Chapter 251 Cuttlefish CP

Noah raised his eyes, looking at Scott with a touch of inquiry under his eyes.

"Didn't Jocelyn have an operation? Don't go to the office, and give her more tonic soup to drink." Scott seriously urged, "Didn't your mother send Jocelyn some tonic products? You have to cook it in different ways, got it?"

"Okay." Noah responded faintly.

"Dad is good at pampering a woman." Camille said with a smile.

Scott gently stroked Camille's hair, "A man who treats his wife well will have a bright future."

Camille smiled, "If only I could meet a man like my dad in the future."

Ryan, "You will."

Scott, "In the future, if the man you meet dares to treat you badly, I will find someone to destroy him."

Noah, "Whoever dares to touch my sister, will have to pay the price."

Ryan, "That's a must."

Camille smiled happily and naturally rested her head on Scott's shoulder as she looked at the crowd, "I'm so happy."

Scott's attention slowly put on Ryan, "You are prepared to stay in the entertainment industry so long? Really just not prepared to enter the company?"

When the subject came up, Scott's face became much more serious.

Ryan spread his hands, "You know, I'm not interested in the company, my dream is the entertainment industry."

Scott frowned slightly, "You are useless."

Ryan smiled and looked at Noah, "There are many promising people in the family, and I don't feel that being in the entertainment industry is being useless."

Scott took a slow drag of his cigarette before exhaling, "Still, I hope you won't regret it in the future."

Ryan smiled, "As I said, I will go ahead on the path I chose."

Scott let out a long, helpless sigh and did not speak again.

Chapter 252 The Rest of Your Life

Inside, a whole bunch of their CP fans were discussing about the image of the two of them together.

"Ahhhhhhh this is the first time in my life I've been a fan of a couple. When the two of them are together, I feel like the sun is instantly shining in my world."

"So, so, so in love! I've never seen two men who look so good together! I'm in love with this couple. I will always love them, I am rich and I am willing to contribute all the money to you!"

"Cuttlefish CP, go for it!!! We must all vote hard!!! Let them stand side by side on top of the world together!"

"They match for each other! Love it."

After reading the comments in the microblog, Jocelyn put down her phone with satisfaction.

It was at this time that all the lights in the house suddenly went out.

All over the world, only the light on the phone screen remained.

She instantly put on her slippers and quickly walked out of the room and went downstairs to look at the electric switch box.

And yet there was nothing to see.

She immediately called Noah and put him on speakerphone.

"The power suddenly went out in the house, but I can't find the problem and it's not a trip, when are you coming back? Help take a look." Jocelyn said as she continued to observe the situation in the electric switch box with her torch.

"I'll be home in ten minutes."

"Okay, I'll wait for you." Jocelyn said, and then she was ready to hang up the phone.

"Hold on." On the other side of the phone, Noah said.

At those words, Jocelyn's heart was warmed, and he knew that he was doing so because he was worried that she was afraid.

"Okay." Jocelyn took the phone and sat down in front of the couch, continuing to have the torch on, along with the speakerphone.

Because of his presence, the darkness of the night remained unhurried in her mind.

"Did you have the dinner I made for you?" He asked.

Jocelyn nodded, "Yes."

"Is it to your liking?"

"Yes, it's great."

She was nervous, and for a moment, she didn't know what to continue talking to him about.

At those words, Jocelyn's heart tightened and she subconsciously looked into his eyes.
His eyes smiled and smirked, with more than a hint of meaning.
For a moment, her heart felt as if it had been paralysed by electricity.
A blush followed.
Once again, the night of their first encounter comes to mind.
"Nasty, what are you talking about?" Jocelyn played it cool and frowned slightly, looking at him with a straight face.
A smile grew in his eyes, "Can't you be innocent?"
"Obviously you're impure."
"How am I impure?"
"How do you think? Come on, cook me noodle." Jocelyn was serious.
When she finished, her face once again flushed to the base of her neck.
"Okay." He didn't move, a smile growing under his eyes.
Jocelyn's face turned more flushing, "What are you talking about?"

"I thought you said you were going to have noodles?"

"I" she was surprisingly speechless.

He stroked her hair lightly, before turning to go into the kitchen.

Looking at the fading back, Jocelyn's heart beat faster again and her face flushed.

It was only when Noah's figure had completely disappeared from sight that Jocelyn's heart gradually calmed down.

Taking a deep breath, she snapped back to her senses, picked up her laptop and played League of Legends.

