

Fall for You 401

Chapter 401

Hearing the amount of over a thousand, Tracy was so frightened that she almost fainted. It took her several minutes to accept this reality. You should know, she could only sell a little over a hundred after a month of gathering herbs in the mountains. Over a thousand was the yield of her gathering herbs for a year.

After another round of thanks to Mallory, Tracy finally left.

Watching the figures of the few people, a cold smirk hooked up at the corner of Mallory's mouth.

She had ordered her subordinates to give Sabina a drug that would turn her into a wanton woman, so that few men could satisfy her. Since she loved climbing into men's beds so much, this time she would have her fill!

In the evening, Zane returned to the Schneider family in a huff.

"Mallory, what did you do to Sabina?! Where is she now?!"

Mallory took a sip of tea leisurely, her face expressionless as she said, "She's missing, you should go to the police. What use is it to come to me?"

Zane sneered, "If anything happens to her, I will definitely not let you off!"

Mallory calculated the time, Sabina should have been rolling in bed with several men by now.

Just then, her phone suddenly rang. It was a message from the subordinate she had previously instructed to shoot a video.

She put down her teacup, just clicked on the video on her phone, and a burst of moaning sounds from a man and a woman came out.

Seeing Sabina enjoying herself in the video, Mallory chuckled and handed the phone to Zane, saying with a smile, "This is the woman you're looking for. She's currently in bed with several men, she probably doesn't have time for you."

Zane's pupils contracted sharply, and he harshly slapped Mallory.

"You venomous woman, I won't let you go!"

Mallory sneered, "How exactly are you not going to let me go? Call the police on me? The Schneider Group and the Schneider family will be affected then. All for one woman, are you sure?"

Zane looked at her coldly, saying word by word, "You wait for me!"

Of course he wouldn't call the police. For him, his interests were paramount. His kindness towards Sabina was only because she had given him a son. How could he possibly make a fuss for her sake?

Mallory also seized this point, which is why she dared to deal with Sabina so recklessly.

After Zane left, Kiley came down from upstairs.

“Mom, even though Dad is now disgusted with Sabina, we still can’t let our guard down. After all, Sabina still has a son.”

Mallory sneered, slowly saying, “I know, I’ll go to the hospital to see your grandmother. After all, that child is of the Schneider family bloodline, how could he be raised by a woman of such loose morals.”

As long as she got that little brat back to the Schneider family, she had plenty of ways to deal with him!

“Good.”

After Mallory left, Kiley also went out to do business.

The impact of the plagiarism incident was significant. Most of the partners she recently approached were unwilling to collaborate with her.

Those with kinder hearts directly told Kiley that the brand image of the CharmDress was not good, and there was even a group of people on the internet who spontaneously organized to boycott the CharmDress. It would be better to keep a low profile during this period.

Kiley’s standards for potential partners kept dropping, until finally, a few small partners showed interest in collaborating with them.

Entering the agreed-upon restaurant, Kiley had a discussion with her business partner. They agreed to sign a contract at the company the next morning. After she escorted her business partner out, she ran into Briana at the door.

And at that moment, standing next to Briana was Mr. Ferguson, the former biggest collaborator of the CharmDress.

Kiley’s face instantly turned extremely unsightly, forcing out a smile, “Mr. Ferguson, are you now collaborating with MY Corporation?”

Mr. Ferguson glanced at the business partner next to Kiley, who was not at all on the same level as their company, and chuckled, “It’s just a meal together.”

After speaking, he looked at Briana, “That’s it for today, we’ll talk another day.”

Briana nodded, “Okay.”

After they were the only two left at the scene, Kiley coldly looked at Briana, “Don’t think you’ve won just because you’re working with Mr. Ferguson!”

Briana was indifferent, leaving without even glancing at Kiley.

Kiley gritted her teeth in anger, quickly stepping forward to block

Briana. “I’m talking to you, are you deaf?” she asked.

Chapter 402

There was not a trace of emotion in Briana’s eyes as she looked at her expressionlessly, “Just because you’re talking to me, I have to respond?"

Kiley choked for a moment, her anger intensifying instantly. She gritted her teeth and said, "You just wait!"

After speaking, she turned around and quickly walked away. However, because her movements were too hasty, she suddenly stumbled and fell down the stairs.

"Ah!"

With a scream, Kiley clutched her stomach tightly, her face twisted in pain.

"My stomach hurt so much!"

Briana originally didn't want to get involved, but considering she was pregnant, she still dialed the emergency number.

There was a hospital near the restaurant, and the ambulance arrived quickly.

Seeing the paramedics carry Kiley away, Briana was about to leave when she was stopped by a nurse.

"You're a family member, right? Get in the car first. We'll need to do a series of tests at the hospital later, and it won't do to have no one there."

