Chapter 681 Arsonist

Tom, along with a group of men in black, were the first to get off the plane.

Afterwards, Noah also got off the plane.

Without waiting for Jocelyn to get off the plane by herself, Noah pulled open the cabin door for her and carried her out of the cabin.

The Jocelyn in his arms was, in contrast, in a much more messy state.

Her body was covered in bruises.

Her clothes were dirty.

She looked ashen and grimy.

While many people were paying attention to Noah, they would also unconsciously look at Jocelyn.

When they saw Jocelyn's body full of wounds, everyone was shocked.

Under the gaze of the crowd, Noah strode, leading Jocelyn directly into the interior of the hospital.

A large group of men in black, together with Tom, continued to follow the two of them with serious faces.

Jocelyn originally did not like the idea of Noah walking in front of people, holding herself horizontally like this.

But at this moment, she was physically and mentally exhausted.

In both Noah's and Jocelyn's phones, it was the same content.
It was still various, reports about the helicopter bombing at the antique market.
[The terrorist attack at the antique market is still under investigation.]
[The terrorist attack at the antique market has resulted in fifty serious injuries, ten minor injuries and eighty deaths.]
Every number that came to her eyes made Jocelyn's heart violent.
The two hands of Jocelyn then involuntarily began to tremble.
Seeing this, Noah, carefully, held Jocelyn into his arms.
"Jocelyn, come on." Noah once again humbly pleaded.
"Honey, it's really hard for me." Jocelyn's voice was hoarse.
"I know, but, it's really not your fault."
She knew that this matter, in essence, was the problem of that murderer.
But, after all, it was because of her and she didn't feel that it had anything to do with her at all.
Those people were all implicated by her.
At that moment, the doorbell rang.

The sudden sound cut through the stagnant atmosphere in the living room, and interrupted the conversation between the two of them.

Noah walked to the front of the door visual doorbell and took a look at.

Seeing outside the main door standing Paige, he then pressed the unlock.

Soon, the two doors inside and outside the house all open.

Noah was not at ease with Jocelyn, and directly turned around and returned to Jocelyn again.

Jocelyn again leaned helplessly against the back

Jocelyn nodded, "Better, but still hard to feel, Paige, I can't let myself stay out of it. I hate myself."

Paige, "But you didn't kill the man, and you didn't let that man fly the plane to bomb, the one you should hate is the murderer. This person is simply inhumane."

Paige once again clenched her fist tightly.

Even now, recalling the murderer's ferocious methods, Paige still felt fearful.

In her heart, she was very curious about the identity of this murderer.

In her opinion, Jocelyn had always been a very good person to get along with.

Although her status was illustrious, she never used her status to press people and harm them.

No matter who she faced, she was always gentle and polite.

The people who had conflicts with Jocelyn were never the ones who made a fool of themselves and took the initiative to provoke Jocelyn.

So, this time, she thought, it must be the same.

She guessed that it could be someone, who had provoked Jocelyn, and then was retaliated back by Jocelyn, after which this person came to strike back again.

Just, who was this person?

During this period of time, she hadn't heard that Jocelyn had made enemies with anyone.

If she were to make an association, the only one she could think of was the Stewart family.

Moreover, the Stewart family had the ability to do so.

"Do you think it could be the Stewart family?" Paige said.

Jocelyn, however, shook her head, "I don't think so."

The Stewart family, if they really had the master's uncanny ability, wouldn't have been so badly abused by Griffin Group, but they couldn't do anything about it.

"That's possible." Paige added.

Ryan and Regan did the same.

Looking into the eyes of several of them, Jocelyn suddenly felt warm inside once again.

Mason family was good to her.

"Jocelyn. I saw another news when I was on the road ten minutes ago, and the news said that there were witnesses who said that you had also been shooting that plane with your bodyguard, you are really good." Allie complimented.

She was really glad that Jocelyn and the others had sniper rifles today.

Otherwise, she really didn't know what would have become of today.

Jocelyn smiled bitterly with embarrassment and responded modestly, "It's not all my fault, it's because the bodyguards worked well with me."

