Chapter 621 Bella Being Taught a Lesson (2)

Finally, the man in black lifted her above his head.

She was naturally slim, but the man in black was stout and tall, and he picked her up with absolutely no effort.

At this moment, it was as if he was carrying a small chicken.

A strong feeling of unease instantly spread through Bella's heart.

She began to shout, "Help, help, um."

However, just after two shouts, another man in black used black tape and sealed her mouth.

Immediately afterwards, the man in black who was carrying her, then without mercy, slammed her to the ground.

Her waist was the first to hit the ground, followed by her head.

She felt her mind go blank.

Her thighs, too, seemed to be numb, and she could not move at all.

She wanted to get up and run away, but she couldn't even move.

"Bitch, you dare to use our lady's name and spread the news that our lady told you. Are you crazy?"

"Our lady has said that this time, you must be taught a lesson. She wants you to know who not to mess with."

The man in black who dropped her coldly pointed at her face and condescendingly chided.

He then waved his hand towards the others.

Everyone then started to come forward and punched and kicked Bella.

Everyone dealt out deadly blows, showing no mercy.

The pain kept spreading through her body, and Bella was almost dying from the pain.

She wanted to shout out, but was unable to.

She could only close her eyes and keep whimpering.

The strong suffocating feeling made her feel as if her chest, as if it was about to explode.

But nothing could be found.

In the end, she had no choice but to walk out of the private room with her head down.

Along the way, she passed by many people.

Everyone who passed by her could not help but look at her a few more times.

When she walked to the first floor, she even became, directly, the gaze of the customers in the whole hall.

"That woman, why are there bruises all over her body? Has she been domestically abused?"

"Look at her, she's as swollen as a pig's head."

"Is that Bella?"

"It seems like it's really Bella. Who has she pissed off? What a disgrace to the Stewart family."

Every word made Bella feel embarrassed.

At this moment, she felt like her self-esteem was being rubbed madly on the ground.

This was all Jocelyn's fault.

In this world, without the existence of this bitch Jocelyn, there wouldn't be so many things going on.

The gazes of the people around her were as hot as an iron.

Unable to bear it anymore, she once again lowered her head and fled.

When Jocelyn drove to the entrance of Star Wish Cafe, she just saw, Bella with a mess, running out from the cafe.

Seeing this scene, Jocelyn could already guess what had just happened.

In the next second, the corners of her mouth curled up in a satisfied curve.

She thought that it must have been Linda who had brought someone and had come to clean up Bella.

She did not have half a bit of sympathy for Bella's downfall.

Sucking in a cold breath, Bella pressed the hang-up and apprehensively started the car again.

She then shuddered and clutched the steering wheel.

With a kick of the accelerator, the black Cayenne dashed out of the hospital.

At this moment, her heart was in her throat.

She knew that she was soon going to be out of luck.

She was tempted to hide.

However, she also knew that she could not.

If she did, her father would be even more furious.

At that time, if he found her, he would certainly make her even worse.

Her father, she knew very well, was not someone who could be easily silenced.

About half an hour later, Bella returned to the Stewart home.

The bruises on her face and body were even worse than before.

At this moment, in the living room of the Stewart family, the atmosphere was morose and cold.

Archie, Joseph, William, Phoebe, Linda, and Linda's father, Raphael, were sitting around in front of the living room coffee table.

Everyone's expressions were serious to the extreme.

Seeing Bella's appearance, Phoebe's heart ached.

She then walked up to Bella, clutching Bella's hand with one hand and saying with eyes full of concern, "Do you get hurt?"

Bella nodded her head.

"Don't mind them, drag her out and beat her." Archie looked at the bodyguard and ordered coldly, his expression not half relieved.

Phoebe once again hugged Bella tightly, crying, "Please no, I am begging you."

Archie is now angry, who pleads does not work.

He had a problem with Phoebe before, and as the situation of the Stewart got worse and worse, he felt more annoyed.

When Phoebe offended Noah, he chose to forgive her, but, he still kept that in mind.

It was because of this that he did not feel anything for Phoebe's tears now.