After speaking, they immediately pulled Briana onto the ambulance without any explanation. Kiley didn't have time to resist before the ambulance doors were closed. She had no choice but to go to the hospital with them.

After arriving at the hospital, Briana immediately sent a message to Mallory, telling her about Kiley's fall, then put away her phone and planned to leave.

Just turned the corner, and ran into Madeline.

Madeline was holding the medicine when Briana remembered that Brycen was also hospitalized in this hospital.

Last time, because it was not convenient to talk, Briana did not ask Madeline about her situation with Brycen.

"Briana, how did you end up in the hospital?"

"Something came up, were you still taking care of Brycen?"

Kiley knew Madeline, if she truly had no feelings for Brycen, she would never have left her job to take care of him.

Madeline nodded, "Yes, he still had half a month before he was discharged. I had promised to take care of him until then."

Seeing Briana's face looking somewhat upset, she quickly explained, "Don't misunderstand, there's nothing between him and me, and there never will be."

Briana frowned, "Did you fall for him?"

Madeline pursed her lips, unabashedly admitting it.

"Hmm, no one has ever been willing to sacrifice their life for me. The moment Veya was cut off, he ran towards me without hesitation. In that instant, I knew I had fallen for him."

Briana lowered her gaze and said no more. Matters of the heart were beyond control. As an outsider, all she could do was watch helplessly as Madeline fell in, unable to do anything.

Seeing her silent, Madeline laughed at herself, "But don't worry, I know my family is not good enough for him, and I don't dare to hope that we could be together."

Briana frowned, looking at Madeline displeasedly, "Don't belittle yourself. Love doesn't distinguish between high and low. If you really like him and want to fight for him, then fight for him bravely. I will always stand behind you."

Upon hearing this, Madeline's eyes couldn't help but well up with tears. She nodded and said, "Mm, thank you, Briana."

"Alright, you can go ahead with your work, but don't let personal feelings interfere with your job."

"Don't worry, I won't," I assured.

After parting with Madeline, Briana had just stepped out of the hospital when she received a call from Maxim.

"Where was it?"

"Hospital."

"Why did you suddenly go to the hospital?"

Hearing the worry in Maxim's tone, Briana spoke up, "I ran into Kiley when I was discussing business with a partner. She accidentally fell, so I brought her to the hospital."

There was silence on the other end of the phone for a few seconds before Maxim's voice came through.

"You just wait there for me, I was coming right over."

Having said that, he didn't wait for Briana to refuse, he just hung up the phone directly.

Briana was standing at the hospital entrance waiting for Maxim, but to her surprise, it was Mallory who showed up first.

"Briana, what on earth did you do to Kiley?! Did you know she was pregnant? If anything happens to her or the baby, I will never forgive you!"

Chapter 403

Seeing Mallory raise her hand as if to hit her, Briana's eyes turned cold, and she stepped back twice to avoid her hand.

"Mrs. Schneider, she fell by herself, I just brought her to the hospital."

Mallory's eyes were icy cold, "You've always been jealous of Kiley, it must have been you who pushed her and made her fall!"

Briana couldn't be bothered to deal with her anymore, after all, whatever she said, Mallory would think she was making excuses.

Seeing her indifferent expression, Mallory became even angrier, "You're simply not fit to be a human being, doing such a thing to your pregnant sister, I truly regret not strangling you to death back then!"

No sooner had the words fallen than a cold voice sounded not far away.

"Mrs. Schneider, say it again!"

Turning her head and seeing it was Maxim, Mallory couldn't help but feel her heart skip a beat, and she unconsciously felt a bit scared inside.

However, as soon as he remembered that Briana was his daughter, he immediately gained confidence.

"Mr. Yoder, I disciplined my daughter, it didn't seem like it was your place to interfere!"

Maxim's expression was icy, his tone laced with mockery, "Has Mrs. Schneider developed dementia? You had already held a press conference to announce your severance of ties with Briana, you are at most strangers now."

Mallory choked for a moment, gritting her teeth and said, "That was just a heat of the moment comment, it doesn't count!"

"Sorry, I took it seriously."

"Mr. Yoder, did you have to interfere in our family affairs?"

"Briana's business was my business."

Mallory sneered, "Mr. Yoder is quite the romantic now, isn't he? If he was so passionate, why did he insist on divorcing Briana in the first place?"

As soon as these words were spoken, Maxim's face changed instantly, and a cold aura surrounded him, making people shudder.

He squinted his eyes, speaking slowly and deliberately, "Mrs. Schneider, the things you've done to Sabina should be enough to put you behind bars for a few years, right?"

Mallory's face turned pale instantly, gritting her teeth, she said, "I don't understand what Mr. Yoder's words mean!"

