

You Just Got Exposed, Dear Chapter 20

“What? The renowned doctor has passed away?”

“When did this happen?”

Upon hearing that, everyone lamented in disappointment and disbelief.

Mitchell, however, didn't react the slightest bit. His unchanged expression had Juliet feeling a tad anxious since she wasn't quite sure whether he believed her. :

“Mr. Mitchell, there's someone outside who claims to be... Dr. Frank.”

In the next second, James scurried over. As soon as his words fell, everyone lifted their eyes and trained their gazes behind him.

They then saw someone with a veil walking over from the far end of the corridor though they couldn't tell the person's gender.

“Huh?”

Surprise inundated everyone once more, and they all looked at Juliet for an explanation.

However, Juliet herself hadn't expected that turn of events. She was struck dumb for a long while, merely watching as the person who claimed to be Carlson walked over.

“Are you the heir of the White family, Mitchell White?” Jennifer came to a stop in front of Mitchell. To prevent being recognized, she had deliberately used a voice changer.

“Are you Dr. Frank?” Benjamin scrutinized her at the side, but he felt that she didn’t quite fit the description of the rumored miracle doctor.

Therefore, he was a tad worried that she was an imposter who was taking advantage of the situation.

“No,” Jennifer answered. “He’s my mentor,” she continued after a brief pause.

At the side, Juliet noticed that Jennifer’s hand was that of a woman, so she hastily pointed at her and exclaimed, “She’s a charlatan! Dr. Frank’s apprentice is a man, but she’s a woman!”

Following that simple remark, everyone started doubting Jennifer.

Everyone knew that the renowned doctor took in two extraordinarily talented apprentices, but both were men.

Everyone knew that the renowned doctor took in two extraordinarily talented apprentices, but both were men.

“That question will be answered in a while.” Jennifer wasn’t afraid at all despite the suspicion directed at her. Her only thought then was to see to Montgomery.

“How so?” Mitchell, who had been keeping mum, inquired in a deep voice.

Under the veil, Jennifer chuckled before replying in an exceedingly relaxed voice, “That’s simple. I’m the real deal if I manage to cure Old Mr. White. Otherwise, I’m a charlatan.”

Incredulity deluged everyone there upon hearing such a cavalier answer.

Surprisingly, Mitchell nodded without even mulling it over and murmured in acknowledgment.

After all, I’ll have whoever dares to deceive me pay a heavy price!

“Don’t believe her, Mitchell!” Juliet wanted to protest further to salvage her image.

Alas, Mitchell no longer spared her a single glance but led Jennifer into the ward.

Due to the cramped space in the ward, everyone else could only wait outside and peer in through the window.

After walking over to Montgomery, Jennifer first examined his pupils and complexion before taking his pulse.

Her actions seemed incredibly professional. Daily new chapters in www.infobagh.com

Nonetheless, that didn’t prove anything until she took out an exquisite pouch and opened it.

All at once, the silver needles within were exposed to everyone's sight.

Someone among the crowd perceived the distinctiveness of the silver needles and exclaimed, "That set of silver needles really seems to be of the renowned doctor!"

When Juliet heard that, she almost ground her teeth to smithereens.

Argh! Is that damn miracle doctor deliberately going against me? He told me that he was dead.

yet he came here after saying that!

In the ward, Jennifer lifted her eyes and looked at Mitchell. Her voice carried a hint of solemnity. "Mr. Mitchell, I'm going to begin treatment, so please step out for a moment."

Mitchell's gaze darkened a fraction. After regarding her closely and ascertaining that everything seemed fine, he spun around and left the room.

In other words, he entrusted Montgomery to her fully.

Despite that, the experts didn't find anything special about it.

But after that, they didn't see her inserting or removing the needles. All they saw was her slender fingers flying with every movement as though it was wholly effortless for her.

Half an hour later, the fingers of Montgomery, who had been unconscious, suddenly twitched.

That minute movement had everyone present going into a tizzy.

Glimpsing the reaction, Jennifer breathed a sigh of relief. After removing the last needle, she pulled the door open and walked out.

“Old Mr. White once sustained a head injury, so there was a blood clot in his head. I've already cleared the blood clot with acupuncture. Also, here's the prescription. Taking the medicine as indicated will help him to recover faster and strengthen his constitution.”

As Jennifer said that, she handed Mitchell the prescription she had just written.

After everything that had transpired earlier, everyone was convinced of her capabilities. Thus, they were very respectful toward her.

It was then that Mitchell's expression finally eased. “Thank you. Feel free to ask for any amount you'd like for remuneration.”

At that, Jennifer shook her head. “I won't be requesting any payment for my services this time. My mentor once met Old Mr. White, so he asked me to come over for the sake of their friendship.”

Her comment immediately cleared up the crowd’s puzzlement.

Raising her eyes, Jennifer then caught sight of Juliet, who was then standing at the back of the crowd.

Unbidden, a thought flashed through her mind.

Since she has expended so much effort on this, I’ll just help her a long. This time, I’ll have her utterly humiliated in front of Mitchell! Daily new chapters update in www.infobagh.com

“Oh yes, before I came, my mentor asked me to tell you something, Mr. Mitchell.”

“What is it?”

“My mentor said he doesn’t know the so-called prominent Young family from Kenfort, so please don’t be fooled, Mr. Mitchell.”

As soon as those words fell, Juliet felt as though she had been slapped several times, her face stinging.

“I’ve got to return to my mentor, so please excuse me.” At the sight of Juliet’s face that had contorted into a mask of fury, Jennifer’s mood improved vastly. Her voice turned a touch airy with a hint of insouciance.

Subsequently, Mitchell’s eyes narrowed into slits as he stared at Jennifer’s retreating back.

Hmm... I seem to have seen this petite figure somewhere.

“Please let me explain, Mitchell. I didn’t mean to lie to you. I really went to seek the miracle doctor out.”

“You must be tired, Ms. Young. Please see Ms. Young off.” At that moment, Mitchell didn’t want to see Juliet at all, so he ordered security to forcefully take her away.

“Wait a moment, doctor!”

When Jennifer reached the hospital lobby, someone abruptly ran over and blocked her path. Lifting her eyes, she was greeted by the visage of Mitchell’s assistant, Emmett.

Immediately, a sense of dread rose within her.

“Yes I’ve got a favor to ask of you. Your medical skills are truly remarkable, and you even outshine your mentor. I wonder if you can treat intellectual disability?” Mitchell’s voice drifted over from behind her.

Jennifer turned around, but before she could answer, Mitchell continued, “I have a dim-witted wife whose condition has persisted for quite some time. I hope you can help to take a look at her.”

“I’ve never encountered that.” Naturally, Jennifer chose to turn him down.

“It’s okay. You can simply take a look at her. After all, you might just be able to cure her.” Mitchell stalked closer with his gaze pinned on her, his voice imperious.

It was as though there was no room for demurral.

Jennifer’s heart lurched at the profound look in his eyes.

Crap! Don’t tell me he has seen through me?