Soon, three bodyguards went to Bella, trying to separate the two and take Bella out directly.

William was a wreck and was powerless to stop the bodyguards.

Joseph, on the other hand, could hardly withstand three bodyguards by himself.

Soon, Joseph was pushed down and Bella and Phoebe were forcibly separated.

Bella was dragged out by three people, and forcibly.

Phoebe, regardless, chased after them and tried to continue blocking.

However, just as she ran to the door, the bodyguards shut the door.

She frowned coldly and tried to open the door.

However, she heard a sound of the door being locked back.

Immediately after that, the door could not be pushed open.

She knew that the bodyguard must have locked the door from outside.

A second passed and the sound of a whip sounded.

Bella began to cry out.

Helen unhappily hooked her lips, "If it were you, you will change a design, so you know a lot about design, right?"

"Then if it were you, what kind of things are you going to take out for exhibition? Why don't you draw a picture, so I can see it too?" Helen said again.

She was very dissatisfied with Jocelyn's review.

In her opinion, an amateur did not deserve to be here, pointing fingers at a professional jewellery designer like her.

She knew that Jocelyn was the wife of the chairman of the Griffin Group.

She also knew that she was the daughter of the Murphy family, with superb skills.

However, she also knew that Jocelyn was not accomplished in the field of jewellery design, nor did she have any information to show that she knew how to design jewellery.

So, being criticised by such an outsider, she really felt very unhappy.

Although she was now a bit of a journeyman, it was not her turn to be told what to do by a layman, so she wanted to dislike Jocelyn.

Jocelyn smiled, she knew what Helen had in mind, because she had heard something about her nature.

This person only accepted compliments, not criticism, and all those who criticised her would be regarded as her enemies.

Even if others were right in their criticism, that would not do.

In fact, for so many years, she had not made any breakthroughs because she could not accept criticism and advice with an open mind.

Now, Helen disliked her because of it.

She was trying to imply to her that since you couldn't come up with anything better, you shouldn't criticise me here, you're an amateur, you're not worthy of criticising master.

Jocelyn took a great dislike to this mentality of Helen at once.

In Jocelyn's opinion, a good designer should not be like this.

It should be humble and know how to accept other people's opinions, rather than looking unconvinced when it is clear that someone else is right.

Helen just continued, wrapping her arms around her chest, admiring her design and looking for the merits of her design.

In her opinion, the crowd's reaction was just making a fuss.

She couldn't help but think, what is wrong with these people in front of her? Have they never seen a good looking design in their lives?

What could Jocelyn know about jewellery design?

How could she draw anything good?

If she knew how to design and could draw good things, then someone like her, who carries her own traffic, would have already started her own jewellery brand and entered the jewellery design world, right?

What a fuss this group of people are making.

"Really good."

"How come she can do everything?"

"That's right. This really is many times better than Helen's, this is a great designer."

The people watching around began to whisper.

And Allie, at this moment, was even more amazed by Jocelyn's design, speechless.

Was her precious daughter-in-law too good?

How could there be nothing that she could not do?

Helen, on the other hand, still looked disdainful when she saw this.

At this moment, an old woman with white hair walked up behind Jocelyn in a low profile.

Seeing the design, the old woman instantly hooked her lips in relief.

The moment she saw the old woman, Helen was shocked.

Feeling that the situation was not good, she went straight to Jocelyn's side and took a look at the design.

At this moment, Jocelyn was looking down, perfecting the small details on the snake's body, so she didn't see that Helen had come over.

Allie was even more shocked at this point.

Her admiration for Jocelyn deepened.

Her daughter-in-law is actually really Sunny.

The old woman smiled and extended her hand towards Jocelyn, "You're Jocelyn, right? I know you. My name is Tina."

The moment she heard this name, Jocelyn was shocked.

This person was actually her idol Tina.

Twenty years ago, she was a super god in the jewellery world, and was sought after by all the major jewellery brands.

This woman only worked with one brand a year and only released one design.

Each design was a hit with the world's most famous women.

But she was a flash in the pan in the world of jewellery.

She spent a total of five years in the jewellery world and designed only five pieces.