Maxim chuckled coldly, his voice devoid of warmth, "If Mrs.

Schneider yells at my girlfriend again, saying some unpleasant words, I will make Mrs. Schneider pay the price!"

Mallory's hand hanging by her side unconsciously tightened, resentful yet utterly helpless. She snorted coldly and turned towards the hospital.

Maxim looked down at Briana, whispering, "If she says something like this again in the future, you tell me directly, I'll handle it."—

Briana couldn't help but laugh, "I can handle this little thing."

"So your so-called solution was to do nothing and just let her yell at you?"

Seeing the displeasure in Maxim's eyes, Briana couldn't help but say, "I didn't even get a chance to speak before you showed up, where was there room for me to shine?"

"Are you implying that it's my fault?"

"Of course not, I haven't even had time to thank you, how could I blame you?"

Maxim was about to speak when his phone suddenly rang.

As soon as the call connected, the panicked voice of the Harmony Villa's butler came through, "Young Master, the old lady just fainted! You must come back immediately!"

Maxim's face changed immediately, and he quickly took Briana back to the Harmony Villa.

When the two arrived at the Harmony Villa, Isaac had also arrived.

Several people with solemn expressions quickly walked in.

In Norma's bedroom, the family doctor was examining Norma.

Half an hour later, the doctor spoke with a grave expression, "I couldn't determine the cause of the old lady's fainting. I suggest she be immediately transferred to Haseton for further examination."

The Yoder family's family doctor, who was one of the best in Bridenville, couldn't diagnose her. Even if they had sent Norma to the hospital, it would have been useless.

Maxim's expression was icy as he immediately dialed Rayan's number, "Contact the hospital in Haseton, and prepare another helicopter. Come to the Harmony Villa immediately."

Just after hanging up the phone, Isaac said, "I have a friend working at Haseton General Hospital, let's take grandma directly to the First Hospital for a check-up!"

The moment the words fell, Maxim immediately refused.

"No!"

Chapter 404

Isaac frowned, looking coldly at Maxim and said, "Haseton General Hospital is the best hospital in the country, why not?!"

Maxim had a cold expression. Hector was also staying at Haseton General Hospital, he might run into Briana there.

"Haseton Greenlawn Hospital was also good, and it had the investment of the Yoder Group. I would arrange for my grandmother to have a check-up at Greenlawn Hospital."

Isaac sneered, "What do you mean by this? Don't you trust me?"

"I didn't say that."

"Could you take responsibility if anything happened to grandma? You ignored the best hospitals and insisted on going to Greenlawn Hospital. I even doubted that you didn't want grandma to wake up at all!"

Maxim stared at him coldly, saying word by word, "I heard that you recently bought dozens of chickens for grandma to improve her health. If I find out that grandma's fainting has anything to do with those chickens, don't blame me for not considering brotherly affection!"

Isaac sneered, "Maxim, from the day my parents died in a car accident, there hasn't been a shred of brotherly love between us!"

"You finally spoke your mind."

There was no longer any feigned gentleness in Isaac's eyes, but rather they were filled with hatred.

"If your parents had been killed like mine, and I, as their son, was unable to avenge them, you would understand how I feel right now!"

He had originally planned to forget everything about Bridenville, but the person who killed his parents wouldn't let him go, still seeking various opportunities to kill him.

Given that, he would not avoid the other party anymore!

Sensing the tension between the two, Briana said coldly, "The most important thing right now is grandma's illness. The helicopter will be here soon. Let's move grandma outside first, and as soon as the helicopter arrives, we'll get her on board immediately."

When seeing Norma out, Briana quietly went to her side and took her pulse, her brow furrowing unconsciously soon after.

It hadn't been long, how could Norma's pulse have become so weak?!

If not treated promptly, there would definitely be a risk to life.

While no one was paying attention, Briana quickly stuffed a fast-acting heart-saving pill she had made into Norma's mouth.

She got up pretending to go to the bathroom, but secretly sneaked into the kitchen. Norma had fainted before she had a chance to drink the chicken soup, so the soup was still in the kitchen at that moment.

Grabbing a few plastic bags, Briana casually filled them with chicken soup and stuffed them into her bag, then calmly left the kitchen.

Upon hearing about Norma's fainting incident today, she almost -immediately thought of the chicken soup Norma drank every day.

Although the test results showed it was normal, she still felt there was something wrong.

Moreover, Norma's pulse was so weak, it was clearly a case of deficiency that couldn't be replenished. Besides that chicken soup, she must have been eating foods that depleted her body on a daily basis!

Soon, the helicopter arrived.

After seeing Norma off on the plane, upon seeing Maxim board the plane, Briana followed suit.

"I went with you."

Maxim's eyes suddenly deepened a few shades, he frowned and said, "No need, I'm enough on my own."

