Chapter 81 Honey, Don't Divorce

"I only finished part of it, and a part of it was preempted by Mrs. Mason." Tom said.

"Oh?" Noah raised his brows slightly and took another deep drag of his cigarette.

"The video of Sara's beating that you asked me to expose was exposed by Mrs. Mason in advance. Mr. Murphy already wanted to get a divorce, and after such a fuss about this, I guess the divorce is final."

"Also, you said before that I should tell the police to punish Joseph severely, but Mrs. Mason has also done it beforehand."

Tom respectfully explained.

When it came to Jocelyn, Tom had admirers inside.

At these words, the corners of Noah's lips curled up in approval, not expecting that she would actually help him take revenge in silence.

"In addition, I have already informed the Stewart's about our withdrawal of all investments in it as you requested." Tom added.

"Okay"

"The Stewart's is expected to spend a period of cold winter next, withdrawing investments plus other things."

Saying that, Tom then searched out the scandal that had just come out of the Stewart Food Group and sent it to Noah.

"This is obviously someone behind the Stewart's, this person is now making waves on the internet. If the Stewart's wants to get through this safely, I guess it will take a lot of effort."

"Even if they get through it, they will be greatly injured, and as for Joseph, he will lose his position." Tom once again said seriously.

Noah's gaze coldly swept over the news for a moment, the corners of his cold lips once again faintly curling up.

Jocelyn was definitely the most intelligent woman he had ever seen, bar none.

"The person who is behind this is probably going to be miserable if he is found out." Tom added.

Noah's gaze swept over the phone screen before looking at Tom and saying, "Don't let the Stewart's find it out."

A flash of shock instantly flashed across Tom's eyes, "You are thinking that this was done by Mrs. Mason?"

"Do as I say." His tone was as domineering as ever, not to be denied.

"Yes!" Tom nodded respectfully at once.

"This matter is not negotiable, if you are a smart one, sign the divorce agreement right away. I have given you more than enough, five hundred million in cash, plus two villas."

"If you don't want it, then we'll have the lawsuit, but you won't get so much then." Allen said coldly, without the slightest bit of hesitation.

He and Sara had signed a prenuptial agreement when they first got married.

Everything in Murphy's was his personal property, whether it was before or after the marriage, it had nothing to do with Sara.

If there was a lawsuit, Sara would not be able to reap any benefits.

As a couple, they had lived together, and he hoped that they would not have to go to court and embarrass everyone.

Although it was difficult to make this decision, he knew he had to do so.

In the past, although Sara had gone too far, she had not gone too far, so he could turn a blind eye to it.

But now she had done something that had almost hurt the very foundation of the company, and that was something he could not bear.

Sara felt her brain explode with a buzz.

If she could not pass this hurdle, then she would have to leave Allen with five hundred million in cash and two houses.

Five hundred million was a lot for an ordinary person, but for a rich wife like her, who was used to spending big money, it was a drop in the bucket.

It's just that with five hundred million, she simply can't live happily, at least not compared to her current life.

What was more, if she just admitted defeat, everything in the Murphy family should have nothing to do with her.

Without her, Gloria would not have as much of an advantage in the battle for the Murphy family's property.

"Don't, honey, don't be so cruel, I'm wrong, I really know I'm wrong." Sara once again humbly begged for forgiveness.

Allen, however, said no more and turned around without mercy and went upstairs.

Sharp pain spread and blood flowed.

"Bastard! At this point, you still dare to weasel out of it! I don't care what others do, we are just determined not to! "

"How dare you compare Stewart's to those unworthy little workshops?" Archie's mind was blank with anger, he only wanted to beat Joseph to death.

Looking at her precious son being beaten, Phoebe's heart suddenly ached.

She immediately took Archie's hand carefully and pleaded, "Honey, things have already happened, even if you lose your temper, it won't help, isn't the most important thing now to find a solution?"

"Shut up! Joseph's current indiscretion is all due to your spoiling!" Archie shook off her hand fiercely and roared lowly.

Because of his authority, Phoebe did not dare to say another word, but trembled inwardly.

Bella and Gloria, who had wanted to plead for mercy at the side, also dismissed their thoughts together.

Everyone's face was gloomy to the extreme, except for William, who sat quietly in his wheelchair, his expression not showing any fluctuation.

"Back then, when William managed that factory, he was always very strict about this piece of control, and it was because of William's strict management and vigorous marketing that those three originally unpopular products were sold worldwide."

"Now, because of you, all of William's efforts over the years have gone to waste! You're a piece of shit!"

"If William hadn't gotten into trouble, it wouldn't be like this now!" The more Archie said, the angrier he became, he immediately picked up a teacup again and threw it at Joseph fiercely.

Joseph instantly dodged it.

This time, the cup passed him by perfectly.

Archie did not intend to let him go and picked

He saw that Stewart's would never work without William.
Joseph was still not as reassuring to him as William after all.
On hearing this, Joseph, Gloria, Phoebe and Bella were all shocked.
In particular, Gloria and Joseph had mixed feelings inside.
Archie asked William to continue to manage the factory, and they all knew very well what it meant.

