Chapter 1021 It'S A Group Favorite (1)

At eight o'clock in the morning, Jocelyn's eyes opened again in a daze.

Although she had fallen asleep with difficulty earlier, she had been in a light sleep.

The cerebral cortex, which is always excited, goes back and forth, all dreaming.

This one night, she had many, many dreams.

But now she wake up and can't even remember.

She only remember a dream in which it seemed as if two of her children had survived.

She even saw in her dreams what those two children would look like when they grew up.

Two children were cute and soft, with a handsome brother and beautiful sister.

A combination of all the best things about both her and Noah.

Opening her eyes and realising that it was all a dream created more than disappointment in her heart at this moment.

At this moment, Noah was sitting on the edge of the bed, looking at her with a gentle face and gently stroking her hair.

His face was full of exhaustion.

Just looking at it, Jocelyn felt her heart ache.

Moving her sore arm slightly, Jocelyn asked, "Didn't you rest? Why you look so tired?"

Noah caressed her face and said, "I couldn't sleep for fear of something unexpected happening to you and the children."

Hearing these words, Jocelyn suddenly felt her heart melting once again.

Compared to most men, Noah is, without a doubt, the most Zoe and considerate one.

This man, who is cold and unfeeling in front of outsiders, is a different person when it comes to her and the children.

He gets full marks both as a husband and as a dad.

Ryan, "Jocelyn, Rosa and I also prepared a lot of tonic products for you to promote postpartum recovery, when the time comes, let mum stew for you."

Harry, "I also have it here, I have bird's nest here, and all kinds of tonic medicine, all of which I bought from my friend at great cost, and which cannot be seen on the market. Top quality treasures."

The two bedside tables are filled to the brim with all sorts of supplements.

At this moment, Jocelyn felt like she was firmly surrounded by happiness.

"Thank you." Jocelyn smiled.

The crowd then shook their heads and said you're welcome.

Immediately afterwards, Allie added, "Jocelyn, next, I will take care of you closely, but in order to avoid me not serving perfectly, I will also arrange a few nannies for you, I will lead and they will assist."

"I have long found the nanny in advance, this afternoon, they can come over." Allie added.

The fact that Allie had found a nanny long ago was known to her.

It was mentioned before by Noah.

She also knew that Allie was looking for a total of ten nannies.

The monthly salary for each person is 200, 000.

These nannies are all gold medalists from high class maternity centres around the country and have their own exclusive tips on postnatal recovery and care, which are not easy to get with money.

Jocelyn nodded slightly, "Thank you, mum, since they are professional, let them accompany me, you go busy with your own business, don't work too hard for me."

Allie smiled, but immediately shook her head, with a firm face said, "I must personally do it, as a mother-in-law, I must be in charge of recuperation of my daughter-in-law."

Allen said, "In fact, I think, let Jocelyn back to our home to recuperate, I also found several gold medal nannies. Connie recently has no work, she can serve with me."

Allie's gaze, however, became even more determined, "No, none of you will snatch it from me, I just want to take care of my Jocelyn myself."

At these words, Connie's hands, which were hanging at her side, immediately clenched into fists.

Just as, her fists unclenched.

All this did not intrude on Jocelyn's vision.

"Jocelyn, have you washed up yet? I wait for you to wash up?" Connie continued to play gentle.

Jocelyn shook her head, "Thanks."

Next, Connie carefully waited for Jocelyn to wash up, while on the other hand, inside the ultra-preemie care room, a group of adults wearing isolation suits and performing all the sterilization procedures, followed Noah around to the children.

The two children, at this moment, were still asleep, and at a glance, still looked red and crumpled.

Two little children, at a glance, look weak and pitiful and helpless.

Just looking at it makes they want to pamper them.

The moment they looked at the two children, all of them involuntarily reddened their eyes.

Especially Allie, tears involuntarily fell, "God, my good grandson, good granddaughter, only so small, have to bear so many tubes, monitoring instruments, really too difficult. "

Looking at these two children, whose bodies were covered with tubes and connected to various monitoring devices, Allie's heart ached.

And aside, Scott, as well as Allen, could not help but shed tears.

Even these two men, who had fought all their lives in the mall, could not stand it at this moment.