"I accompanied you!"

Looking into Briana's determined eyes, Maxim was silent for a few seconds, finally nodding and saying, "Alright then."

Watching the helicopter spiral upwards and gradually disappear from sight, Isaac hooked a cold smile at the corner of his mouth and made a call to his secretary.

"We could start preparing now."

The secretary hesitated a bit, "Mr. Yoder, are you sure you want to do this? This could very well ruin the Yoder Group."

The smile at the corner of Isaac's mouth deepened, his voice sounding as if it came from hell, "My purpose was to destroy the Yoder Group."

Since he couldn't obtain it, he simply destroyed it.

After all, it was his stuff that was in Maxim's hands, and this feeling really pissed him off.

"Alright, I understood."

Three hours later, the moment the helicopter landed on the helipad of Bridenville Trinity Hospital, Albert received the message.

"Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Yoder came to Haseton. It's said that there's something wrong with Norma's health."

Albert sat in his wheelchair, clutching his fist to his mouth as he coughed a few times before speaking, "Keep a close eye on Hector during this period, don't let him have any chance to meet Briana."

Chapter 405

"Yes!"

On the other side, in a VIP ward of the Bridenville General Hospital, Hector was lying on his side on the hospital bed, looking out the window with an indifferent expression.

The agent beside him peeled an orange and handed it to him, slowly saying, "Hector, have some fruit."

Ever since he woke up and realized that under Albert's coercion, he had told Briana that he was not her savior, Hector had been indifferent to everyone. Every day, apart from eating, he would just stare out of the window, ignoring anyone who tried to talk to him.

"I didn't want to eat."

The agent sighed and slowly said, "Even if you want to explain to Briana that you saved her, you at least have to wait until your injuries are healed, right?"

Hector closed his eyes, speaking in an indifferent tone, "I want to be alone for a while, you go ahead."

Watching him close his eyes in a manner that suggested he didn't want to talk, the agent didn't say anything more. After putting down the orange, he quietly left.

Only when the ward had returned to silence did Hector open his eyes.

The agent and Albert both guessed wrong. He didn't want to see Briana. Knowing she was safe, he was relieved and didn't want to bother her anymore.

He just needed more time to convince himself, to restrain his emotions, and to stop paying attention to her.

That was it.

On the other side, after Norma was hospitalized, she was quickly arranged for examination, but nothing was found. All of Norma's indicators were normal, but there was no sign of her waking up.

Upon the doctor's advice, they could only administer a nutritional IV to Norma, maintaining the most basic nutrition.

"Mr. Yoder, I suggested transferring to the First Hospital. After all, their equipment is more advanced than ours. The issues we couldn't detect here, perhaps the First Hospital could."

Maxim's expression was icy, "Arrange for a transfer immediately."

Norma had been unconscious all along, and he couldn't care less about whether he would run into Hector or not.

However, Maxim had called Albert in advance, asking him to have someone keep an eye on Hector, not to let him appear in front of himself and Briana.

After going for a check-up at another hospital, the results were no different from those at Greenlawn Hospital.

Maxim's face grew increasingly grim, he coldly said, "A bunch of useless people, can't even figure out why he fainted!"

Knowing his overwhelming power, the doctor who examined Norma was trembling with fear, yet dared not to contradict.

Briana frowned at him and said, "Mr. Yoder, don't worry. How about I contact the miracle doctor who treated your leg before, to see if he can find out the reason for your grandmother's fainting?"

Maxim nodded coldly, "Hmm, you're tired too. I'll have someone take you to rest in a bit. I can take care of grandma here."

"Good."

Briana stepped aside to call Wyatt, knowing that he was conveniently attending a seminar in Haseton. She told him about Norma's sudden fainting spell, and Wyatt agreed to come over immediately.

Half an hour later, Wyatt came to check on Norma's health.

When taking the pulse, his expression gradually became serious. He checked under Norma's tongue again, and sure enough, there was a fast-acting heart-saving pill

If it weren't for this fast-acting heart-saving pill, Norma would have been dead by now.

He stood up and looked at Maxim, saying, "Mr. Yoder, the old lady's condition is a bit complicated, I need to go back and prepare some medicinal materials."

Maxim frowned, "How long will it take?"

"Probably a day's time."

A glint of coldness flashed in his eyes, he was about to give Wyatt only half a day when Briana suddenly spoke up, "In that case, Dr. Waylon should hurry up and prepare the medicinal herbs, I'll see you out."

Watching Briana and Wyatt leave together, Maxim's eyes were filled with coldness.

Although Briana and Wyatt appeared unfamiliar with each other, some of their actions and behaviors were clearly very familiar.

Thinking of this, Maxim's eyes grew a few degrees colder.