Allie, "It was clearly you, who was good enough in your own right."

Scott, "It is indeed impressive. On the news, many details were not published, only that there was a terrorist attack at the antique market, and you took your bodyguards and used a sniper rifle to shoot the helicopter away. "

"Nothing else has been said, but just looking at these, I can already feel that you are great." Scott did not mince words of appreciation for Jocelyn.

"I wonder what kind of organization that made it and what is the purpose." Scott added.

Seeing Allie and Scott both took all this as a terrorist attack, Jocelyn did not say anything more.

Firstly, for fear that they would be more worried if they knew.

If Allie knows all of this, she will certainly be fearful every day.

Secondly, because the master this matter, she does not want too many people know.

Chapter 685 Only Jocelyn

Listening to the cold hang-up sound, Ryan helplessly let out a long breath, then directly in the call log, found the director Bailey who had just called, and dialed again.

The voice came, "What do you wan to say?"

"I'm really sorry, I'll invite you to dinner tomorrow to make amends, do you think it's okay? I'll work extra hours to make up for the shooting I've missed." With a frank face, Ryan apologized earnestly to the director on the other side of the phone.

Ryan's attitude was incomparably sincere, and there was still tenderness in his eyes.

When Ryan was shooting his first drama in his life, because of his lack of experience, he did not perform well in many areas.

But this director Bailey, not only would not get angry, but would also guide him patiently.

He would even come to his room after work to help him talk about his scenes.

There were times when he would still insist on doing this even if it was already very late after the close of work.

When his first drama was made, the response was so good, and it was inseparable from this director's guidance.

He has always remembered the kindness of Bailey.

Therefore, he was really afraid that Bailey would really be angry with him.

He really went too far today.

He had promised Bailey two days ago that he would help out with a cameo appearance, a character in his new modern drama.

It was a big demolition scene, shot in the Arlberg Mountain of Y Country.

Knowing that he was busy, Bailey let him set his own schedule.

During the day, he happened to have a full day off, so he called Bailey.

After setting a time, he flew to Y Country with his assistant Rosa directly.

After arriving at the set, he started to put on make-up and styling and prepared for the shoot.

Originally, the crew had everything ready and was just waiting for him to arrive for the shoot.

Just before the shooting started, he asked for his mobile phone from his assistant.

"That's good." Noah once again doted and lightly rubbed Jocelyn's hair.

"You went to intercept the helicopter, did you get nothing?" Jocelyn asked.

Today, Noah came back to see her, did not talk about this topic at all, she guessed there was was nothing.

Regan, too, put his gaze on Noah with an inquisitive look.

"The plane was stopped, probably the people in the plane were afraid of being caught by us, so, they directly detonated the plane." Noah said truthfully.

Hearing these words, Jocelyn immediately brightened up, "Is it possible that master was in the plane?"

Noah, however, shook his head, "No."

In his tone, he was very certain.

"Why?" Jocelyn eyes were full of puzzles, she completely did not know why Noah was so sure.

"Today, when I first landed, the other fighters had long since gone after that white helicopter, which you have seen." Noah said seriously.

Jocelyn nodded.

"When I got to the sky, I went straight after the big unit, but not long after flying in the sky, someone from the big unit told me that they saw, on the white helicopter, a man that parachuted away."

"In order to get him alive, they sent a few people who parachuted down to look for that man."

"The others, on the other hand, continued to chase the white helicopter."

"I think, if the master was really in the plane, then the one who jumped off must be him."

Noah explained.

At those words, Jocelyn tightly frowned.

All this really made her feel incredibly disappointed.

"Then from those who parachuted down to find that man, is there any news?" Jocelyn asked.

At this moment, Noah did not realize that she woke up.

He kept whispering in response to the person on the other side of the phone, "Good. I know."

After making the call, Noah stuffed the phone into his pocket.

He turned around, noticing that Jocelyn's forehead was all sweaty, Noah then got on the bed.

Naturally, he took her into his arms and asked, "Why are you awake so early? Is there something wrong with you? Why are you sweating so much?"