None of them dared to think how much pain the two children must be in at this moment.

And most importantly, even if they endure the pain, they may not, indeed, survive.

This fact makes it all the more desperate.

And aside, Noah's face was just as grave at this point.

The atmosphere in the large guardianship room, all of a sudden, dropped, even the air seemed to freeze along with it.

"Good grandson, good granddaughter, you must live well, grandma wants to hug you." Allie added.

Allie like this, Scott became even more

The fans are one more crazy than the other.

The situation in front of him gave Ryan a headache.

However, he had experienced such scenes countless times long ago and was inwardly used to seeing it.

The same goes for Rosa on the passenger side.

Ryan helplessly pinched his brow, and then started the car and honked the horn a few times towards the crowd.

But to no avail.

Ryan shook his head helplessly and called Paige to explain the situation.

Ryan then hung up the phone and waited for help.

Once he got out of the car, or opened the window, the consequences are unthinkable.

Looking at Allie's reaction, Jocelyn became curious, "Mom, what do you want to say?"

Allie said, "Nothing, I just want to say to you, relax, don't think too much, those two children will be fine."

Although she said this to reassure Jocelyn, in her heart, she was anxious about the situation of two children.

"Noah has already informed your grandfather, and he will come over in a while." Allie added.

"Okay. I'll relax, and you don't think too much about it." Jocelyn said gently.

Jocelyn was just paying lip service too.

Thinking about the situation of her two children is a mess.

There was little else she could do in the face of such a situation.

Right now, the hospital's approach is the best, bar none.

All they can do is to just do their best.

These two children, who had been in her womb for more than six whole months, to whom she was linked by blood, day and night, had long since developed a deep affection.

She really dreaded to think what would become of her if she lost them.

It was connected to the most vulnerable part of her heart.

With it gone, she would, probably, have lost half her life as well.

Thinking of this Jocelyn once again, could not help but remember, the two children, covered with tubes, lying inside the incubator, that weak and pitiful and helpless look.

They are so young, why on earth do they have to suffer all this pain?

Why is it that other people's children can be born safely, but not hers?

The more she thinks about it, the worse Jocelyn's mood gets.

Allie saw Jocelyn's inner activity, but she didn't say much, she just continued to caress Jocelyn's face and said, "Do you want to eat anything?"

A bodyguard, panting, stood in the doorway with a panicked look at Jocelyn and Noah.

Noah frowned deeply and stood up, "What?"

Jocelyn and Allie, on the other hand, saw that, and inwardly, an endless sense of insecurity rose up.

"The children are missing, and now we have blocked off the entire hospital exit."

The bodyguard spoke with a trembling voice.

Hearing this, Jocelyn instantly felt like her whole world had collapsed.

The same goes for both Noah and Allie.

None of them could believe their ears.

The security measures on their entire floor are now made practically airtight.

It's mind-boggling that a child can disappear in such a situation.

Panicked to the extreme, Jocelyn instantly got out of bed regardless and looked at the bodyguard and asked, "What? My babies are gone? What do you mean they're gone? Why didn't you keep an eye on them?"

The wound was stretched and it was a pain that tore at the heart.

At this moment, just standing here, Jocelyn immediately felt as if her whole body was weak and about to collapse.

She could even clearly feel that the wound was splitting open.

Warm blood kept pouring out.

Soon, her clothes were wet with blood.

Seeing this scene, Allie and Noah immediately panicked.

Noah then stepped forward, picked Jocelyn up and placed her on the bed, then pressed the call button and explained the situation to the nurse.

Her daughter-in-law, had only just given birth, was faced with two consecutive blows.

First, the children, who had been so painstakingly conceived for over six months, had tubes all over bodies and it was impossible to determine whether they would live or die.

They were fragile to the core, but they suddenly disappeared.

The more Allie thought about it, the more her heart ached for Jocelyn .

"Which one of you is the murderer who did this to two children so young, are you really not afraid of the wrath of God? If my daughter-in-law, my grandson and my granddaughter hurt because of this, I will make sure that you will not get away with it."

Allie gritted her teeth and said, her hands hanging at her side, unconsciously clenched into fists.