Stepping out of the ward, Wyatt immediately whispered, "This disease is not easy to treat, I guess you'll have to step in."

No sooner had the words left his mouth than Briana shoved something into his hand.

Chapter 406

Looking down at the plastic bag in his hand, Wyatt paused, "What is this..."

Briana spoke in a low voice, "This is the chicken soup the old lady drinks every day. I suspect there's something wrong with it, but the last time I had it tested, they found nothing. I don't trust the external testing agencies. Could you personally check if there's anything wrong with it?"

Upon hearing this, Wyatt's face instantly turned extremely serious, "Alright, I'll go back and check right now. If there's any problem, I'll contact you at any time."

"Mm-hmm."

After sending Wyatt back to the ward, Briana noticed that Maxim's complexion was a bit strange.

“What was wrong with you?”

Maxim withdrew his gaze from Briana’s face, seemingly casually saying, “You seem to be quite familiar with your Wyatt.”

Briana’s heart sank for a moment, then she laughed, “I used to go to him for your leg treatment, I visited him quite often, so it’s normal for me to be familiar with him.”

After a few seconds of silence, Maxim looked at her, his expression serious, and said, “The familiarity I’m talking about is not this kind. The way you two interact gives off the feeling that you’ve known each other for many years.”

“It must have been your misconception. When you have time, you should take Grandma to see a few more doctors.”

“Since Dr. Waylon had already gone to prepare the medicinal herbs, let’s wait until Dr. Waylon has prepared the medicine.”

Briana also planned to wait for Wyatt to check the results of the chicken soup, so she simply nodded and said, “Okay.”

Soon, Maxim’s subordinates arrived.

Seeing that he intended to have four people escort her back to the hotel, Briana felt somewhat helpless, “This is Haseton, the public security is very good, there’s no need for so many people to take me back.”

And even if she encountered danger, she could protect herself.

Maxim’s eyes flickered, he said in a deep voice, “I’m not comfortable with you going back alone, they will leave once they escort you back.”

Seeing Maxim persist, Briana had no choice but to agree.

Returning to the hotel, it was already late at night.

Briana checked the time and sent a message to Melody, saying she wouldn’t be going to the office the next day and to call her anytime if there was anything.

I originally thought that Melody was already asleep at this time, but unexpectedly, she called as soon as the message was sent.

“Briana, did you forget? You have to sign a contract with Mr. Ferguson tomorrow. If you don’t come to the office, who will sign it?”

Briana frowned, “I’m in Haseton now, I can’t make it back tomorrow, you can sign for me.”

“Haseton? What were you doing in Haseton?”

The sudden rise in Melody’s voice made Briana’s frown deepen. She said, “Norma suddenly fainted at home. The general hospital in Bridenville couldn’t figure out the exact reason, so they sent her to Haseton overnight. What’s wrong? Why are you reacting so strongly?”

“No...nothing, I just thought Haseton was quite far, I didn’t expect you would suddenly go there.”

Briana didn't think much of it, "Alright, I'm going to bed now. Call me anytime if there's anything at the company."

"Good."

After hanging up the phone, Melody put down her cell phone and sighed.

"Should I tell her that Hector saved Briana or not? I called Hector last time... He didn't want me to reveal this either. I really don't know what he was thinking."

Ezra, who was by her side, pulled her into his arms and whispered, "Since Hector also hopes that you won't speak of it, pretend you don't know about this. It's already very late, go to sleep."

"Mm-hmm."

Melody sighed, she also didn't understand why Maxim and Heetor both had to hide things from Briana.

Early the next morning, as soon as Briana got up, she received a call from Wyatt.

"There was indeed something wrong with that chicken soup. Where are you now? I'm coming right away."

Chapter 407

Half an hour later, Wyatt handed the file in his hand to Briana with a grim expression, coldly saying, "There's opium in that chicken soup, which can be addictive, and the concentration is very high!"

Seeing the numbers on the test report, Briana's hand unconsciously tightened around the document, her eyes filled with anger.

This beast Isaac, he actually fed the old lady this kind of stuff!

The old lady's health was not very good to begin with. If she became addicted to this thing, it would basically be impossible for her to quit. Even if she could quit, it would have a significant impact on her health!

Thinking of this, she wished she could immediately drag Isaac to kneel in front of Norma's sickbed to confess!

However...

"If she only ate this, it shouldn't have depleted Norma's body so quickly to cause her to faint. Was there something else?"

Wyatt nodded, "It's certain that the person who harmed Norma must have given her another poison. The interaction of the two poisons is why Norma's body reacted so quickly!"

"I got it, I will find out what it is as soon as possible!"

The two had just finished talking when the room door suddenly rang.

Briana walked to the door and opened it, only to see surprise flash in Maxim's eyes outside.

