Chapter 671 Grumpy Old Man

"Okay then, we are directly following the old rules and continue cutting here on the spot." The beautiful auctioneer asked again.

"Okay, let's open it here." the old gentleman added, "so that some people know that intuition is sometimes not allowed."

After saying that, he then gave a deep look at Jocelyn.

Jocelyn could not feel at all that the old gentleman was looking at her.

However, she could feel that this person he was talking about her.

She hooked her lips disdainfully, but didn't say a word, just silently looked at the stage, waiting, for the results to come out.

This old man, meddlesome, was not worthy of her wasting another word.

"Okay." the beautiful auctioneer finished, then placed her eyes on Sean, "Then, let's have Sean open the stone for us."

Sean smiled and stood up.

When Jocelyn heard this, her eyes were full of surprise, "You still know how to open raw stones?"

Sean gently nodded, "Well, my father in this area is an expert. I learned from him."

Jocelyn gave a thumbs up towards Sean, "Good."

Sean smiled and went straight to the stage.

After Sean got on the stage, three handsome staff members in suits then pushed the raw stone cutting machine directly onto the stage.

Sean then carefully picked up half of the raw stone, looked at the old gentleman and asked, "Where do I start cutting?"

The old gentleman then got up and walked step by step towards the stage.

Although he was old, he walked with a lightness of step.

Once on the stage, he stood next to Sean, pointed to the middle of the cutting surface and said, "Cut it from the middle, to see if it is full or not."

Sean then nodded his head readily.

He was already angry now because, half of the raw stone was ruined.

Now this group of people still annoyed him.

The old gentleman's attitude was also expected by Jocelyn.

Jocelyn still didn't raise her eyes, she just slowly put down her teacup and gently placed one finger on the edge of the teacup.

The old man then looked at Sean and added, "Continue to open. I still don't believe this. Nor do I believe that what some people say can be 100% accurate."

After saying that, he then once again coldly looked at Jocelyn.

When Jocelyn inadvertently raised her head, she just received the old man's look.

She still didn't make any reaction, just elegantly leaned her body against the backrest and quietly looked at the half of the uncut raw stone on the stage.

Quietly, she waited for Sean to turn on the cutting machine.

Sean gave the old man a helpless look, then placed the other half of the raw stone on the cutting machine and asked, "How do I cut it?"

The old man said, "Likewise, cut it."

Sean then picked up a black marker and drew a line down the middle of the other half of the stone, turned on the cutter and carefully held the edge of the stone with both hands to cut it.

Once again, everyone on stage held their breath and put their eyes on the big screen.

Everyone was looking forward to the result of this cutting.

And so was Sean.

That old gentleman even more so.

He didn't dare to breathe out, his eyes were all on the half of the raw stone.

Soon, the other half of the cut was completed.

Sean carefully unrolled the two cutting surfaces.

Just like last time, there was nothing inside.

The old gentleman was completely dumbfounded.

People on the stage who were, originally, still expecting the result, could not help but give the old man a blank stare.

There was an uproar.

Chapter 673 Dinosaur Fossil (1)

She saw that beside the stall, there was a stone about one meter high and one meter wide.

From the appearance, the quality inside it should not be very good.

But because, as there had been before, the appearance was not good, but inside there was something full of rubies.

So, Jocelyn still subconsciously opened her own perspective eyes.

In a few seconds, her gaze penetrated right through the surface of the raw stone and entered the innermost part.

The image that came to her eyes shocked Jocelyn.

Inside, there was no semblance of greenery, but there was, however, a complete animal skeleton.

Continuing to look over carefully, she found that it was the skeleton of a dinosaur.

And what was in front of her was a rare complete dinosaur fossil.

She had never thought that this unassuming rock would actually contain a dinosaur fossil.

The price of such a complete dinosaur fossil is very high.

It would cost at least tens of millions.

The price of such a complete dinosaur fossil is very high.

Noticing that Jocelyn had been staring at the stone, Sean then asked curiously, "Jocelyn, that piece looks like a piece of raw stone of bad quality."

"It's just used to cheat those who are good at cheating." Sean said again.

Jocelyn, however, just laughed and put her eyes on the stall owner.

The stall owner was a young man in his thirties with a long, low ponytail and a classical look in white traditional clothing.

Jocelyn raised her finger and pointed at the stone and asked, "How much is it?"

