and when Chandler feels convenient, he will naturally meet you,” the old Mr. Hunter said.

Tina was taken aback, not convenient?

“What happened to Chandler?” Thinking of Chandler’s phone being turned off, Tina asked nervously.

“It’s nothing serious. Tina, take a good rest for now. It shouldn’t be long before you can see Chandler,” the old Mr. Hunter said.

Tina couldn’t get any more information even after further questioning, so she had to leave with the servant.

She arrived at the room prepared for her by the Hunter family, but it was not Chandler’s room, it was a separate guest room.

Tina couldn’t tell whether she felt disappointed or relieved.

After losing her memory, she met Chandler again. Although they were husband and wife, they had never slept on the same bed. After she left the hospital, she had been living with the Stephenson family.

But now, the arrangement of the room by the Hunter family made her feel isolated.

She always felt like she didn’t fit in with the Hunter family!

Meanwhile, Chandler, immersed in the potion, was enduring the piercing pain.

The pain spread throughout his body, reaching every limb.

The more intense the pain, the more desire, and longing grew in his heart!