"Mr. Yoder, how did you get here?"

Maxim looked past her to see Wyatt standing in the room, his face full of displeasure, “Don’t be alone in a room with another man next time.”

His voice was not low, and Wyatt heard it, immediately touching his nose somewhat awkwardly.

If Maxim knew that he and Briana often made medicine together when they were studying medicine, sometimes that medicine needed to be boiled for several days and nights, the two of them took turns watching the medicine pot, and when the medicine was ready, they were so tired that they just found a place to lie down and fell asleep, without even thinking about the difference between men and women, Maxim would probably assassinate him.

Thinking of this, Wyatt couldn’t help but shiver.

Briana ignored his words, directly handing the file in her hand to Maxim, “Before coming to Haseton yesterday, I took some chicken soup from the kitchen for Dr. Waylon to test. This is the result of the test.”

Maxim took the document, his face turned incredibly cold after reading it, and the temperature around him dropped to freezing point!

He immediately dialed Rayan’s number, coldly saying, “Arrest Isaac immediately!”

No sooner had the words fallen than Rayan’s panicked voice came through.

“Mr. Yoder, there’s been an incident! The confidential chips of the Yoder Group have been leaked. Now, many of our partners are accusing us of breach of contract!”

Maxim’s face instantly turned even colder, his expression full of impending storm-like anger.

“Was the person who leaked it found?”

“It was Isaac’s secretary, now the Yoder Group is in a complete mess, Mr. Yoder, please come back soon!”

Maxim coldly hung up the phone, looking at Briana and said, “I need to go back to Bridenville, my grandmother there...”

Before the words were even finished, Briana interjected, “Don’t worry about Grandma here, the company matters are more important!”

She had also heard what Rayan just said. The crisis that the Yoder Group was facing must have been significant, otherwise, Rayan wouldn’t have been so nervous.

“Good.”

Maxim looked deeply into her eyes, planted a kiss on her lips, and said, “Wait for me to come back!”

After Maxim left, Briana turned to Wyatt and said, “We need to go to the hospital now. We must find out what kind of poison Norma has been exposed to. The fast-acting heart-saving pill can only last for three days. Once the three days are up, if the poison invades her organs, it will be too late!”

“Mm–hmm.”

The two quickly went to the hospital, and just as they reached the entrance, they ran into Hector’s agent head–on.

Upon seeing Briana, his face changed, “Ms. Schneider, how did you come here?!”

Chapter 408

Seeing Hector’s agent, Briana was also somewhat surprised.

“A relative was hospitalized, I came to visit. Why were you here?”

The agent was silent for a moment, then spoke, “I came to see a friend.”

Briana nodded, without asking further, “I’m a bit busy today, so I’ll go ahead.”

“Good.”

After Briana left, the agent quickly returned to Hector’s hospital room.

“Hector, you wouldn’t believe who I saw at the hospital entrance!”

With an indifferent expression, Hector shifted his gaze from the book to his agent’s face, “I don’t care.”

“Even if what I saw was Ms. Schneider, you wouldn’t care?”

Upon hearing this, Hector’s hand, which was holding the book, unconsciously tightened, his knuckles turning faintly white.

“How could she have come here?”

“I heard her say that a relative was hospitalized, and she came to visit that relative.”

A flicker of disappointment flashed in Hector’s eyes, then he said lightly, “I understand.”

“Just now, she asked me why I was here, I said a friend was in the hospital, if you want her to come see you, I can...”

Before he could finish speaking, he was interrupted by Hector.

“No need, don’t tell her I’m here, and try to avoid meeting her in the future.”

Seeing the restraint in Hector’s eyes, the agent couldn’t help but sigh.

“I really didn’t know what you were thinking. You saved her, and if she found out, she would definitely be very grateful. Then, you could confess your feelings to her. Maybe she would be so moved that she would agree.”

Hector chuckled self–deprecatingly, murmuring, “The one she likes isn’t me, and she’s very happy now.”

For him, this was enough.

On the other side, Briana and Wyatt had just arrived at the door of Norma's ward when a nurse walked out from inside.

The two didn't think much and went straight into the ward.

Briana walked over to the bedside to take Norma's pulse, and not long after, her face suddenly turned incredibly pale.

"Give me your medicine box!"

Wyatt quickly opened the medical kit, and Briana immediately picked up the silver needle, swiftly inserting it into the acupoints on Norma's body.

Seeing the acupuncture points she had punctured, Wyatt's face immediately changed.

By the time the last acupuncture point was punctured, sweat had already appeared on Briana's face.

Not long after, Norma's skin began to sweat, but the sweat was not clear and colorless, but silver with a hint of gray. Before long, Norma's body was covered with a thin layer of silver-gray substance.