Then, at her peak, she simply retired.

No one knows why she retired.

No one has ever seen her in person either.

However, although Tina left the world, her name has always been there.

She is an icon for many famous jewellery designers around the world.

Many of her designs are still being copied by major brands.

Many of the jewellery styles nowadays are an extension of her designs from back then.

She came to love Tina because she happened to see her work at a jewellery auction when she was in her second year.

At the time she was amazed.

It was also that time that she learned the name of the person and then went home and looked up the information.

"When your first piece came out, I noticed it."

"At that moment, I was instantly amazed, and I idolised you instantly."

"So I went to see the big Chanel boss."

"I asked him for details about the author of that piece."

"However, he told me that he didn't have any specific information about you either."

"And that he didn't have anything except your design, and bank card number, and email number."

"So I asked for your designs for my collection."

"Then every year after that, when you launched a new piece, I would ask that brand to bring me your designs for my collection and study them."

"I would mainly study your brushwork and style, and then learn from you to improve my own stuff."

Tina continued to speak word for word, her face full of a kind smile and her eyes full of admiration and appreciation for her.

Hearing this, Jocelyn was stunned, "How am I worthy of being your idol? I am only a newcomer in the jewellery design circle, but you are a legend in the jewellery design circle, a great senior, a real god."

She never thought that her idol's idol would be her.

It was a wonderful feeling to be recognised by the person she had admired for many years since she was a child.

As a child, when she fell in love with Tina, she never dared to hope that one day she would cross paths with such a great god.

She never dared to hope that one day she would become an idol of this god.

It was just that she felt from the bottom of her heart that she did not deserve to be Tina's idol.

Jocelyn shrugged lightly, "I don't expect so much, I just hope to stay in this industry and develop well."

Tina, "You are so modest, beautiful and capable, it's hard not to become a generation of legends."

Allie did not interrupt, but just kept nodding her head, deeply agreeing with Tina's point of view.

"You're too kind, by the way, how did you and Helen meet?" This was something that Jocelyn was also very curious about.

"She had been investigating me because she admired me, and then somehow found her way to my home and wanted me to take her as my apprentice."

"I refused." Tina spoke seriously, word by word.

"So that's how it was." added Jocelyn, "Can we have dinner together later?"

Tina didn't think twice about it, "That would be a must."

Jocelyn, "Well. I wonder what you'd like to eat? I'll take you there then."

Tina, "I'm fine with anything as long as it's traditional cuisine, I really love Z Country. I'm not going to lie, I'm actually just here for tourism per se."

"But after coming here, I found out that it's delicious, there's just too much. I didn't want to leave all of a sudden." Tina added.

At these words, Jocelyn hooked her lips in habit, "Well. a lot of people like that."

This was indeed a fatal attraction for foreigners who had a relatively homogeneous diet.

"So, are you settled here now?" Jocelyn asked.

"Yeah, I wasn't planning to settle before, but I've grown to love it since I've been here, so I'm planning to settle here, and then I bought a house in my favourite city." Tina added.

"Well, stay here, you won't regret it." Hearing the person in front of her praising her country so much, Jocelyn was bursting with a sense of achievement inside.

Jocelyn helplessly held her forehead, and clicked in to take a look.

The screenshots were all carried by various marketing numbers, and all sorts of people's shocking stories.

In the screenshots, many people were using text to recreate the whole process of her conflict with Helen at the jewellery exhibition today.

On top of that, they also depicted all the scenes where Tina made an appearance later on and pointed out that she was Sunny herself.

Netizens were once again were shocked

On the other hand, in the pink princess room of the Stewart family, Bella, who was lying on the bed with her nose bruised and swollen also saw the hot topic about Jocelyn on Weibo.

Looking at the content of the topic, she instantly, again, felt she was wrong.

She remembered that at Sara's birthday party, she was holding a high imitation Sunny butterfly necklace, showing off.

At that time, Jocelyn must have thought, she was a fool, right?

The more she thought about it, the angrier she got.

They are all human, why is Jocelyn so good? Wasn't God too unfair too?

At this moment, Bella was scratching her heart and soul with difficulty.
