"Okay, Noah, I think you're right. But what if Jocelyn finds out afterwards and complains about us?" Allie added.

Noah continued to frown deeply, complicated emotions dense under his eyes, "I'd rather her complain about me than have her emotionally collapse."

By now, Jocelyn was emotionally devastated.

It would certainly be worse if she knew about it.

When the time comes, in case Jocelyn can't handle the mental stimulation, something big might happen.

He will not allow this to happen.

Even if Jocelyn would hate him, she would never allow it.

He has to protect his woman.

Allie smiled and nodded approvingly, "Okay, Noah I'll listen to you, what should we do next?"

Noah frowned deeply, "The body first sent to the funeral home, but, cremation procedures to wait for a while. First autopsy it."

At these words, a flash of consternation immediately passed under Allie's eyes, "Do you suspect that there is something else going on here?"

Noah once again frowned deeply, "Just in case."

It's always good to find out when people die.

He always thought it seemed a bit fishy that Allen had died so easily.

And Allie immediately nodded, "Okay, I know, just do as you say."

Noah, "Next, you don't have to worry about it, just leave it to me."

Allie, "Okay, but how am I going to face Jocelyn next if Jocelyn wakes up, I feel like I indirectly killed your father-in-law."

Noah, "You should do as you like, do not show abnormal appearance, as to whether it is because of you or not, it is too early to judge all this."

Whether it is Flento City or the nameless island where Ghost Face is located.

The sky was all covered with dark clouds and gloomy.

After about five minutes had passed, Noah suddenly felt that a gust of wind had risen from the house.

Immediately afterwards, the air was filled with an even stronger and stranger smell.

The bizarre image made Noah look around subconsciously.

But all around, there was nothing but a strange smelling gale.

The gale, which lasted for about five minutes, disappeared.

In an instant, the world was once again warm and molten.

All this has once again refreshed Noah's perception.

He also became increasingly curious as to what Ghost Face was actually doing up there.

About half an hour later, inside the home, a gust of wind once again started.

This gust of wind still carries a strong and strange smell.

This time, the lights inside the home suddenly went out.

All over the world, darkness reigns.

Noah immediately looked around curiously again, but still could not see anything.

This went on, once again, for five minutes.

Five minutes later all was quiet.

The lights in the house come on again.

The world is once again quiet and warm.

Everything is like a dream, spiritual and metaphysical.

At this point a tinkling sound began upstairs.

It is as if a myriad of bells are constantly swaying.

Chapter 1033 Dazzling Golden Light

At that moment, the two children, clearly without anything on their bodies for support, were hanging in mid-air.

The tubes in the children's bodies are completely gone, yet they look better than those born at full term.
A golden glow was emanating from them all.

The whole world was illuminated by them as if it were daylight.

The light was so blinding that Noah and Ghost Face couldn't bear to look at it after a while.

And it was at this moment that the light from the two children suddenly went out.

In the next second, they were natural, flying in front of the pair.

The two then subconsciously reached out and caught them.

At this instant, both Noah and Ghost Face's eyes were filled with consternation.

Ghost Face did not say anything, but held the girl, and sat down on the floor, while carefully taking the child's pulse.

After the pulse was taken, the shock in Ghost Face's eyes deepened.

"What's wrong?" Noah asked.

Ghost Face then stood up and said, "This child, with a pulse better than the average full term born child, is in perfect health and will not need, to live in an incubator at all in the future or even at all need any medicine anymore."

"Not only that, but I also felt, in these two children a very strong spiritual power. I think they are probably like this because of the spiritual power protecting their bodies." Ghost Face added.

Hearing these words, a flash of consternation once again flashed under Noah's eyes, "What?"

Ghost Face nodded, "It's true. it's spiritual power and it's not low."

Noah, "Then you look at this one boy."

Ghost Face did not say anything, but silently put his fingertips on the boy's wrist, and seriously checked the boy's pulse.