The stall owner smiled, then his heart fluttered with joy and he said with interest, "It's a huge raw stone, guaranteed to be of high quality, one hundred thousand yuan if you want it."

With that, he jubilantly extended ten fingers.

Afterwards, Sean then looked deeply at Jocelyn and sighed before going straight back into the auction house and calling three male staff members in suits to come out and help move the stone.

Immediately afterwards, Jocelyn's bodyguards, as well as the three staff members of the auction house, carried the raw stone into the auction house together.

Eventually, the stone was placed across the cutting machine located in the middle of the auction table.

Once they had put it away, Jocelyn, Sean, and the crowd of people watching the event, went into the auction hall together.

Many people had sat straight down in front of one of the tables.

Jocelyn, on the other hand, went directly with Sean and went up to the auction table.

Jocelyn looked at the stone and borrowed a marker from Sean next to her.

Immediately afterwards, she opened her perspective eyes and, according to the image inside, carefully drew a black marker line on the long side of the stone.

This line perfectly bisects the whole stone from the middle.

If the cut is precise, not only will the complete dinosaur fossil inside be displayed, but it will definitely not hurt it half as much.

After making sure it was completely fine, Jocelyn put the cap back on the pen and handed it, with both hands, to Sean, "Please, Sean."

Sean put the pen into his trousers pocket, sighed helplessly and shook his head, "You are really stubborn. Promise me, if in a moment nothing can be seen, not allowed to be sad."

Jocelyn nodded gently and smiled, "Okay."

How could something not be seen? A moment later, after the stone was opened, she was bound to knock everyone's socks off.

Because she already knew the result, at this moment, her heart, apart from excitement, did not have half a bit of extra emotion.

"I guess she'll be dumbfounded when it's opened."

"With this thing, wouldn't it be more effortless to just cut across the middle? How much work would that be if she cut it like that?"

"Not sure. All I know is that she'll be disappointed in a moment, I reckon."

Chapter 675 The Sound of an Explosion

The male passerby said, "Do you know what is in that stone of yours?"
After saying that, the male passerby simply walked away.
The stall owner was full of curiosity and looked at his back and asked, "What is it?"
The male passerby, however, did not answer.
Out of curiosity, the stall owner simply ran inside the auction house.
As soon as he entered, he saw the image on the big screen on the stage.
The image was fixed at that moment, on the cut surface of the two halves of the stone on the stage.
When he saw the dinosaur fossil on one of the halves, the stall owner was frozen in his tracks.
What the hell?
Was that a dinosaur fossil?
At this point, it was worth more than a hundred thousand.
It was worth at least tens of millions.
He actually sold something that was worth tens of millions for a hundred thousand?
He was even gloating, laughing at the person who bought it»

Now, he felt that he was the biggest fool of all.

Thinking of this, he lifted his hand and slapped himself hard in the face twice in a row. Then he stomped his foot hard and muttered to himself, "Fuck. I'm so stupid."

"The stall owner is here, hahaha. He must regret it."

"One second he's happy about getting 100,000, the next he's sad about losing tens of millions, tsk."

"If this were me, I'd be so angry I'd have to bang my head against the wall."

The crowd of onlookers on the stage once again opened their mouths.

Chapter 676 The Attack (1)

The whole world shook.
In the air, there was chaos, and the pungent smell of gunpowder filled the air everywhere.
The sound of roaring helicopters rang out overhead, coming from far away.
The next second she saw a huge crater smashed into the ground about five metres behind her.
In the haze, she saw what appeared to be many people fall into the pit.
Throughout the world, the smell of blood filled the air.
On the ground, there were human arms, legs, and broken flesh everywhere.
The screams of men, women, old people and children were piercing and very loud.
In a matter of moments, the place was transformed from earth to hell.
Everyone around her, like headless flies, covered their ears while running around and screaming.
"Help! Help!"
"Help... Ahhhhh!!"
The various voices intertwined, adding to the tension of the atmosphere.

Jocelyn subconsciously clutched the sleeve of Sean beside her and glanced at the sky.

Just then, about a metre beside her, another bomb fell from the sky.

"Boom-", the ground was once again blown open with a deep crater.

All kinds of broken stones splattered everywhere, like bullets, landed on her and Sean's body one by one.

Through the mist, she saw a white helicopter above her head, flashing its lights, and it was only about six or seven meters from the ground.

With her scalp tingling terribly, she once again clutched the sleeve of Sean's shirt and darted all the way forward, looking for a place where she could take shelter.

