Chapter 11 Forty Million

"Rushing to be abused." Jocelyn laughed before silently replying, "She is willing to."

Gloria emailed back in almost seconds, "Really? Can you give me your mobile number and we'll talk on the phone."

Jocelyn hooked her lips and quickly sent Paige's mobile phone number.

In the next second, Gloria's phone called in.

Seeing this, Jocelyn immediately got up with the phone and greeted everyone, before quickly walking out the door, leaning lazily against the wall and pressing answer, "Hello."

She purposely changed to a domineering voice, which was a far cry from her original soft voice.

"Hello, are you Ryan's agent, Paige?"

"Yes, I'm very willing to do what you said, but I think thirty million is too low a price." With those words, Jocelyn picked up a strand of hair and kept twirling it around her finger.

"Then thirty-five million, do you think it's a good deal?"

"But the ones who have come to us recently to endorse properties for Ryan are starting at forty million." Jocelyn added.

"Then forty million!" Gloria responded.

"Done."

"Really? Then how about we sign tomorrow morning at eight o'clock? I'll send you the signing location later on." Gloria's voice was full of joy.

"Okay." The words fell, and the corners of her mouth curled up in a satisfied curve.

On the other side of the phone, Gloria heard the word "yes" on the other side and cheered inwardly!

Although the money was a bit more, but it didn't matter, she could use her own savings to fill it in.

But there was no answer.

After calling several times in a row, the phone was actually turned off.

With a stomach full of anger and nowhere to vent it, Gloria felt like he was going crazy.

Why did he choose 10 million instead of 40 million? Did he have an axe to grind with money?

Or did he have his eye on Jocelyn? Thinking of this, she instantly burned with jealousy and her face darkened to the extreme.

But very quickly, she denied her opinion again. How could Ryan possibly take fancy on Jocelyn, and there were various beauties in the entertainment industry.

"What the hell is going on here!!!" Gloria clenched her fist and muttered to herself.

The curses in Weibo private messages were getting fiercer and fiercer, Ryan's fans "Lovesick Tree" were cursing her one after another, she was already going crazy!

If she had known that this would be the result, she would never have flaunted herself in such a high-profile manner, thinking that she had said that about Jocelyn on WeChat yesterday, she felt ashamed.

The sound of the landline phone on the bedside table rang, and she instantly picked it up and put it to her ear.

"Get your ass down here!" Allen's cold voice filled her ears.

His voice was so loud that it scared her and made her shiver subconsciously.

Without daring to reply, she hung up the phone straight away, washed up warily and changed into a white housecoat.

Gloria knew she was dead.

But in just a few days, this was already the second time she had been embarrassed on Weibo.

She knew her dad wouldn't let her off the hook, and she didn't really want to go down there.

"Ah! Pissed me off!" As soon as the words left her mouth, Gloria grabbed the pillow beside her like crazy and threw it on the ground fiercely.

Jocelyn went upstairs to change her clothes and put on a light make-up, then she drove her sports car directly to the downstairs of X Entertainment.

X Entertainment was located in one of the most prosperous areas of downtown.

The building's exterior had smooth lines and a very stylish and artistic feel.

The walls are entirely made of glass and are almost translucent.

The building has sixteen floors in total, twelve upstairs and four downstairs.

The training, living and recording of X Entertainment's artists and trainees are all housed in this building.

As soon as Jocelyn got out of the car, she quickly entered the building.

A light blue professional suit with a white shirt and white high heels, she was gentle and clear with a touch of competence.

Taking the special lift, Jocelyn made her way to the Chairman's office on the top floor.

Just as she sat down, Paige walked in with a large pile of documents in her arms, knocking on the door.

She directly placed all the documents on the table and said, "In the past two days, there were two hundred people who came to our company to interview for trainee, I picked fifty of them with good conditions. Take a look, sign them if there is no problem."

"If this trend continues, I estimate that by the time our one-month recruitment period is over, we can have a few hundred more people in our company." Paige said.

"Well, we'll see later." Jocelyn said.

"Miss Murphy, your sister was probably screwed by your father today, right?" Paige asked with interest, and then went around to Jocelyn, moved a chair, and sat down.