Both of their features are also more refined than before.
No matter how you look at it, the two children look exactly alike.
Their complexion is like snow, and their skin, all over, is like that of a lychee in its shell.
Looking at it this way now, these two children combine all the best of him and Jocelyn.
At this moment they were both still asleep, not crying, not fussing, breathing evenly, and just looking at them like this made him feel his heart melting.
And his feelings for them deepened a lot in his heart.
The room was well heated and they were both just wrapped in, what was originally, a thin white quilt.
But it was already hot and sweaty.
Noah carefully took their two cute little hands out from inside the quilt.
And it was at this time that Noah discovered, even more strangely, the phenomenon.
On the back of the left hand of both children, a red rose birthmark appears.
The birthmark and the rose are identical.
It is even more restored and realistic than the tattooed ones.
Vaguely, he also saw, on those two flowers, a golden glow lingering.
Only that light, which lasted for about a few seconds, immediately disappeared.
What's the deal with this?
Noah looked at the two rose birthmarks and was puzzled.
About half an hour later, Ghost Face walked down the stairs.
Ghost Face had changed his clothes, a black tangled cotton suit.

Ghost Face, however, did not answer positively and changed the subject, "The girl is called Madeline and the boy is called Lawrence."

These are two names that Noah likes a lot.

He then said, "Okay."

Ghost Face smiled contentedly before picking up his pace.

Soon, Noah arrived at the floor where Jocelyn's ward was located, with the two children, and Ghost Face.

At this moment, the whole floor inside was still full of bodyguards.

All the bodyguards were shocked when they saw Noah appear with Ghost Face, and two children.

But they didn't dare to ask a single word, not even a single question.

They just stare at each other frantically.

Obviously the police were here just now investigating the situation, obviously the police officers had just said that the children had not been found.

How could it be that at this moment, Noah had appeared with two children and a strangely dressed masked man?

A nurse, at once, stepped forward and looked respectfully at Noah and said, "Mr. Mason... now hurry up and get the children into the custody room. I will contact the doctor immediately."

And immediately afterwards, the nurse turned her attention once again to the children in the arms of Noah and Ghost Face.

The moment she saw it up close, the nurse was outright stunned, her eyes wide.

"How have these two children become so much better looking? Also, how come they feel fatter than before? Are these still the same two kids?" The nurse let out a shocked cry.

At this moment, she really couldn't believe her eyes, "And how come the tubes on them disappeared?"

She seriously doubted that these were not the two children.

But looking at it more carefully, she thought it was.

Because, if she looked closely, they both still looked pretty much the same in profile, just more refined and rounded.

As they spoke, the eyes of two small, jade-like figures opened in unison.
Both siblings have large eyes with dark pupils with waves of light under them.
With just one glance, the hearts of Allie and Noah were mollified.
The next moment the two little children, at the same time, squeezed out a big smile.
This smile moreover, made them completely defenceless.
Allie suddenly became even more excited, the smile at the corner of her mouth, more brilliant, she carefully hugged them and said, "They actually smiled. This is really amazing, isn't it? This is sure they are still the newly born frail children?"
As they spoke, the two little children, at the same time, blinked their big eyes towards Allie.
Their eyes seemed to speak, with a different kind of luster and laughter underneath them, making Allie completely unable to close her mouth.
In her mind, she exclaimed cuteness!
It's really too cute.
Noah smiled at them before he walked over to Jocelyn and sat down beside her, gently caressing her gentle sleeping face and asking, "How is Jocelyn? Was she okay this afternoon?"
Upon hearing this, Allie immediately let out a long sigh, "What else can I do, I must be heartbroken. I had the doctor sedate her in order to calm her down and stop doing extreme things. I guess it will take another an hour or two before she wakes up."
After saying this, Allie once again let out a long sigh.
Noah felt his heart ached.

The good thing is that the children are now back.

She can be in a better mood if she wakes up.

"These two children carry a very strong aura, and the aura will not only protect themselves, but also their mother. So, Miss Murphy is fine, it should be because of this."

Once again, Ghost Face spoke truthfully.

Allie became even more confused as she listened, "What aura? Is it really a metaphysical fantasy novel being written now?"

She really thought that it was all incredible.

It was even doubtful whether the man was a fraud or not.

But when she thought about what had happened to her wonderful pair of grandchildren, she thought, again, it seemed really metaphysical.

What this man said really seemed to make quite a bit of sense.

Could it be that those things written in metaphysical novels actually do exist in reality?

That's incredible, isn't it?

Noah did not speak, but listened in silence, allowing Ghost Face to open his mouth and say anything.

Ghost Face once again looked at Allie and explained, "Yes, it's the aura. These two children, not ordinary children, are carrying aura, but when they were in their mother's womb, the aura was very low, not as so strong, so they weren't able to fully resist this poison."