William frowned slightly, "But Dad, I'm very inconvenient to move around, so don't be impulsive. My brother has never been worse than me."

"I'm not discussing with you now, I'm not being impulsive either." With those words, Archie stood up with a scuffle and went straight upstairs.

"Gloria, help Joseph go up and dress his wound." Phoebe looked at Gloria and said coldly.

With those words, Phoebe quickly followed Archie up the stairs.

Bella followed closely behind.

Gloria carefully helped Joseph up and said, "Come on, Joseph, let's go back to our room first."

"Joseph, when everything is over, I will help you convince dad, don't worry." William's face was gentle.

"Thank you, Brother." Joseph's heart was full of gratitude.

But he knew very well that even if elder brother said so, it would be very difficult for him to return to his original position again.

Even if elder brother didn't have that in mind anymore, what about dad's side? Would dad forgive him for his faults just because of a few words from elder brother?

"No need." William responded in a soft voice, and then pushed the wheelchair into the lift.

After William left, Gloria immediately stomped her foot with hatred.

And then she drew a few tissues from the coffee table and wiped the blood from Joseph's face while saying.

"Jocelyn, you bitch! I won't be easily defeated by you, just you wait!" Gloria muttered to herself in a cold voice, the bright crystal light setting off the hatred under her eyes in an extraordinarily blinding way.

At this moment, she couldn't help but recall the image of Jocelyn at her wedding today, making a spectacle of herself with her husband.

The thought of it made her annoyed.

How much she was holding her anger today, and how comfortable Jocelyn was, as she had made a big splash at the wedding.

All this time, she couldn't understand why she had to hide it in the first place, since Jocelyn's husband was so handsome and so skilled in medicine.

Was it really all as Jocelyn had said, that she was just afraid that her father would be angry with her for making the decision to get married on her own, so she planned to explain it slowly afterwards?

Or was there something else going on?

She always felt as if something was wrong.

Was the handsome man who knew how to heal now really Noah?

Was it possible that this man was not really Noah at all, but just a double that Jocelyn found?

In the beginning, she didn't find out anything about Noah at all, and she didn't even see his photo. If Jocelyn had found a fake person, she naturally wouldn't have known about it.

Although she felt that what she had imagined was ridiculous, her intuition told her that it was really not impossible.

Whether or not he was Noah Mason, everything had yet to be further verified.

Just at this time, a knock sounded on the door.

Gloria immediately withdrew her thoughts and opened the door.

Standing outside the door was one of the family's maids, as well as two policemen.

Because she had suffered enough in the guardhouse, she felt her insides tremble at the sight of the policemen at this moment.

What was the situation?

Were the police going to come to her door again to take her into custody?

"Joseph was taken away overnight last night, and is currently under police investigation, now things have made the news. Although the police has not yet been convicted, but the netizens have already convicted Joseph, Joseph is being scolded to death."

As she said that, Paige over there couldn't help but chuckled.

"This doesn't even need us to do anything, things have been exposed so easily. I don't know what's wrong with the Steward family, such a big thing happened, shouldn't it be suppressed at this juncture?" Paige added.

The words that poured into her ears also made Jocelyn feel incredulous.

In theory, with the Steward family's power, it would be easy to suppress such news.

At this point in time, it made no sense for them to let something like this just spread out, unless it was deliberately done by someone.

Was it the same person?

What was the grudge?

Either way it was all a great thing for her, and as long as it turned out to be good, she didn't need to waste her brain cells thinking too much about it.

Jocelyn smiled, "It's probably because someone is more eager for Joseph to die than us."

Paige couldn't help but chuckle lightly again, "I reckon it's still that guy, I don't know the guy but I'd say he's simply impressive."

At that the smile on Jocelyn's lips deepened, "Yes."

Paige added, "Miss Murphy, what about your family? Is everything different from what we expected?"

"No." Jocelyn said indifferently.

"That's good, in that case, why don't we come out tonight to celebrate? To Everland Bar?"

"I want to stay home with my dad, take a rain check then. You'll have to do more work with X Entertainment." Jocelyn said.

She was in a better mood, but her father was not, she still wanted to spend more time with him at this juncture.

"Even if this kind of person comes out, I won't use him anymore, what else would he do but cause trouble?!"

In the dining room, Archie viciously slapped his chopsticks on the table, his whole body shaking with anger.

The family at the table didn't dare to speak, and everyone had a sullen face.

Gloria even trembled with frightened hands, "Dad, take it easy, I believe that Joseph will change himself after this time."

Originally, she thought the matter could be kept well under wraps, but she didn't expect it to be directly on the news.

This must be Jocelyn's doing too, it must be!

She was really scared, and felt more and more that Joseph's position as the president would be really hard to keep.

What if Joseph really lost the president position, then what would she do? This is really a disaster!

If her parents get divorced and her husband loses the president position, her status among her sisters will be in ruins.

