“You actually don’t admit it! Not only did you call me by my full name, but you also roared at me. You even force me!”

Ormand was speechless.

This time, he was wrong

He risked his life several times to get his wife back. How could he yell at her!

He had to do it on her.

It was true that Ormand didn’t control his emotions well. In his eyes, Viola was different from the gentle. Only then would she keep loving him.

He immediately changed his attitude and straightened his back. His military posture was standard

"I was wrong." Halfway through her goal, Viola wiped away her tears and ignored him, she got up and went plans arrogantly, preparing to pack up and go home.

Ormand followed behind her silently with his head down and behaved like a child who had made mistake

Because Viola was going out, she ignored him and didn't talk to him.

Ormand couldn't stand cold violence the most.

If admitting his mistakes honestly wasn't going to work, then he pretended to be miserable

Ormand rubbed his back and limped with gritted teeth. "Viola, you seemed to live hit my tailbone just now..."

Viola glanced at his firm and tight butt.

She knew he was sadfishing

She had always been measured. Every punch just now was aimed at his firm butt low could it be possible for her to hit his tailbone?

However, she still turned around to look at him.

Ormand was delighted and reached out to grab her waist

but she quietly dodged to the side. She carried her bag, and left the villa without looking back

Orland had no choice but to put on the ghost mask and follow her to the air

The two luxury cars quickly left the Hobson's mansion and drove to Adain Mountain where the McCraw's house was in the car, Ormand glanced at Viola from time to time. She was focused on admiring the scenery that flashed by on the side of the road

Orland

repressed his desire to soften up several times

After all, in front of Juniny and other bodyguards, he could not say something too explicit

They didn't say a word along the way.

When they arrived at the McGraw's house, Viola got out of the car with a cold face.

It was rare that she didn't go in directly. Instead, he stood at the door and waited for Ormand

Ormand noticed it and trotted forward, feeling flattered. He took the initiative to hold her little hand tight

Viola did not break free and let him take her hand,

She moved closer to his ear and said in a very soft voice, "What happened today do not let me know that I am not angry anymore or I will let you off so easily. I will remember it in ten days, you will have to pay back"

Ormand was happy that she was willing to wait for him at the door

He was willing to take the punishment for that the cost of anything

He nodded at Viola seriously

Ormand agreed without hesitation, and Viola held her breath.

With a blank expression Ormand instantly became cold and indifferent

When Viola walked into the room, she instantly again.

Lainey stood in front of the door and waited for then

Seeing Lainey, Viola let go of Ormand's hand and went forward to intimately hold his hand

Ormand's hand suddenly became empty, but Viola's warmth held not distant

Ormand was a little dazed. The vision in front of him suddenly turned dark and his ears were tingling. He was so weak that he couldn't walk.

He stopped and took a deep breath to suppress the suffocating feeling of ten

What was going on?

Did Kolby say that the Strong corrosive agent S40 virus would bring him unknown side effect

Or would his life suddenly end one day?

Or perhaps, he was overthinking

Noticing that the footsteps behind him had stopped, Viola, who had walked ten feet away, looked back and found that Ormand seemed to have stopped in place and was in a trance.

“What’s the matter?”

“It’s nothing. I was thinking about work.” Ormand said as he withdrew his thoughts and followed them

Lainey was a little dissatisfied with him. “This is your fault. It’s rare for you to come back with my little sister for .. meal. How can you still think about work?”

“Lainey, you are right.” He looked down, absent-minded.

Lainey saw that he was absent-minded, so she looked at Viola worriedly. “Viola, has he been good to you during this period? If he dares to bully you, you have to come back and tell us. Bobby will stand up for you.”

The matter of the relationship was between two people. Viola liked to solve it herself, so Lainey couldn't judge.

She nodded half-heartedly. From time to time, she would turn back to look at Ormand. She noted that after he entered the villa, he seemed to be a little strange.

"Orin, you don't look well. Do you feel unwell?"

Ormand pursed his lips. "I'm fine. It's probably because I haven't been out at night for a long time. I'm not used to the cold wind."

Viola looked at the leaves in the garden that were rustling in the wind. "It seems to be a bit cold. Let's hurry in."

Willard, Bobby, and Lily were already waiting in the dining room.

Lainey walked to Bobby and sat down next to him. Viola and Ormand sat down next to each other.

Willard, who was in the main seat, did not start to eat, so everyone sat upright and waited with different thoughts.

Willard looked around and fixed his eyes on Viola in the end. A satisfied smile appeared on his aged face.

"It's been so many years. Viola has also grown up. If Russell and Stanley can also come back today and Russell can bring his fiancée back, our whole family will be together."

His words made the atmosphere in the dining room even heavier.

“It’s a pity that Bentley has a strange temper. He is not married yet. I think I have to help him find one among the powerful families in a few days.”

Willard sighed with emotion and began to eat.

Only then did the others begin to eat.

Viola didn’t move. She looked at Willard. “Dad, you shouldn’t meddle in Bentley’s affairs for now. He is smart. I think Bentley will bring his girl back later.”

Last time, Audrey said that Brenda went to Philadelphia to pursue Stanley. Viola didn’t know if Brenda had succeeded or not.

It was easy for a woman to pursue a man. There was no news of Brenda returning to Washington, which meant that it was not bad.

“Really? Does Stanley already have a girl in his heart?”

Viola smiled. “I don’t know. In short, you should believe in Stanley.”

Without waiting for Willard to speak, Lily interrupted with a sneer, “It’s easy for you to say. How can he decide on his marriage by himself in our family? What if Stanley brings back an uneducated wild girl? Then our family will be a joke.”

Lily smiled and put a target behind Viola's back. "Do you think everyone can be as willful as you? Three years ago, you insisted on marrying your ex-husband and came back only after he died."

After she said that, everyone other than Willard and Viola heavily put down their forks at the same time.

With a loud sound, Lily was so shocked that her hand trembled.