The wall clock on the wall was pointing at seven o'clock in the morning.

Jocelyn shook her head, "No. I'm just a bit hot."

Last night, she had already let Noah worry enough.

She didn't want Noah to continue to worry.

"Is it a nightmare? Dreaming about last night?" Noah asked.

Even if Jocelyn didn't say anything, he could still see that Jocelyn was vulnerable.

Jocelyn shook her head, "No."

Noah, "I'm your husband, you can just tell me, I know how you think."

Jocelyn did not speak again, just quietly hugged Noah tightly.

Noah once again gently stroked her back and soothed, "Don't think about it anymore, okay? That really has nothing to do with you at all. It's all that master's fault."

Jocelyn still didn't say anything, just silently closed her eyes.

She never thought that it all had nothing to do with herself.

Now that she was gone, he was completely unable to accept it.

Now he recalled the cold words he had spoken to Phoebe a while ago, he felt extremely guilty.

If he had known that Phoebe would only go so far, he would never have treated her like that.

The moment, what Phoebe had done in the past, it did not matter.

Phoebe was nice him.

She was fine when he left in the early morning.

But this time, she was gone.

How could this happen?

Taking a deep breath, Archie carefully lifted Phoebe's bed sheet.

Joseph even hugged Phoebe's body tightly, bawling.

The person in front of him was his own mother who had been with him as he learned to speak and toddled around.

How could he easily accept that she had died like this?

"Mom, wake up, I can't allow you to leave."

Joseph cried as he spoke, his voice hoarse and choked.

And aside, Bella continued to sit helplessly on the ground, crying continuously, but not said a word.

William, on the other hand, was silently bowing his head, tears streaming down his face.

Archie trembled and knelt down, clutching Phoebe's hand tightly, also sobbing uncontrollably.

Noah nodded, "Well, for those who died, each person is compensated five million, and for those who were injured, each person is compensated three million."

Jocelyn smiled, and her heart suddenly warmed up.

Just like right now, before he could even wait for her to start working on compensating those people, he had already done it.

The compensation that Noah gave was very reasonable.

Hearing such an offer, the guilt in Jocelyn's heart began to lessen a bit.

Although the money couldn't buy back their lives and their health.

"Thank you, honey." Jocelyn's eyes were full of emotion.

"What's the point of saying thank you to your husband?"

"What do you want to eat for lunch? I will make it for you."

Upon hearing this, Jocelyn was at a loss for how to answer.

Actually, she didn't have much appetite.

"Don't want to eat anything, do you?"

"Yeah."

"Then I'll go out and buy some food to cook for you, okay?"

Jocelyn nodded.

"Then you wait for me at home, I'm going out to buy now," Noah added.

She also didn't say anything more, and put down her phone, so she directly matched her teammates, intending to play a few games to divert her attention.
Soon, the matching was completed and the game began.
Jocelyn was opposite, all of them were professional players.
And all of them are popular players of the big teams, with top-notch skills.

Because he was in a bad mood, Jocelyn was very brutal.

A number of professional players got lost.

Every time she met the opposite side, she treated the other side, as if they were the master, killing them furiously.

In the end, she led her teammates, fifteen minutes, to take the game victory.

After the victory, she started several more games in a row.

All was victory.

But whoever was lined up opposite her, no matter who they were, they all ended up being bloodily abused.

After venting her frustration for a few games in a row, Jocelyn felt a lot more relaxed.

Because her mood had improved, she started to feel hungry.

At this time, Noah carefully carried a casserole full of corn and pork rib soup and came out of the kitchen.

While walking towards the dining room, Noah said, "Honey, it's time for lunch."

"Okay." Jocelyn responded in a soft voice and slowly closed her laptop, went to wash her hands and went into the dining room.

Because she was injured and needed to avoid eating, so Noah prepared all light dishes.

Hot air, sweeping the aroma of various dishes, came to her nose, making Jocelyn feel even hungrier.

Noticing Jocelyn's expression, which was much more relaxed, Noah hooked his lips in relief, "Are you in a better mood?"

Jocelyn nodded, "I just played a few games, I feel better."