"So they came down to this world early." said Ghost Face again.

"This is unbelievable, what happens to people who have aura? Can they cultivate to become gods in the future?" Allie asked.

Ghost Face, "Yes."

Allie immediately widened her eyes once again, "You said is really true, right? It's not a lie?"

Noah looked at Allie lightly and explained seriously, "What he said is true, wait for me to tell you in detail later, first listen to him finish."

"As soon as he heard about this, he just passed away. Now Noah is suspecting that the death of the in-laws is not that simple."

"Exactly."

For a moment, Allie was frazzled, not knowing how to explain.

And Jocelyn was completely devastated.

She subconsciously clutched the sheets and kept weeping, as if her chest was a boiler under pressure and about to explode.

At this moment, she felt like she was really going to die.

Her father was the most important person to her, apart from Noah, and the children.

It was also the person who loved her the most in this world, apart from Noah.

More than that, he is the only family she has left.

She hadn't even had a chance to do her filial duty properly before he died.

And it was so sudden.

How was she supposed to take it?

During the day, her father knew about her premature birth and came to the hospital with his eyes wide open to see her watching the babies.

She was even shushed and talked to her in many, many ways.

But then night falls and someone tells her that her father is gone?

A life is so fragile.

How could she have imagined that she would see her father for the last time during the day, when she saw him.

If she had known this was the case, she would have dragged her father to talk and care for him longer at that time.

And not, so easily, let him go.

"Look at the state you're in, can you?" Noah's eyes were full of heartache, "Jocelyn, I know it's hard for you, I empathize with you, but you wait first, just for one night, when your wound grows better tomorrow, I will take you to see your father, okay?"

She is only on the first day of her caesarean section and strictly forbidden to get out of bed.

What's more, the wound on the stomach had only just been split open and re-stitched.

How could he bear this?

Such Jocelyn makes his heart ache.

He is willing to do anything as long as Jocelyn is happy.

Anything, as long as it's not the matter at hand.

Jocelyn looked at Noah with a hollow and desperate gaze and choked, "Honey, my heart hurts. I really want to see my dad right away."

At this moment, for the first time, Jocelyn wished she had a pair of wings.

Immediately fly to her father's side.

She really couldn't help herself.

She is well aware that she is not fit to move around at the moment.

The wound had only just been stitched up.

If it moves, it will shatter.

But she still wanted it so badly.

Intense grief that can't be stopped from flowing out.

It was like a tsunami that easily swallowed her up and left her breathless.

She really couldn't accept the reality before her.

"I had thought that my dad could live a long, long time, or at least be with me, for another ten or twenty years."

"I always thought we had a lot more time, so even though we lived close, I wouldn't go home to see him every day."

"I always felt that there was a long time ahead and many, many more opportunities to see each other."

Ghost Face nodded, "I was going to, but when you woke up and made a scene like that, I didn't leave right away."

Jocelyn immediately put her eyes on Noah's face, "You take Ghost Face, don't worry, I won't make a scene."

There are more important things to do at the moment.

She couldn't make a scene.

She needs to make sure it's all right in a hurry.

Noah then placed his gaze on Ghost Face's face, "Do you still have your instantaneous scroll? I'll tell you the address and you teleport there?"

"An instantaneous scroll?" Allie's eyes were filled with consternation, "Are you sure this isn't a game? In the real world, there's actually this?"

As a veteran internet addicted old lady, Allie knew all too well the magic of the game's instant scrolls.

And in reality, could it actually be there?

As a child, she had always dreamed of having such a scroll.

That way, one can, on one's own, go wherever one wants to go.

Ghost Face faintly glanced at her, but put his gaze on Noah's face again, "No more, used up, where do I have that much? Besides that thing, it was given to me by someone else."

Noah, "Then I will take you there myself."

Ghost Face nodded again.

Even though Allie still had a thousand questions in her heart.

But seeing as they both had particularly important things to do, she held back.

So far, no one has answered the question about their own instantaneous scrolls either.

Soon, Ghost Face carefully placed the boy beside Jocelyn.

The moment the carved boy was placed next to Jocelyn, Jocelyn smelt a faint, characteristic body scent of a baby.

The little boy had stopped crying by now, but his long eyelashes were still stained with teardrops.