While removing the needles, Briana wiped off the stuff on Norma's skin, her expression cold as she said. "Go check who entered the old lady's ward after Maxim left!"

"Good."

Briana had finished wiping Norma's body, it was already half an hour later.

She threw the towel into the medical waste bin, dressed Norma and covered her with a blanket before finally turning to leave the ward.

Wyatt had just returned, "I checked, during Mr. Yoder's absence, the only person who visited Norma's ward was the nurse we met when we came."

It seemed that there must have been something wrong with that nurse.

A glint of coldness flashed in Briana's eyes as she asked expressionlessly, "Has the nurse been found?"

"I checked the surveillance, the other party deliberately chose routes without surveillance after leaving the hospital. There was no trace of her in the surveillance footage at all."

Briana nodded, "I understand."

Even if she couldn't catch that nurse, she could guess who drugged Norma!

Apart from Isaac, there couldn't have been a second person!

"What do we do now?"

"First, strengthen the guard at Norma's door. How are you doing with the preparation of the antidote ingredients?"

Wyatt fell silent for a moment, his expression becoming somewhat solemn.

“Everything was basically ready, but one item had just run out. Only the master’s pharmacy had it, so I needed to go back once.”

As Wyatt’s words fell, both of them fell silent.

It was not the time to return to Medical Valley. If we went back, it would mean breaking the rules of Medical Valley.

Chapter 409

Once the rules of Medical Valley were broken, punishment would be incurred, and no one could escape.

Four years ago, a senior fellow broke the rules for his family. Although his family was eventually saved, the senior fellow died of hematemesis a month later. Therefore, no one dared to break the rules of Medical Valley ever since.

“Norma, I can’t leave here, it seems I have to trouble you, brother, to make a trip to Faywick to send a message to the master, to see if he can have someone deliver the medicine,”

Wyatt was silent for a few seconds, then nodded, “That’s not a bad idea. If all goes well, I should be back in two days.”

“Um, you’ve worked hard!”

After Wyatt left, Briana returned to Norma’s hospital room, deciding to stay with Norma until Wyatt returned, to prevent Norma from being harmed again.

If they had arrived a few minutes later today, Norma could not have been saved.

Thinking of this, Briana’s eyes were filled with coldness.

Bridenville, Isaac’s villa.

He sat on the genuine leather sofa in the living room, leisurely sipping red wine and began to speak, “The person who poisoned grandma at the hospital should have succeeded. I guess it won’t be long before we receive news of grandma’s death.”

Norma was now in a coma, and as soon as she died, the Harmony Villa would be his.

There was also the Yoder Group. As soon as the secrets of the core chips were leaked, the stock price began to plummet rapidly. When it fell to the bottom, he bought a large amount of it at the lowest price. The Yoder Group was then in his pocket!

Soon, Isaac’s phone started ringing.

Seeing it was Haseton’s number, a smug smile curled up at the corner of his mouth as he slid to answer the call.

“How about it? Has that old woman already died?”

“Mr... Mr. Yoder, the old lady... she’s not dead yet...”

The smile on Isaac's face froze. The next second, the wine glass fell to the ground, instantly shattering into pieces. The red wine spilled on the floor, its bright color resembling fresh blood.

"Trash!"

"Mr. Yoder.....I had already injected the poison into the old lady's body, but after Briana and Dr. Waylon went in, the old lady recovered in no time....."

Isaac didn't say anything more, he just hung up the phone, his eyes full of gloom.

Wyatt.....

Anyone who dared to sabotage his plan, regardless of whether they were a miracle doctor or not, had only one path – death!

He took out his phone and dialed a number, coldly saying, "Track down Wyatt's whereabouts. You have three days. I want to hear news of his death!"

Just after giving the order, a servant came over.

"Young Master, Maxim has returned, he is now at the Yoder Group."

A cold smirk tugged at the corner of Isaac's mouth as he said, "I suppose it's time for me to join the fun."

When he arrived at the Yoder Group, Maxim was in a meeting with the shareholders.

Ignoring Rayan's attempts to stop him, Isaac pushed open the conference room door, his expression icy as he said, "Mr. Yoder, under your management, the Yoder Group has made such a mistake. Shouldn't you resign?"

Maxim sat in the main seat, exuding a powerful oppressive aura even without speaking.

He looked at Isaac expressionlessly and said coldly, "If I remember correctly, it was your secretary who stole the company's secrets and leaked them. You should be the one to resign."

Isaac raised an eyebrow, as if he had just remembered something, and said with a smile, "I almost forgot if you hadn't mentioned it. But my secretary, Mr. Yoder, was assigned by you. It's impossible for him to become my man in such a short time, isn't it?"

