

Ex-husband Goes Money Comes Chapter 374

Everyone looked at Bobby, who objected.

Bobby said in a serious tone, "Ormand, don't think that the McGraw family will marry Viola off just because she is pregnant. Even if Viola never gets married and gives birth to these two children, the McGraw family will still support them for a lifetime."

"Alright!" Willard shouted with a gloomy face.

"Dad, although you are in charge of this matter, ever since Viola lost her mother, I have been teaching her like I'm her mother. I hope you can discuss her marriage with me."

In this aspect, only Bobby could control Viola.

Willard didn't agree, but he didn't refuse. Willard just said, "Let's eat first. You guys can have a good chat after we finish eating."

"Alright."

Then they picked up their forks.

Everyone silently finished the meal on Christmas Eve.

After dinner, Lily urged Willard to go upstairs to watch TV, leaving Bobby, Lainey, Russell, Bentley, Ormand, and Viola in the living room.

Viola knew that Bobby was still angry and didn't dare to sit down. Viola consciously stood to the side. Ormand didn't sit either and stood with Viola.

Bobby was sitting right in the middle of the sofa, upright. Bobby looked terrifying

Lainey sat next to Bobby, and Bentley and Russell sat on the sofa on both sides.

There was a cold atmosphere as if Viola and Ormand would be interrogated.

Viola lowered her head uneasily. Viola almost couldn't breathe from the pressure. Ormand clenched Viola's sweaty palms and gave her a sense of security. Ormand wanted her to relax.

After a few minutes, Bobby began to speak with a gloomy voice, "Viola, well done! It's Christmas and you've given me such a big surprise. Do you want me to break your hands or break your legs?"

Viola's heart skipped a beat. Without waiting for Viola to speak, Russell spoke up. Russell said, "Bobby, be careful with Viola, especially in the first few months. You can't hit her. Moreover, Viola is having twins!"

Bentley also said, "Ormand is fully responsible. Let's break his legs first."

Lainey nodded in agreement.

Bobby glared at Ormand in annoyance. Bobby didn't sentence Ormand on the spot. Instead, Bobby looked at Viola.

“Let’s continue with you, Viola. You acted first and told us later. You even played tricks and purposely chose to tell us on Christmas Eve. Do you think that with Daddy present, I can’t do anything to you?”

Viola bit her lower lip and lowered her head even more.

Russell reminded Bobby again, destroying the solemn atmosphere. Russell said, “Bobby, it’s twins!”

Bobby glared at Russell fiercely. “I know! If you interrupt me again, I’ll deal with you first!”

Russell immediately shut his mouth.

Bobby looked back and forth between his younger brothers. Bobby knew what had happened. Bobby said, “You two didn’t have any reaction at the dinner table just now. Looks like you already knew. You only hid it from me. Viola, how are we going to settle this?”

Although Russell, who was sitting on the sofa, did not say a word, he stretched out two fingers and gestured to Bobby.

Russell silently reminded Bobby that Viola was pregnant with twins!

This provocative victory gesture successfully set off another wave of anger in Bobby.

However, it was for Russell.

Without waiting for Russell to put down his fingers, Bobby kicked Russell hard. “You haven’t been beaten for a long time. Do you want to be beaten up?”

“Ouch!”

Russell lightly hissed, sorrowfully rubbing his knee that was hurt from the kick, and cold sweat almost came out.

Russell looked at Viola and said, “Viola, I took Bobby’s first wave of anger for you. I tried my best!”

Viola looked at Russell with gratitude and said, “Thank you, Russell! But don’t talk anymore. I’m afraid Bobby will beat you to death first!”

Russell was speechless.

Russell felt a shiver down his spine, silently trying to make himself invisible.

Lainey smiled and echoed, “Honey, since this has already happened, what’s the point of scolding Viola now? You just don’t trust Ormand. You are still angry with him. At most, you can think of a way to deal with him. How about that?”

Viola became anxious when she heard this.

Why does Lainey think the same as Bentley? They both want to deal with Ormand...

Originally, it was just that Bentley was sad, but now the trouble tripled. With the ideas from Viola’s brothers, Ormand would be tortured and ruined!

Just as Viola was feeling uneasy, Ormand took a step forward and said in a calm voice, "I am willing to accept all the punishments from my three brothers-in-law, including the punishment for Viola. I will take her part as well!"

Viola said, "Don't, Orin!" The combined punishments from the three of them are many times more terrifying than you think!

Bobby raised his eyebrows and snorted, "Alright, you said it yourself. If you can pass the test, I will agree to you marrying Viola after Christmas."

Ormand smiled and looked at Bobby. "It's a deal!"

Viola was speechless.

So I don't get to have a say now?

You should also respect the opinion of a pregnant woman!

In the living room, the men all looked aggressive, and there was a hint of war.

Bobby smiled and said, "Today's Christmas Eve. It is a good day. How about we do it today? If you can still walk back to the Hobson's house tonight, then you pass!"

"Alright," Ormand said with a faint smile.

Viola, on the other hand, was terrified when she heard this. "Bobby, you were trying to scare Ormand on purpose, right? You guys have to take it easy! Don't cripple him. The happiness of the rest of my life is in your hands!"

Bobby did not speak. Bobby looked solemn. It didn't seem that he was joking.

This time, it was Bentley, who was the least talkative, who said, "Since it's Christmas Eve, how can we not make a toast? Then let's start with three toasts."

Ormand's back stiffened slightly, and he sensed that something was Chapter 374 Mr Hobson's Test Starts from Toating wrong.

Russell followed Bentley. They went to the kitchen to prepare the toast for Ormand. Russell limped past Ormand and patted Ormand's shoulder meaningfully.

As soon as they left, Bobby changed his stern expression and pointed to the sofa on the side. "Sit down. There are not many opportunities for you to sit down tonight. Cherish it."

In the face of these people making things difficult for him, Ormand didn't have much confidence. Ormand sat for a while.

Lainey got up and pulled Viola to sit beside her, comforting Viola in a low voice.

“Don’t worry, your brothers will know what to do. Since Ormand is determined to marry you, he will have to suffer this time. Let him know how strong and ruthless the family behind you is! He won’t dare to bully you in the future!”

Viola had nothing to say.

Viola knew that her brothers were doing this for her own good, but ... she still loved Ormand.

The entire living room soon quieted down. The bodyguard at the door suddenly came in and said, “Mr. McGraw, there is a girl outside. She has been wandering at the door for a long time. I wonder if she is a guest?”

“A girl?”

“What does she look like?” Viola was the first to react.

“She’s very beautiful. She’s dressed very well and looks like a celebrity.”

“That should be Sherlyn. Maybe it was Russell who asked her to come over.” Viola knew what was happening.

Viola looked in the direction of the kitchen. Russell was busy and had yet to bring the wine back. Viola said, “Forget it, I’ll go take her in.”

Bobby did not object to it.

“Take care of yourself,” Ormand said.

Viola looked at Ormand worriedly before turning to pick up Sherlyn.

Viola came to the door.

Viola saw the girl looking at the villa from afar.

However, when Viola saw the girl’s face clearly, Viola’s beautiful eyes froze. Viola repeatedly looked at the girl until she approached. Then Viola asked, “Why are you here?”
