Chapter 241 Equality before the Law

When Billy drove into the car park, the headlights of the car hit Camille impartially.

The image of her trembling with the crowd crashed clear into his eyes.

Looking at that sensitive figure, the corner of Billy's mouth curved up into a curve of approval.

The next second, his face went cold and he quickly stopped the car before rushing into the crowd and standing alongside Camille, alongside her.

Seeing Billy, Camille was surprised, but couldn't care less and just continued dueling against her enemy.

With the two's full cooperation, soon everyone fell to the ground, crying out in pain.

Camille quickly padded over to Billy and leaned against her back, panting and looking coldly at the group of people at her feet, she said, "Thanks."

Billy smiled, panting in the same way, "No worries."

Camille didn't respond to him again, but quickly grabbed a young man who was beaten and bruised and pressed him fiercely against a nearby wall, "Say it, did Bella send you here?"

The man was full of fear, "Please, let me go."

"Are you going to say it?" Camille raised her fist, making a move to hit him.

He instantly subconsciously tilted his face to the side and covered his face with both hands, "It was Bella who told us to come."

Camille frowned before taking out her phone and pointing it at the young man's face, "You repeat for the camera."

"Yes it was Bella who instructed us to do this." the young man spoke with a fearful look on his face.

Camille grunted coldly before she ruthlessly let go of the young man, patting her hand lightly and grunting coldly, "Bella, you're dead."

With those words, she quickly walked over to Billy, who then called the police.

About ten minutes later, the police officers arrived and handcuffed all the men.

With those words, the policeman in the lead pushed Bella straight out.

Bella turned back quickly and looked at Phoebe, "Mum, don't let my dad know about this."

Phoebe nodded, and then immediately from her address book, she found the number of the Steward Group's lawyer and dialed it directly, "Seth, I need your help."

As soon as the words were out of her mouth, Phoebe quickly described what Bella had done to the people over there and asked them to keep it a secret.

Seth immediately said, "I will keep it a secret, Madam"

"Seth, you must hurry up and fish our Bella out." Phoebe's heart hurt at the thought of Bella having to stay in the police station in that situation.

Seth said, "Don't worry, since that Camille doesn't have any background, it will be a matter of minutes to get Bella out."

When Bella arrived at the police station, Seth, who was in a hurry, just happened to meet up with her.

Seeing Seth, the corner of the wheelchair-bound Bella's mouth immediately curled up in a smug curve, "Seth, you're finally here."

Seth smiled towards Bella and then whispered in Bella's ear, "Miss, I have taken care of everything, just don't worry."

A glint of joy flashed across Bella's eyes, "Really?"

Seth smiled and whispered again, "Just go in and walk through the motions."

"Where's my dad? Do you know?" Bella asked cautiously.

Seth shook his head.

Bella was instantly and completely relieved, and then naturally leaned back against the backrest of her wheelchair, allowing the policeman to push herself inside.

Chapter 243 His Surname is Smith

Soon after, Camille was pushed into the interrogation room.

One person's movement was so rough that she broke her right foot straight away, but luckily did not fall.

Just a lot of pain in her right ankle.

"Hiss" she couldn't help but let out a soft whimper.

As soon as she entered, the police officer in charge of the interrogation grimaced and waved his hand towards the man escorting her.

The police officers who were soon escorting her, roughly pinned her down in a chair.

Camille frowned in dissatisfaction and looked across at the police officer in charge of the interrogation.

The others, quickly retreated, leaving the two of them alone in the large interrogation room.

The white-hot light illuminated her eyes.

"Camille, do you know that framing and slandering someone is a crime?" The policeman opened his mouth to question directly.

Camille snorted coldly, "What is it? I framed and slandered others? It was clearly Bella who instructed others to hurt me, what did I accuse her of?"

The pain in the right ankle continues, one at a time, worse than the other.

"Bella has already said that she didn't do such a thing, and we didn't find any evidence of Bella's dealings with that group of people, and now that group of people have all admitted that you ordered them to put on a show in order to deal with Bella." The man on the other side of the table spoke coldly once again, with dislike for her in his eyes.

The more Camille heard, the angrier she became and the colder her face became, "Is it what she said?"

The policeman said coldly, "Now your charge can be confirmed, slandering and framing Bella, even if you don't admit it."

At that, Camille immediately understood that this man was obviously being bribed.

Soon the policeman turned off the camera and looked at Camille and said, "This matter is settled, you have to admit it even if you don't."

"What arrogance." Camille's words rang true, "You will pay for what you did today."

"As a child you were a simpleton, when played games, you always lose to me." Camille answered, full of car, towards the location of the hospital, "I will not let Bella go."

Camille nodded heavily, "Make sure you don't let her go!"

Billy didn't say anything and sped up the car again.

At the same time, at the First People's Hospital, Bella was lying leisurely on a hospital bed, a pineapple in her hand, eating it slowly and deliberately.