Maxim's expression was icy cold as he said, word by word, "Ten minutes ago, the shareholders present unanimously agreed to terminate you. Please leave immediately."

Regarding the matter of being fired, Isaac wasn't surprised at all, he just stared into Maxim's eyes, cold as snow.

"Maxim, I will return," I said. "Next time I come back, I'll be sitting in your current position!"

Maxim was indifferent, not even giving him another glance, and simply continued the meeting.

Rayan looked at the pale-faced Isaac and said, "Isaac, please go ahead."

After seeing off Isaac, the meeting continued for over an hour before it ended.

When the shareholders walked out, each of them had a grave expression on their face. After all, the leakage of core secrets was a major blow to a company. If not handled properly, it could very likely lead to bankruptcy.

Maxim returned to the office, where a pile of pending documents had already accumulated on his desk, most of which were breach of contract documents against the Yoder Group.

He completely ignored it, pulling out his phone and dialing Briana's number.

However, after making several calls, they all showed that the phone was turned off.

He unconsciously furrowed his brow, immediately calling Rayan in

"Get in touch with someone from Haseton and ask where Briana is now!"

Soon, Rayan came back, only his face was extremely grave and ugly.

"Mr. Yoder, the old lady and Ms. Schneider were both missing!"

Chapter 410

An hour ago.

Briana was massaging Norma when she suddenly received a call from Wyatt.

"I just arrived in Faywick. It had been raining here for a while, and the road to the master's place had collapsed. It would take at least two days to clear. I guess I won't make it back to Haseton in time with the medicinal herbs!"

Briana furrowed her brow, and after a few seconds of silence, she said, "It seems we can only take grandma to Faywick."

Moreover, according to this timeline, there was not enough time to send a message. The only solution was to take Norma to Medical Valley.

There was a moment of silence on the other end of the phone, then Wyatt's somewhat low voice came through, "Are you sure you really want to do this?"

Wyatt didn't really want Briana to bring Norma along, because in his heart, Briana was much more important to him than Norma, who was halfway into the grave.

Briana gave a bitter smile, "I had no choice."

"I advised you to reconsider, after all, you were still young. I didn't want you to sacrifice your life for others."

Briana lowered her gaze, slowly saying, "We don't know what that punishment is, I might not necessarily die, but if I don't take grandma to Medical Valley, she will undoubtedly die."

Hearing this, Wyatt knew he couldn't persuade her, so he could only sigh.

"Alright, I couldn't persuade you, I'll be waiting for you in Faywick."

After hanging up the phone, Briana was about to call Maxim to clarify the matter when she suddenly noticed that something was off with Norma.

Her face changed, she put down her phone and immediately checked Norma's physical condition.

Two minutes later, her face became incredibly gloomy.

It turned out that Isaac had not only put poppy in the chicken soup, but also poisoned Norma with another rare chronic poison, which was why her body deteriorated so quickly.

The poison was extremely covert, as it had not spread before, which was why Briana hadn't noticed it.

However... this poison was only produced in Country D, and only a few people could get access to it. Basically, it was controlled by the Mercenary League and the Mafia. How could Isaac get it?

Thinking of the years when Isaac suddenly disappeared, Briana's eyes turned icy cold.

She immediately sent a message to Robin, asking him to look into Isaac's experiences during the years he was missing.

Norma's pulse was stabilized first, and Briana was preparing to take Norma away. Just as she was about to walk towards the door of the ward, the door was suddenly pushed open. A man in a black suit walked in, carrying a food box.

"Ms. Schneider, I came to bring you lunch."

The moment Briana took the food box from his hand, a dagger suddenly appeared in his hand, viciously attacking her.

Her face changed color and she quickly retreated to dodge the opponent's attack.

The man sneered, raising his dagger and continuing to advance. The two began to fight in the hospital room.

The noise inside was immediately heard by the people outside, and another man in a black suit also came in to attack Briana.

Briana's expression was icy cold, her movements sped up considerably, and her techniques gradually became more ruthless.

Ten minutes later, Briana tied up the two unconscious men with a bedsheet and threw them into the bathroom. She wanted to call

Maxim, but found that her phone had been broken in the fight.

It seemed that Maxim had Isaac's people under him.

If Norma was not relocated promptly, there would definitely be many more assassinations like this in the future.

Thinking of this, Briana almost immediately made a decision in her heart – to tell Maxim after settling Norma down.

She found a wheelchair, put on hats and masks for Norma and herself, and left the hospital from the back door.

Soon, Maxim's subordinates had sent over the surveillance footage of Briana's departure.

After watching the surveillance, Maxim's face turned incredibly ugly.

Why had Briana suddenly taken Norma away and even killed her own two subordinates?

His expression was icy as he said, word by word, "Investigate. We must find out where she went!"