At that time, she would have almost no advantage in the battle for the Murphy family's property.

"Dad, it's my fault for not suppressing the news on this matter." William lowered his head with a guilty look.

"What does it have to do with you? William, don't be too kind, don't take everything on yourself!"

"The biggest mistake you made was not failing to suppress the news, but choosing to hide it from me together with Gloria!" With that said, Archie gave Gloria a cold glare.

Gloria subconsciously sucked in a cold breath and didn't dare to say a word more.

"Dad, I was wrong." William continued to lower his head.

"If you know you're wrong, you should put your heart and soul into getting the company through this crisis, and find a way to get Joseph out and clear his name. His imprisonment is a disgrace to my Steward family." Archie said.

"I know, Dad." William nodded respectfully, "I'm going out to do some work."

With those words, William pushed his wheelchair by himself and moved quickly outside.

His eyes gradually became sly where the eyes of the crowd could not reach.

Chapter 88 Adoring Her Daughter-in-law

Finally, she changed into a light blue chiffon flower pattern dress and a pair of pink short boots.

It was paired with another pink tweed coat.

The already gentle temperament was set off.

After confirming in front of the dressing mirror that her make-up was okay, Jocelyn took her mobile phone and drove to Lost Bar.

Late at night, the bar was crowded with people. No matter what had happened outside, there was always singing and dancing inside.

The dynamic rhythms of the bar resonate throughout the hall, with every beat being impartial to the human heart.

Underneath the world of light and shade, men and women are relaxing.

They drank wine in groups or danced on the dance floor.

As she had an appointment with Paige at the bar, Jocelyn was looking for her while walking towards the bar.

Her pure, fairy-like look attracted the eyes of many people.

Many men began to come to her side involuntarily to strike up a conversation.

"Beauty, can I have your contact?"

"Beauty, want to have a drink together?"

"Beauty, want to go dancing together?"

Jocelyn automatically blocked them out and moved towards her destination on her own.

When Noah walked out of the lift with Abel, Robert and Harry, he saw was Jocelyn, who was surrounded by a group of men.

His already cold face instantly turned even colder.

Robert, Abel, Harry and the others soon noticed Jocelyn as well.

Abel naturally came over to Noah, put an arm on his shoulder, whistled and couldn't help but tease, "Your wife is too much in the limelight, and you are worried about it, right?"

Noah glanced at him, but did not pay any attention to him, and went straight to Jocelyn's position.

"You hang out with a friend?" Noah asked.

"Yes." Jocelyn nodded

"Is it the one you fought with last time?"

"Yes."

"Don't stay up too late, and call me if you need anything." He admonished, no emotion visible under his eyes.

Jocelyn nodded, thinking to herself that this fake husband care too much.

Why did she always have a feeling he was her real husband?

"Well, Noah, we're fake in relationship, you know, right?" Jocelyn had searching under her eyes.

"Yes." He responded very plainly.

"That's good." Jocelyn said.

Without another word, he walked outside, his back slender and straight, more dazzling than the models.

Suddenly remembering something very important, Jocelyn immediately ran all the way out after him.

Outside the door the north wind was biting.

The sharp temperature difference made her shiver uncomfortably as she walked out of the warmth.

At that moment a black Honda pulled up in front of the main entrance of the bar and he got into the car under her gaze.

Inside the car could be vaguely seen the three people she had seen earlier sitting there.

The one driving the car was Robert.

"Wait a minute" Jocelyn quickly stepped forward and tapped on the car window.

He rolled down the window, looked at her and asked, "What?"

The other three people in the car immediately exchanged meaningful glances with each other.

"I have something else to tell you, so get out of the car." Jocelyn said.

Noah instantly got out of the car.

Robert directly started the car, complaining as he drove, his face full of disgust, "Noah, why did you buy such a broken car? This feels so much worse than your cars those worth tens of millions, okay?"
"....." Noah still ignored it.
At this time, Abel's phone vibrated.
A voice message was sent to him by someone called "Bunny" on WeChat.
Abel directly tapped on it.
"Well hubby, hubby, give me a hug hubby, why aren't you on the game yet? Play with me."
Because he forgot that it was on speaker, Abel was dumbfounded as soon as the message was heard, for it was a sweet voice.

He instantly coughed lightly in embarrassment.

The others were indifferent, looking as if they were used to it.

"Abel, are you having another online love affair lately?" Harry asked.

"A buddy of mine has invested in a large Three Kingdoms online game called Hero World, which is now in the uncensored beta stage, and invited me to play it some time ago, so I had a try."

"Guess what? The game experience was quite good, so I took root in that game and started to spend money to play seriously, and accidentally became the number one killer in the whole area, and that's why I kept getting girls coming to me."

"I picked the one with the best voice and get married in the game with her." Abel said.

"You might as well say you're actually recently tired of playing with women in reality and you want to go online to find fresh women. You scum." Robert saw through him.

"Don't fucking call me scum, making it seem like you're so pure." Abel cursed back.