Phoebe sat next to her, peeling an apple.

A mouthful of pineapple down, Bella sneered, "Haha, that Camilleite has probably been thrown into jail by now, but she deserved it. How dare she fight with me?"

Phoebe casually peeled off an apple, tossed it into the trash, and looked at her, "Next, I'll let her know how she feels in prison."

Bella couldn't help but laugh.

Just at this time, Phoebe and Bella's mobile phones vibrated at the same time.

The two of them instantly and quickly glanced down at their phone screens.

A large line of text crashed into the pair's eyes -

"After buying a murder and injuring Camille, Bella, the daughter of the Steward family, refused to admit her mistake and even joined forces with the police station to twist the situation, blaming the victim!"

The two were in doubt!

"What's going on with this? How could this happen?" Bella exclaimed.

Phoebe shook her head frantically, not even knowing what to say.

When he saw that it was Allie's phone, he pressed answer and listened to the call while walking towards the lift position.

Two nurses passing by, seeing his face, clutched each other's hands in excitement.

The scene, however, did not, for a second, linger under his eyes.

"Noah, Camilla had been bullied so badly, you must make Bella pay!" Allie over there said in a huff.

Noah stepped into the lift and closed the door under the admiration of many women.

"I got it." He said, and then hung up.

On the other hand, after the man had left, Jocelyn looked at the snack he had brought, and the corners of her mouth unconsciously curved up into a gentle curve.

She didn't touch those snacks and turned her head to look at Paige, "Paige, push me to check on Camilla."

"Okay." Paige readily went to the door and pushed the wheelchair, carefully assisting her to sit on it.

When Noah walked into Camille's ward, her foot injury had already been treated and she was currently sitting on the bed chatting with Billy.

Seeing Noah, Camille immediately said with pity, "Noah, you're here."

Noah stepped forward and gave her hair a gentle caress, "Are you okay?"

Camille nodded, "It's okay. I called you after I called the police, but your phone was off, so I thought I'd talk to you when you turned it on, but I didn't know it was going to be that good."

Speaking of it, Noah felt guilty, "I'm sorry, my phone ran out of battery at the time."

Camille smiled, "It's alright, Noah."

Noah didn't say anything and his gaze fell on Billy.

Billy instantly smiled slightly at him, "Noah."

He responded lightly, and then he sat down on the edge of Camille's bed and asked, "Which foot is injured?"

Camille immediately rolled up her right trouser leg, showing her red and swollen right ankle, and pointed, "Here, I was really miserable."

At the moment, Jocelyn is asleep.

Tom added, "Any other questions?"

He ignored it and dropped his phone directly next to him while he went into the bathroom to wash up.

The next morning, Jocelyn was awakened by the sound of her mobile phone vibrating.

Jocelyn slowly opened her eyes, touched her mobile phone that was constantly vibrating on the coffee table, got up and walked to the floor-to-ceiling window and pressed answer.

Naturally, Jocelyn stretched out, and then she touched her phone and opened the news app.

"Mr. Mason, Steward's lawyer, Seth, has taken full responsibility for bribing police officers."

"The story is now so big that it's almost a national concern."

"Bella's words only instructed others to harm our Miss Mason and did not cause harm to Miss Mason, so she will be detained for a month next."

"This whole thing, it's wife of the chairman of Steward's, who's behind it."

"The president just called and said he wants it to stop and that this incident is overly affecting the credibility of police officers."

Tom gave a careful explanation word by word.

Noah's eyes were waveless, and he walked to the balcony, looking at the city's traffic below his feet, "Take good care of Bella for the next month."

Tom snorted coldly, "Okay."

Noah then hung up the phone and returned to the ward.

At this time, Jocelyn was reading a headline, her attention fully absorbed, not noticing him at all.

The news said that the police station in charge of Camille's case, from the chief to the bottom, more than forty people, were removed from their posts for colluding with the Steward. Bella instructed others to harm Camille and was detained for a month, and Steward's group lawyer, Seth, bribed the police station officers and was sentenced to three years.

This news make Jocelyn's insides feel so good!

Noah sat beside her, his attention focused on her phone screen, his face still without a trace of ripples, "What's for breakfast? I'll go and buy it for you."

Chapter 247 Jocelyn, how have you been?

"In three days, I have to leave for a day, is it okay if you let Paige take care of you then?" He asked.

In the foreign branch, there is something very important that he must travel to.

"It's okay." Jocelyn nodded, but didn't ask more.

He hooked his lips faintly, and then went into the bathroom with the water basin.

At this time, her mobile phone vibrated.

When she saw the word Master noted in the phone, her emotions were complicated.

Intense guilt spreading wildly through her heart, was like a pair of invisible hands that were constantly tearing at her soul.

Taking a deep breath, she tried to adjust herself and pressed answer.

"Jocelyn, how have you been?" The familiar voice of the old man there filled her ears, speaking in the same doting tone as always.