At this moment, she had just one thought, and that was to survive.

It was just that her body was covered in bruises and blood from the splashing stones.
Even though it was painful, she still forced herself to endure it.
The explosion made it impossible to see the target clearly.
This left her with absolutely no way to aim at her opponent.
But even so, she still had no intention of giving up. Based on the sound made by the aircraft overhead, she identified its general location and fired directly.
The bodyguard beside her did likewise.
"Boom. boom. boom." A few shots in quick succession.
Many of the bullets they fired just hit the fuselage of the helicopter.
Only two or three hit the inside of the helicopter.
One hit a man inside the cabin who had dropped a bomb.
And the other two hit the white shirt man's shoulder.
The blood spread and the excruciating pain tortured him, leaving him with no way to power up again.

He used all his strength to raise the plane again, cursing and turning around to leave the scene.

As the plane fled, the roaring sound in the air got further and further away from the ground.

Eventually, it simply disappeared.

Based on the sound, Jocelyn could conclude that the plane was gone.

Only then did she let out a long sigh of relief.

She reckoned that the reason the plane had evacuated so should be because she, along with the two bodyguards, had injured the people on the plane badly, and thinking about it, she felt relieved.

At this moment, Sean, behind her, was still shivering.

His hands had been clutching the back of Jocelyn's shirt, as if treating Jocelyn as a life-saving straw.

Looking at Jocelyn protecting him like a god of war, Sean worshipped her even more.

Jocelyn began to feel her ears starting to buzz.

She knew that it was all from the big bombardment she had just experienced.

And the same was true of Sean beside her.

Sean rubbed his ears and looked at Jocelyn, "I'm suddenly starting to feel that my ears are buzzing very hard."

Jocelyn said, "It should be shaken by the sound of the bombing."

After the words, she stood up and dialed Noah's phone number.

But his phone was off.

The sound of the plane roaring, once again, rang out.

This time, the sound was noisy and chaotic, and it sounded like there were a lot of them.

Her heart tightened and her eyes filled with alarm as she looked into the sky.

The sound of a plane roaring through the air, and listening carefully, it seemed to be a fighter jet.

Just at this time, a plane in the air was directly approaching the ground.

As the plane got closer and closer to the ground, she saw the camouflage pattern on the outside of the plane.

She also saw the full shape of the plane, and it was indeed a fighter jet.

The moment she looked at the camouflage pattern on the outside of the fighter jet, her heart, which was hanging in the air, immediately dropped back.

Soon, a white rope stretched down from the fighter jet.

Immediately afterwards, a black figure appeared at the cabin door.

Soon, the man grabbed the rope and came towards the ground.

As the person got closer and closer, Jocelyn clearly saw that he was Noah.

Noah was like a Satan who had fallen from the sky.

But a few seconds later, Noah landed smoothly on the ground.

Seeing the family members of the injured and crying, Jocelyn even hated to kill that murderer right away.

In order to avoid Jocelyn from falling down, the bodyguards around her had been carefully holding her and guiding her.

On the ground, Jocelyn was busy searching for others.

In the sky, Noah was flying a fighter jet in a hurry, chasing a white helicopter not far ahead.

On the fighter jet that Noah was in, there was Tom.

At this time, Tom was sitting in the co-pilot's seat, with a serious face, looking at the small screen of the positioning bombing system on the fighter jet.

In the middle of the small screen was a small red dot.

That was the position of the white helicopter they were responsible for intercepting.

At this time, their system had already locked the small red dot.

Soon, Noah led the other fighters and successfully intercepted and forced the white helicopter to stop in the air.

Noah directly turned on the loudspeaker and said coldly into the microphone, "If you don't want to be killed in the plane, land yourself immediately."

On the white helicopter, several people led by the man in the white shirt heard the voice and looked at each other.

"We must be loyal to our master. We cannot give ourselves any chance to betray our master." The white shirted man, holding back his fear, said coldly.

The others nodded their heads.

After that, the white shirt man then directly pressed the switch of the self-destruct system on the aircraft.

Originally, the first time she saw Noah, she could still hold on hard and not fully show her emotions.

Jocelyn thought she could keep holding on hard.

However, as she was here, seeing more and more corpses, more and more scarred people, she no longer wanted to tough it out.

She found that she was not as strong as she thought she was.

She couldn't think about anything else, she just wanted to cry and let off steam.