"Yes." said Jocelyn, "it's exactly as we imagined."

"You really do know Gloria well. You said she'd show off after she heard I was interested in signing, and sure enough she did."

"With a top stream like Ryan, this kind of news only needs to be known by one person and spoken about, then it will attract huge attention and top the hot search." Paige had a smile on her face, it was all simply too funny.

Jocelyn smiled lightly and said, "You cooperated well with me, Paige. I've told you many times that in private, you can call me Jocelyn."

He seemed to carry a light of his own, where he was, that light would follow him.
Under the cover of that light, everyone was automatically reduced to a background wall.

He was wearing a casual black shirt, black trousers and black casual shoes, with the cuffs of his shirt slightly rolled upwards and the three buttons on his collar naturally open, lazy but with a bit of sexiness.

Even though there were beautiful women around and the atmosphere was hot, it still couldn't melt his appalling coldness.

He was like a star in the sky, bright and dazzling, but not within the reach of mortals.

She had thought that she would never meet this man again, but she didn't expect to meet him again today.

Are all those people around him from the same gang?

Today was a party of the gang?

Nowadays, was everyone in that gang dress so decently?

Jocelyn wanted to get up and leave, but when she thought she hadn't done anything wrong to him, so why should she leave?

When she thought of this, she turned her head and waved towards the waiter and asked for the wine she wanted.

Just then, a young man with a brush cut came on stage.

He had a gangly air and his features were not particularly delicate, but together, they were extremely comfortable to look at.

Soon the dynamic music started again.

He began to dance to the rhythm. His dance was so tense that he seemed to glow when he danced.

What Jocelyn liked most was the look in his eyes, very resolute, with endless persistence and perseverance hidden within.

"How was it?" Paige asked.

"Let him come to our company as a trainee." Jocelyn's mouth curled into a satisfied smile.

"OK." Paige snapped her fingers with alacrity.

Chapter 15 Your Wife is so Fierce

In this instant, Jocelyn all but lost the gentle fairy look she had just now, and all over her body, she carried an appalling chill.

"Who are you pretending for?!" Jocelyn clutched the remaining half of the beer bottle in her hand and pointed at a few punks and questioned.

"You're finished! Brothers, go!" The next second a few punks took out their knives and swarmed over.

Jocelyn, however, did not panic and turned her head to exchange a glance with Paige before she began to wrestle with them using the kung fu she had learnt abroad over the years.

Immediately afterwards, Paige picked up a beer bottle and joined the fight.

Their movements were extremely clean and sharp, their bodies were as soft as if they were boneless, and in just under half a minute, the two punks were put down.

The people at Noah's table, except for him, were all stunned.

Abel wiped his eyes in shock, "Your wife and her friend are so bold."

Robert swallowed desperately, dumbfounded, "They are so fierce! But! I love it!!!"

Noah didn't say a word, he just coolly looked at the group of black-clad bodyguards at the table behind him and waved his hand.

The next second a dozen black-clothed men directly joined the melee.

The scene attracted countless eyes.

Seeing this, the bar manager rushed over with a group of security guards, ready to step forward to stop it.

However, when he passed by Abel, he yanked him back and looked at Noah, who was next to him in a murderous mood, "See who makes trouble here."

The moment the manager saw Noah, he immediately shivered, and then meekly waved his hand towards the security guards and left at light speed.

Because of the addition of their gang, in just a few seconds, those punks were put down en masse to the ground, crying out in pain.

Jocelyn looked at them with a gasp and said, "Thank you."

The group of men in black just bowed neatly towards her, but didn't say anything.

Abel walked over and gave a fierce kick towards one of the punks on the ground, before looking at the group of black-clothed men and saying, "Someone said

Robert immediately sucked in a cold breath in shock, "I was just trying to joke with him, how could this happen?"

Abel gave him a straightforward blank stare, "Help yourself."

His chest was hard and broad, and with her face pressed against it, she could clearly feel his strong, powerful heartbeat.

Jocelyn took a breath of cold air backwards, a face of embarrassment, "Actually you can slowly help me walk."

Noah, however, did not say a word, just walked out on his own.

