The awkwardness in my room after Daniel left made me wonder why he was still here. Didn't they say he was only here for a short time and only here for the meeting?

I thought he left....

I looked at him as he looked around my room and stood in front of the cabinet, where I had just placed four picture frames, two of me and my family, one of me with my brother and the last one of myself at my medical school graduation.

He picked up my graduation photo and stared at it before looking back at me.

"Can I have this?" His words surprised me.

My eyebrows stood up curiously "What for?" I asked suspiciously.

"If I ever miss you so I can look at you" He replied which made me almost choke on my own saliva.

What did he say?!

"Don't joke" I snorted rudely and tried to take my picture from his hand, but failed because he raised his hand higher.

D*mn, I didn't even reach his shoulder!!!

What did he eat to have such a huge body?! I thought irritably. "You're still angry"

It was not a question but a statement that came out of his mouth.

Duh...

I snorted back at him, as if he didn't know the reason why I was angry with him.

Realizing that I was standing too close to him, I tried to back away but his left hand, which was not holding my photo, deftly, got behind me and held me away.

Right now I'm very grateful for not having my wolf, because I can act like this towards him, I know that sometimes having a wolf can make you stu**d and easy to forgive your mate even though he has done unforgivable things.

"What is this, my king?" I ventured to ask what he meant by this gesture and everything "Why are you suddenly acting like someone who wants his mate?"

He just looked at me without saying anything.

To my surprise he let out a long breath before resting his head on my shoulder.

What the....

I tried to restrain myself even though he must have heard the pounding of my heart at this moment.

His actions confused me...

For 5 years I had to endure the pain of being rejected and forced myself to move on with my life.

Yet he easily came and acted as if the past 5 years never existed. "I'm sorry."

I almost didn't hear the words because he spoke so quietly, but I heard them.

However, it didn't make me melt, but the events of the 5 years that I felt were seen in my eyes.

When I saw him with that woman...

When they were dancing, the way he smiled at her...

When he said that I wasn't for him, because he didn't need a woman who didn't have a wolf like me...

And my parents' confusion when I told them that I wanted to study medicine in the human world, far away from home and left a week later to heal the pain of rejection alone.

It was all enough to make me realize and push him away.

From his surprised look he probably didn't expect me to push him away, maybe he thought his apology would melt me.

No, I wouldn't trust him that easily.

"One week..."

Huh?

I turned my head towards him and was met with his gaze locked on me.

"I'm glad you're a doctor here, but I'll only give you one week before I pick you up" His tone changed and now he sounded cold as he spoke to me.

Is he serious?!

"Very funny!!" I replied sarcastically and made him raise his eyebrows with an emotion that I knew was anger.

He folded his arms across his chest and I couldn't help but notice his huge muscles before looking back into his eyes. D*mn him and his hot body!

Focus, Gwen.

"Do you see me laughing, my dear?" He said coldly with a clear aura of anger.

My dear, my a*s!

Why is he angry?!

I should be the one angry!!

And it made me laugh, not because it was funny but because I was annoyed.

"Yes, very funny" I said between laughs and he looked at me with a very sharp gaze but said nothing as if waiting for me to continue my conversation.

I took a deep breath to calm myself down a little "What makes you think I want to be your mate now? That I will easily come with you to your palace to become your puppet?" If earlier he only looked angry, this time he looked dangerous with obvious anger.

I knew challenging an Alpha wouldn't end well for me, especially since he's the Alpha King.

After I said that I wouldn't go along with him that easily, he just let out a long heavy sigh before leaving.

As I opened my office door after a busy day at the clinic, I was surprised to see two women standing next to my office door.

"Who are you guys?"

They bowed respectfully "We are your bodyguards, my queen" replied one of the women who has darker skinned and bald "I am Alexa and she is El, we are assigned by the king as the queen's bodyguards to always protect the queen while outside the palace" she replied and surprised me.

My bodyguards?!

Is he serious?!

not

I thought I'd die right then and there for challenging him, expecting that he'd put two bodyguards to follow me around while I'm in my father's town.

"I don't need a bodyguard" I quickly pointed out and dismissed them.

"Forgive us, we only want to protect you, my queen" replied the woman with short hair who was still bowing respectfully, El.

Whispers were heard around me and I knew by now that everyone must know who the Alpha king's mate was that he claimed last night.

D*mn it!

I took out my phone and searched for his phone number.

I dialed his number and jumped a little when he picked up before the first ring ending.

'Am I dreaming? You called! Why does he sound happy that I called him?!

Don't believe it, Gwen, it's a trick!!!

I took a deep breath to calm myself down and saw my two bodyguards looking at me with worried eyes.

Do they really want to protect me?

'Come to my hotel, we'll talk there...'

Click.

What?! He hung up after speaking without waiting for my words?!

D*mn it!

He knew that I'd be upset about this bodyguard thing!!

PING...

He sent the details of the hotel.

PING... Another message

'I'll wait'

D*mn it!

What kind of game is he playing?!