And at that moment, Jocelyn's heart was like death.

She was full of despair and anxiety.

Two children that young could die at any time, even if they are placed in a holding tank like this.

Not to mention being so tossed around.

If it was indeed the Lena fox who took the children, the children would have died without waiting for the Lena fox to actually do it.

Anyway, no matter what, both children are in a bad way.

The more she thinks about it, the sadder Jocelyn's heart became.

But, no matter what, she didn't want to give up hope and still wanted to hold on to the pretensions, telling herself that maybe, if they found the babies in time, the babies would survive?

At this moment, Jocelyn felt like her life had been pushed from the top of the highest mountain to the ground, all at once.

Her world was full of despair.

The doctor continued to work on the stitches, even before the anesthetic was administered because of the urgency of the situation.

The skin of the abdomen, as if torn to shreds, stung with pain.

"In the next words, make sure you keep an eye on Miss Murphy and don't let her continue her activities."

"The danger of that, if the wound is repeatedly torn up, is more than she can bear."

"And make sure she takes care to regulate herself emotionally, otherwise it will affect her recovery."

"In severe cases, it can even lead to severe and even life-threatening inflammation of the body's wounds."

The doctor's face was full of seriousness, and when he finished he let out a long, helpless sigh.

She has worked in hospitals for twenty years and has seen all kinds of serious things.

But this was the first time she had seen something like what was happening in front of her.

Allie listened carefully to the whole thing while shedding tears, and then took it firmly to heart.

Wiping away her tears, Allie looked at the doctor and said, "I know, thank you, doctor.."

The doctor then nodded respectfully.

Immediately afterwards, the doctor took the lead and left the ward.

Allie, on the other hand, wiped her tears once again and followed the doctor's footsteps, walking out of the ward together.

Closing the door of the ward, Allie looked at the doctor and said in a low voice, "My daughter-in-law's condition really won't work to continue like this. You're right, it's too dangerous, why don't we take extraordinary measures? "

"What do you mean?" The doctor's eyes were full of inquiry.

"Give her a sedative shot and let her sleep well, her emotions will calm down." Allie added, "If you can."

The doctor thought deeply for a few seconds, and then said, "Okay."

At the sound of her words, Allie immediately breathed a sigh of relief.

Afterwards, Allie went straight back to the ward.

Allen, who was sitting inside the living room, sorting out the baby clothes he had just bought with Connie, received a call from Allie.

Allie informed Allen over the phone of what was happening to Jocelyn now.

After hearing the news, Allen was completely dumbfounded.

He leaned straight back against the sofa, completely helpless, panting.

Connie, after hearing Allie's words, was shocked.

Did it do that?

It must be.

Who else could it be that could do this in such a short time?

When she thought of this, the hands hanging at her side of Connie immediately trembled slightly.

And looking at Allen's sad and upset look, Connie's hands trembled even more.

Immediately afterwards, her eyes, too, reddened.

"Honey, you don't have to be like this, I'm sure the children will be recovered." Connie said in a soft, comforting voice.

Allen breathed hard a few times, and then gently stroked his heart position and said, "Connie, I have to go to the hospital to see Jocelyn right now."

Connie nodded.

Allie couldn't believe her ears.
At this moment, Allie only felt that her brain kept buzzing and her eyes went blank.
Just now, the person she was talking to on the phone is already gone?
And it's still because of that phone call from her.
Apart from the shock and grief, Allie's heart was also filled with guilt.
She really regretted that she told Allen about it.

If she didn't say anything, did that mean that Allen will be fine?

How would she go about explaining to Jocelyn when she woke up?

This time, Allen died because of her, Allie.

She really deserves to die! Damn it!

Thinking of this, Allie instantly gave herself two hard slaps.

Why on earth did she make that call, and why did she do it?

At the time, she felt that this was a situation in which Allen, as the child's grandfather and Jocelyn's father, had the right to know the truth.

And even if she doesn't say anything, Allen will know if he comes down to see the babies later.

Now that she thinks about it, she really didn't think too much of that idea at the time.

Wouldn't it have ended differently if, for example, she had chosen to hide it, desperately, and covered it up hard?

What should she do?

What exactly should I do?