Jocelyn got up and went into the bathroom.
After washing up, there was a knock on the door, followed by the man's nice voice filling her ears, "Are you up? It's time for breakfast."
Jocelyn's heart warmed at once, and the corners of her mouth involuntarily curved up into a gentle arc,
"Okay."
She thought that it would be wonderful if time could stay forever in this time period.
Being with him brought warmth to all parts of her heart.
Opening the door, she saw the man standing in the doorway, dressed in the standard all black, cool and noble and unapproachable.
The face that looked like a heavenly god descending on her still amazes her to this day.

"Come on, I made you bacon sandwich, and fried eggs."

He always kept in mind what she liked to eat.

The same goes for things she doesn't like.

When it comes to food, he never makes a mistake.

"Okay" smiled Jocelyn, before taking the first step and going down the stairs.

Noah followed close behind.

Walking into the dining room, she saw that he hadn't taken a cup, so she turned into the kitchen, opened the upper cupboard and tiptoed around, intending to take one down.

However, the top of the cupboard was so tall that it was difficult to reach it when she was just reaching out like this.

Just then, he came up behind her, naturally reaching out and taking down two glasses.

The huge figure enveloped her, and the familiar scent of his mint perfume mixed with tobacco hit her nose.

The time is 8pm sharp.
After taking careful note of everything, Jocelyn went to wash up a bit before heading out the door.
As usual, he had made breakfast in advance.
After the two of them finished their breakfast, Jocelyn sat down on the sofa to watch the news while he washed the dishes in the kitchen.
The sweeper, which was turned on by him, was working diligently.
Everything is in order.
As soon as she turned around she could see the busy figure of the man.

During the period of surgery, he did everything in the house.

The large home was neatly tidied up and spotlessly cleaned by him.

Breakfast, lunch and dinner were made by him.

Just thinking about it, the corners of Jocelyn's lips couldn't help but curl up into a soft curve.

It was really hard for her to imagine that such a person was from underworld.

The picture of him doing his chores was nice.

She couldn't help but be entranced as she watched.

Involuntarily, with one hand propped on her chin, she fixed her gaze on his body.

When he turned around, he saw her looking at him.

The moment her eyes met, Jocelyn immediately felt as if her heart had been electrocuted.

She jerked around at that moment and continued to look at her phone, tapping on Twitter out of habit.

Out of reach of her gaze, the corners of the man's mouth curved up slightly in a shallow curve.

He didn't say a word and went on about his business.

After opening the tweet, Jocelyn once again, cautiously turned back and glanced towards the kitchen.

At the moment, he was concentrating on washing the dishes and not looking at her.

"So, did she get out of the hospital? How did it go?"
"She's been out for a long time and it's good."

"Then I have to go visit Jocelyn with Robert. You guys wait, I'll be right back." Abel added.

"Don't come." Noah said without thinking.

"We'll just go and visit a sick person."

"She won't allow I take friends home." Noah added.

"You're so obedient now?"

"You have a problem with that?"

"No how dare I have a problem with you?" Abel helplessly rubbed his head, "But I want to go see her. I go to visit the sick, there is no a problem, right?"

"Don't disturb our two-person world." After saying that, Noah hung up the phone.

Abel's heart was filled with questions.

He uttered, "What the hell kind of friend is this? He sees women over friends."

When Noah finished his phone call, Jocelyn just happened to come out of the bathroom.

He returned to the sofa at once.

Jocelyn soon, too, took a seat beside him.

Noah asked, "What can I make for you later? Is it bird's nest? Or sea cucumber?"

"Can I not drink it?" These days, he had been giving her a different kind of tonic stew every day.

Even a woman in labour is not as exaggerated as she is.

She would love to have a day now, without tonic.

"No." His tone was overbearing, not to be denied.

Jocelyn helplessly held her forehead, "Then let's have bird's nest, by the way today for lunch, I still want to eat the steak you made."

Had he come with his boss?

There seems to be only one explanation for this.

Jocelyn didn't think much of it, stuffed her phone into her bag and strode back into the club.

After giving the security guard at the entrance her membership card, the guard let her go straight away.

The hall is gilded and glorious, like the palaces of ancient European kings.

The huge tasseled crystal lamps, which occupy the entire ceiling, illuminate the entire space as if it were daylight.

Soon the waitress in her upscale uniform approached and guided her into the gold and diamond encrusted lift that led her straight to her destination.

The private room is just as opulent as the outside, in the same golden European palace style.

The space is huge, hundreds of square feet.

Inside, you can sing, play cards, swim and have all kinds of entertainment.

Jocelyn walked straight to the front of the coffee table and sat down.

She glanced at the time; it was eight o'clock sharp at the moment.

It also means that maybe the next thing that husband of hers will be coming through the door.

