

Ex Husband 182

Chapter 0182

“You know the drill dear, just go over there and change, then come back and we can see how our little bean is doing”

Taking the dressing gown from her, Ava goes into the changing room. Minutes later she emerges and then lays down on the bed.

“Today we are going to do a transvaginal scan before doing the normal scan.” Doctor Raven says.

“Is there something I should be concerned about?”

“No, it something I do for all my patients! It’s just to make sure the cervix is healthy.” She smiles at Ava.” Now, I’m going to insert this into your vagina, let me know if it gets uncomfortable for you, okay?”

Ava flashes me a look before nodding. I don’t get what she has to be embarrassed about. Incase she’s forgotten, I’ve seen her naked before.

She pulls her legs up and Doctor Raven goes to work. Once she’s done, she does the normal scan before switching off the machines.

“Everything is good. You’re doing well and so is your baby. I’m glad this pregnancy is easy unlike with Noah's case" Doctor Raven says as Ava sits up.

"What do you mean as with Noah's case? Did she have a difficult pregnancy?" fuck, what the hell did I miss while I was busy drowning myself in alcohol because I had lost Emma.

Raven opens her mouth, but Ava cuts her off before she can say anything.

"Nothing" Ava's rushes to say, but I know she's lying because of the way her voice gets high-pitched at the end.

She then jumps down and literally runs to the changing room.

Doctor Raven, gives me a sad smile before leaving the room. After a couple of minutes, Ava comes back fully dressed. She doesn't say a thing as she takes her belongings and leaves. I follow behind her like a lost puppy.

We get to reception area. She gets the date for her next appointment and gets the pictures of her baby.

My phone rings and I take it absent mindedly.

"What?"

I knew who the second picture belonged to. Ethan. I hate that she's in contact with him, but I also applaud Ava is an angel. She decided to do the right thing when it came to both Noah and the child she is expecting. After all, I wasn't a saint during the nine years we were together, yet she still let me have access to Noah. She never even told him anything bad about me though I was a complete bastard to her.

"Sir, the China investors are here. They are insisting on a meeting" my secretary says. 1

"I thought they were supposed to arrive next week"

"They were. That's what was scheduled, but they just showed up out of nowhere"

I groan in frustration. I hate it when my plans are sidetracked. It pisses me off when someone can't keep to what was agreed.

"I'm not going to disrupt my plans because they woke up and just decided they're going to move up the meeting. They can wait till I'm done with what I'm doing or they can leave and come back when they were fucking scheduled"

Those guys have been a pain in my ass since they sought us out. They were desperate for a collaboration and usually when someone is desperate that is not a good sign. I've been thinking of dropping them, but Gabe told me to give them a chance.

"Uh—okay. I'll relay the information"

I hang up after that. I turn just as Ava walks out of the clinic.

"Who's got you so angry?" she asks with a smirk. Almost as if she loves seeing me pissed off.

“Just got a call from my secretary about some investors.”

I see the way her face shuts down at the mention of my secretary. A dark cloud passing over her face.

“You should really fire her. Christine is a fucking bitch and not only to me, but others who she deems below her.”