The handsome man and the beautiful woman, everywhere they went, attracted countless people to turn back.

After leaving the door, Jocelyn looked at Noah's cold hard face and asked, "Don't you have injuries on your body? Is it okay to hold me like this? You put me down."

He had been injured just a few days ago, and that it was quite serious.

Holding her like this would have strained the wound, wouldn't it?

Noah ignored her, "Where's the car?"

Jocelyn quickly took her car keys out and unlocked it remotely at her sports car.

The red Maserati, not far away, had its lights flashing a few times.

Noah was still cool and calm, not saying a word as he carried her to the car.

He then was able to get into the car from the other side and then forcefully took her right foot up and placed it on his lap.

He turned on the lights in the car to take a closer look.

Her ankle was now red and swollen and the back of her foot was slightly puffy.

Warm fingers touched her skin, and a burst of electricity instantly passed through her body, her heartbeat unconsciously messing up.

"Are you really all right?" Jocelyn asked.

"So concerned about me?" Noah's eyebrows raised, and his gaze fell leisurely on her face, the deep eyes seemed to be able to look into the deepest part of one's heart.

She retracted her foot at that moment, took a deep breath, "You saved me, it's only right to care about you."

"Don't worry." He still said a few words.

He then silently started the car.

The dazzling red Maserati then quickly merged into the glittering traffic.

Jocelyn sent the video she had just recorded, to Paige's WeChat, and then locked the screen on her phone.

Jocelyn's heart tightened and her first thought was that his wound had split open because of her.
She immediately turned on the interior lights of the car and put her eyes on the man.
Looking over carefully, she noticed that the black shirt on his body seemed to have a large part of it wet.
"You have a split wound." Jocelyn was full of tension.
Although she couldn't see that image herself, she knew how much it hurt just thinking about it.
However, Noah just looked down with a bland face, "It's okay."
On his face, emotion fluctuation could not be seen, as if the person who was hurt wasn't himself at all.
"That's okay?"
"It's a small injury, it won't kill me." He looked taciturn, steadily turning the steering wheel and staring ahead.
"A small injury left untreated can kill you if it gets infected." Jocelyn added.
He had become like this for her and she could never sit back and do nothing about it.
"Go back to the hospital right away."

"I will send you home first."

"I hate hospitals, and I don't like going there if it's not necessary." He continued to drive forward with no intention of listening.

Charlotte instantly moved to his side and quickly unzipped his shirt.

This instant she was stunned; two places on the right side of his chest and a gauze-covered area on the right side of his abdomen were completely stained with blood.

The bright red liquid was running all over his body, the toned pecs, and the sexy eight-pack abs, were stained with blood.

The image was so shocking that she couldn't help but draw a cold breath.

"I am driving, don't you want to live?" Noah 's eyes were tainted with a bit of sulking.

"Go back to the hospital." Jocelyn insisted, with a bit of displeasure under her eyes.

Noah's attitude instantly gentled down, "Be good, don't make a fuss."

And then he fastened the buckle with one hand and continued forward, he could completely handle this small injury himself.

She didn't know if it was because these words wereambiguous, or if it was just her illusion, she always felt that when he said this, his tone was somewhat gentle.

Chapter 18 New President of the Griffin Group

It was not Allen standing outside, but two serious-looking policemen.

Before she could react, her wrists were handcuffed. One of the policemen said coldly, "Miss Gloria Murphy, someone has accused you of hiring someone to hit her. Please go with us to Police Station in Wapedown Road now."

Gloria was astonished. She had arranged everything, and the men had clearly promised her that they would never tell on her!

Darn it!

"Mr. Policeman, I think there must be some misunderstanding." Gloria managed a weak smile, her eyes full of fear, while she subconsciously took steps backwards.

"Lead her away!" Another policeman said coldly, and the two policemen then escorted her in the direction of the police van.

Seeing this, Sara hurriedly blocked their way. Staring at the two policemen, she asked, "What are you doing?"

"Mom, save me, and don't let dad know! Or I'll be killed." Shane struggled and cried.

"Mr. Policemen... I can give you money. Can you let my daughter go first?"

However, none of them paid any attention to Sara and threw Gloria into the police van.