What kind of person the other side is will soon be revealed.

In a moment, it should go well, right?

In between thoughts, the door was pulled open from outside.

Her heart instantly tightened and she subconsciously turned her head to look at the doorway.

Noah's face broke into her line of sight.

The moment he saw her, a faint surprise flashed across his eyes.

"How did you get here?"

He really did not expect that Jocelyn would actually appear in this private room.

Chapter 258 In two hours, I want to find Jocelyn

The moment the door opened, Paige had a worried look on her face and clasped her hands on Jocelyn's shoulders, "Miss Murphy, what's wrong with you?"

Jocelyn let out a long, depressed sigh, "Come sleep at your house for one night."

Tonight, she didn't want to go back to that home.

Paige realized that something must be wrong, so she immediately caught up with Jocelyn and pulled her to sit on the sofa, "What's wrong exactly? What's the conflict between you and Noah?"

Hearing the name Noah, Jocelyn could not help but smile bitterly at once.

Paige was filled with surprise, "What do you mean?"

"He's Noah Mason, my husband."

Paige was completely shocked, and even her eyes widened slightly, "What? He's the husband you've never met? Noah Mason? Why did he keep hiding it from you?"

Jocelyn sneered, leaning back against the sofa, "How should I know, maybe there's some purpose to it?"

Filled with exhaustion, she slumped onto the sofa.

"By the way he reacted before and after the meeting, Master was completely impervious to him about arranging a meeting with me." Jocelyn said feebly, her mind still in turmoil.

"On the way here, I thought a lot about how Master should have been completely unaware that the two of us had contact in private, and that this meeting was entirely in his hands.

If he knew what his grandson had done, he would not have rushed into arranging our meeting." Jocelyn kept forcing herself to organize her thoughts.

No matter how she thought about it, that was the only possibility right now.

"And he, I think, knew I was his wife from the first time we met, he just didn't tell me. So what on earth could have made him hide from his family and me? This man is so deceitful that I now even suspect that his identity as being in underworld is also a fake, and that everything he presents to me is all fake too. What is his ulterior motive?" Instantly awake, he turned on the light and glanced at the time.

It's ten o'clock.

"Yes! Mr. Mason!" Tom nodded respectfully, and then, with a heart full of resentment, he went straight out of bed.

After Noah drove the car out of the villa, he went straight to some bars, and hotels, where Jocelyn often went, looking for her.

As he drove the car, Noah couldn't help but start laughing at himself. Ever since he was young, he had never been so crazy about anyone or anything, let alone wandering around the streets like a headless fly.

Now he is really like a love-struck brat, who will do anything for the girl he likes.

The sky was drizzling with rain.

Under the drizzle, the black Honda continued to make its way through the city.

At Paige's house, Jocelyn was still tossing and turning in annoyance, unable to sleep.

To make herself comfortable, she buried her whole body deeper under the covers.

It was a sleepless night after all.

The possibilities of what Paige said kept flashing through her mind.

The doorbell rang.

The sudden voice pierced through the darkness and fell directly into her ears.

Who is it this early in the morning?

Could it be him?

Paige was cooking in the kitchen when she heard the noise and went to see there the peephole.

For a moment, Jocelyn was speechless.
Suddenly, so many things that were not on her mind suddenly all came up.
She was somewhat unable to adjust.

This person in front of her is actually that husband of hers? Or even the heir to the Griffin Group?

No wonder, she couldn't find out the identity of that husband of hers.

"I won't lie to you about anything in the future, I swear." He added, and with that he gave three thumbs up, with a devout look on his face.

Looking at his convincing look, Jocelyn's heart suddenly softened, "Really?"

"Yes." He said.

Without another word, Jocelyn continued to go through their family's household registration book.

On the last page, she saw another familiar name.

Allie Hart!

So, Allie is his mother?! Her mother-in-law?

No wonder, Allie has always been so kind to her.

Now all the reasons for this have been found.

Then, it seems that she didn't simply want to buy a property for investment when she brought a group of people and went to buy the property in Faraday Apartments.

Rather, she wanted to help with the performance!

"Allie is actually your mother?" Jocelyn looked at Noah and said.

"Yes."

"So in the beginning, about the Faraday Apartments, it was because she knew I was her daughter-in-law, that's why"

"Yes."

"I thought it was because I was doing a particularly good job of marketing that I was attracting so many bigwigs." Jocelyn said instantly.

At those words, a touch of pampering flashed across Noah's eyes, "Well, you did do a good job with your marketing."

"But, mainly, the main reason why Faraday Apartments sold like it did was because of Allie." Jocelyn said.

"Allie?"

"Your mother."