"I'm fine, and you?"

"I'm fine too, I've just mailed you some fine ginseng, three boxes in total." The old man added, "You have a cold body, it's perfect for you to eat this, remember to take of this for your soup every day, twice a week, got it?"

The droning in her ears brought her back to those years when she was learning to heal and treating patients under Regan Mason.

In those days, he always liked to give her all sorts of tonic medicines, each time so carefully explained and admonished.

The more concerned he was, the guiltier she felt.

Grandpa Regan was so good to her, but she ended up, during her marriage to her own husband, not being in control of her heart and allowing herself to fall in love with someone else.

And even, because of this, there will be no way to continue to keep that promise in the first place.

"Jocelyn?" The old man spoke again, jerking her thoughts back.

Jocelyn's nostrils were slightly sour and her eyes in tears, "I'm listening, I know, Grandpa."

"Jocelyn, I miss you, it's my birthday in three days, can you come back and see me?" The old man said again.

He was a man who always preferred silence, even on his birthday, and would not ask people to come. When she was over here, they spent their birthdays together every year.

"Well, my son, who was staying here, spent his birthday with me here yesterday and went back this morning." Regan added.

His son, the father of her husband.

She had never seen this man before either.

"Jocelyn? What's on your mind?" Regan's eyes held a touch of inquiry.

Jocelyn immediately snapped back, "Nothing"

"Wait, I'll go and boil the medicine for you, then we'll eat, and we'll have a good chat afterwards." With that, Regan immediately stood up, looking jubilant.

Jocelyn immediately got up and took his hand, "Don't work, I'm fine, let's just eat."

Instead, he simply pushed her hand away and quickly walked towards the kitchen, saying as he did so, "Stay there and don't follow me or I'll get angry."

Jocelyn let out a long, helpless sigh before sitting down.

As she watched his back, her heart grew more and more uncomfortable.

He was so good to her, how would he react if she confessed everything to him? He would be very angry, wouldn't he?

After accompanying him to lunch, she was helped into his room and then forced to rest.

He kept on bugging for many, many hours before leaving the room.

"What's more, I did more than just mentally cheat on him, I even had sex with him once months ago, but not on purpose."

"At that time, I didn't think of getting a divorce because of this person, so I didn't confess to you." Jocelyn continued to give a serious account word by word.

A smile grew at the corners of Regan's mouth as he raised his hand and patted Jocelyn's shoulder, "Jocelyn, lift your head and look at me."

But Jocelyn did not dare to look up. At this moment, his gaze was a sharp enough weapon to penetrate her heart.

It could penetrate all the unpleasantness of her heart.

It had been a long, long time of mental building before Jocelyn slowly raised her head and looked into his eyes.

His eyes were as gentle as usual, if not gentler than usual.

This was something that Jocelyn hadn't expected at all.

She had expected to see a face that was furious to the core.

"Grandpa, I have many more things to say, and I want to tell you all of them, I'm really sorry." Jocelyn continued to speak apprehensively.

"All right, I don't really want to hear about those things you do." The corners of his mouth curled up in a seeming smile, "I agree that you want a divorce, but before the divorce, you must meet with your husband, and if you have anything to say, you can talk about it yourselves."

Jocelyn was getting more and more disbelieving of her ears.

Everything sounded so incredible.

She froze for a second before looking at his face with an inquisitive expression, "Is it true what you say?"

Regan nodded, "Yes."

"Okay." Jocelyn responded without thinking.

Since she was divorcing that husband, it would be good for them to meet and talk to each other.

Just looking at her master's face made her feel more and more uncomfortable.

She would rather he scolded her or beat her up.

The moment the two eyes met, Jocelyn felt as if her heart was on fire.
Her ears, too, could not help but start to flush.
"Are you hungry?" He asked.
Jocelyn shook her head, "Not hungry, but thirsty"
"What would you like to drink?"
"Lemonade."
Without saying a word, he got up and went into the kitchen and began to work at the stove.
Looking at the busy figure, Jocelyn felt her heart warm and fuzzy.
Suddenly thinking of his sister, Jocelyn got up, walked to the kitchen door, leaned against it and looked at him who was carefully slicing lemons, "Is Camille alright?"
Noah looked up at her, his large, slender, bony hands, carefully dropping two slices of lemon into an expensive crystal frosted glass, "She is out of the hospital and recuperating."
"Where does she live?" Jocelyn asked.
"Live in my house." Noah said.
"Why not get over here? We can look after each other." Jocelyn added.
"No need, someone will take care of her." As he spoke, Noah added honey and warm water to the cup, stirring it carefully.
What is just the most ordinary glass of lemonade looks even more expensive for it was made by him.
Jocelyn nodded and didn't ask much.
"What do you want to eat tonight? I'll prepare it for you in advance." He asked, before placing the lemonade in her hand.