Sara was left at a loss. She paced the floor restlessly, not knowing what to do at all.

In the police van Gloria couldn't help crying in fear. Her hands clasped tightly together.

She had already disgusted her father. If this incident reached his ears again, she might never be able to turn the tables again, and would be killed alive!

"What are you crying for? You must know you are going to go through this. Why did you start?" The policeman driving the car had a look of contempt on his face.

Currently, Gloria ranked third in the trending topics: #Gloria Was Captured for Attempted Attack on Jocelyn#.

Sara then clicked in, and it was all filled with photos posted by marketing accounts about Gloria being taken the police station that night.

As the photos were taken from the front, Gloria's face and the cold handcuffs on those wrists were clearly visible.

Sara had just called her lawyer over. She had wanted to bail Gloria out before Allen noticed. But she didn't expect the news spread so fast.

Sara directly threw the phone towards Jocelyn and asked, "What's going on here?"

Jocelyn glanced at the posts on Weibo, all with filthy words coming into sight.

"OMG! When the hell is Gloria going to die? How did she marry into the Stewart family?"

"If I were Allen, I'd break Gloria's legs right now."

"Jocelyn is so pitiful to have such a bad sister. Please make Gloria get a life sentence, thanks."

Jocelyn was satisfied with the comments. But on the surface, she just looked at Sara in an indifferent manner and asked, "what do you mean?"

"You used money to manipulate the hashtag, didn't you? You deliberately wanted to show your father and everyone else, so that Allen and the Stewart family would hate her. Then you would monopolize the family's fortune and take Joseph away again, wouldn't you?" Sara questioned in a cold tone regardless.

"Shut up! Bitch! Do you think Joyce is as vicious as you?" Allen chided. Then he to look at Jocelyn tenderly and asked, "Joyce, are you alright?"

Noticing the blood on Jocelyn's right arm, he immediately clutched her wrist with a nervous expression and asked, "What's going on? Did the gang beat you up and made you bleed?"

Jocelyn shook her head, "No, that gang didn't beat me. Some guy in the bar protected me."

Noticing the slap marks on Jocelyn's face, Allen sulked, "Did your aunt hit you?"

This mark was very new at first glance, definitely being left just a short while ago.

"No... I didn't hit her." Sara explained in a panic.

"No? Then did my daughter' get the slap from nowhere?" Allen questioned in a cold tone.

Sara was instantly speechless.

Tom nodded respectfully, "Mr. Mason, what can I do for you?"

"Make the third trending topic on Weibo get to the first place and remain the first for a whole week." With those words, Noah stepped forward and walked upstairs.

Tom touched his head with a bewildered expression, thinking, "When has Mr. Mason become so concerned about trending topics? He never watched these things."

Also, who was so unlucky to have irritated the irascible master?

He looked for the answer on Weibo, and when he saw that the trending topic was about Gloria, Tom understood immediately.

Gloria must have provoked Jocelyn again.

Suddenly thinking of something, Tom immediately took a step to follow where Noah was and said, "By the way, Mr. Mason... Mrs. Mason... is back."

Before Tom could finish his words, a graceful and noble middle-aged woman with a white silk cheongsam, draped in a white fox fur shawl, with shoulder-length large curly hair, came from upstairs, aggressive.

Noah was stunned, "Mom... Why are you back?"

"Have you read the recent news in the entertainment section?" Allie knitted her eyebrows, looking dissatisfied.

"I never care about these things."

"Then do you know that your wife was bullied?" Allie questioned with a condescending attitude.

"Yes."

"Then why don't you beat up the couple of a scum and a bitch? Are you going to let them off? No matter what, she's your wife." Allie added.

"So you specifically left dad behind and came all the way back from abroad just to tell me this?" Noah wondered.

"Or do you think it could be because I miss you?" Allie rolled her eyes.

Noah helplessly sighed, "I know what's going on and I can handle this."

"You know nothing. You have a beautiful wife and you don't even look at her once. If what I thought was right, you haven't met your wife, right?" Speaking of this, Allie couldn't help but despise Noah.

"Do you know what a question I've been thinking about a lot lately?" Allie added.

"What?" Noah raised his eyebrows when looking at her.
