Chapter 921 Women Screaming

The shrill sound, all of a sudden, attracted the attention of countless people.

All eyes were behind themselves.

That's the sound of the lift sliding.

They were all curious as to who the visitor was.

In full view of the crowd, after about twenty minutes, Noah, with three personal bodyguards in black, walked right up to the crowd.

Many people, just by looking at it, feel nervous.

And on the spot, those female experts, one by one, all instantly exploded with girlishness.

"So handsome."

"So cold, so cool, so likeable."

"Although, he didn't look at me, I felt like I was being attracted by his eyes."

"Really noble, this kind of temperament really can not just imitate."

The female experts began to whisper.

At this moment, they all couldn't help but be jealous of Jocelyn once again.

In their eyes, Jocelyn is a divine destiny.

The moment Jocelyn saw Noah, her eyes became even more tender.

She instantly fixed her gaze on Noah's face.

And the man entered the doorway, and soon in the crowd, at once found Jocelyn.

In an instant, the icy look disappeared.

In its place, there is endless tenderness, and deep love.

Chapter 922 Woman

At the sound of this voice, Jocelyn felt her scalp tingling

The staff on the scene were tense to the point of being on the edge of their seats at this point, with panic written in everyone's eyes.

Noah frowned slightly, his eyes looked around warily for a moment, then looked at the source of the sound.

Seeing this, Jocelyn gathered enough courage to subconsciously clutch Noah's hand and look towards the source of the sound.

The sound, apparently from the location of the coffin in the seventh room, came out.

Jocelyn felt even more numb in her head at once.

Could it be the corpse in the coffin?

And everyone else had their eyes on the place where the coffin was at that moment.

The atmosphere was tense.

The world was instantly silent, as if even the sound of a pin dropping on the ground could be heard.

Such dead silence in such surroundings is most frightening.

Jocelyn's nerves, too, followed suit and tightened even more.

And the hand she was clutching Noah's hand kept increasing in strength.

In such a situation, Noah was her only security.

It is like a drowning man who has caught a driftwood.

At this point, all she wanted to do was cling to this one piece of driftwood.

Noah placed his gaze on Jocelyn's face, and in a moment, the glacier on that face melted away.

"Ah ----"

The woman's scream rang out again, even more harshly than earlier.

And the atmosphere, too, became even colder.

The temperature of the entire underground palace seemed to have dropped several degrees all of a sudden.

At this moment, the crowd only felt chills all over their bodies.

And Jocelyn just felt goose bumps, all over her body, rising up.

Noah, however, still had a gentle face, as if unaffected.

Chapter 923 Sophie

The girl in front of her looks only 16 or 17 years old.

Skin like gel, slim but shapely.

She has lovely fringes.

The features are exquisite, as if they were of mixed race, and there is nothing to be faulted in any part of the body.

Jocelyn subconsciously glanced around the girl.

The girl actually has a shadow.

A shadow means it's not a ghost.

Rather, they are people.

Jocelyn took a deep breath and looked at her and asked, "What are you? Are you the corpse?"

The girl blinked a pair of big soulful European eyes, "Yes."

Her voice, with bit of little daughter's petulance and bit of teenage girl's childishness, is very nice.

At this moment, she has a completely harmless look.

Still, deep down, Jocelyn was still wary of her.

Jocelyn frowned deeply, "The reason you did this to me is because you are angry with me? Isn't it? You think I took something from you?"

"If that's the case, then I'm willing to give it back." Jocelyn added.

The girl, however, shook her head before blinking her big eyes once again.

She has long eyelashes.

When the eyes blink, the long eyelashes followed by the fluttering, very cute.

"Then why?" Jocelyn asked, "Is it because, am I disturbing you? I'm sorry."

The girl, however, shook her head again.

Jocelyn was suddenly filled with confusion, "They because of what? Can you put me down first?"

"That god told me that the one who brought me back to life was my master. I want to repay my kindness, so I must stay by my master's side and protect him or her well."

"I asked that God how long I needed to protect him, and God told me that to protect until the day he felt he didn't need to protect."

"I was impressed, he was dressed in a long white robe, had long white hair and a long white beard, looked like a sky god."

"I asked him a lot of questions and he didn't answer me and just left."

Sophie said again word for word.

These words, once again, aggravated the doubts in the heart of Jocelyn.

After hearing all this, Jocelyn felt even more that that God had calculated that all this today and deliberately arranged Sophie to protect him.

Just why did it have to be Sophie?

Jocelyn frowned slightly, "Why did it have to be you?"

Sophie naively shook her head, "I don't know, I asked him, he said the time has not yet come. He refused to say anything, just keep saying the time has not yet come."

"Master, I've really waited for you for a long time. You've finally come, and now I've come to life, but my father is long gone." When it comes to this topic, Sophie's face visibly darkened.

Her eyes are full of sadness.

The next second, crystal tears, from the corners of her eyes, flowed out.

Her words made Jocelyn more and more curious about that God.

Why did he help her so much?

And why Sophie of all people?

"Why does it have to be you?" Jocelyn asked.

Sophie shook her head, a pure light shining under her eyes, "I don't know."

"I asked him a lot of questions and he either didn't answer me or said that the time was not yet right or that I would naturally know the answer when the time came."

Sophie finished and suddenly brightened up, "Oh, yes, he said."

Jocelyn asked, "What?"

Sophie, "God said I would get a special reward when I did well enough, but exactly what it was, he didn't say."

"Then I pressed well, and he said it would be something I would really desire, and left after that." Sophie added.

The more Jocelyn listened, the more she felt that this God was profound and unpredictable.

She thought that there must be some special reason why it was Sophie who had favoured her to help.

As for what it is, she will only know when she meets that God in the future.

She thought that if it was destiny, she and that God would meet sooner or later.

"Actually I don't want anything, I just want to go back to my father's side, but that's not possible either. After all, time has passed now for a long, long time and there is no going back."

When Sophie finished, she let out a long bitter sigh.

Jocelyn seriously looked at Sophie's face again.

She still has a childlike look on her face.

It's like innocent and flawless girl.

Sophie's innermost feelings of longing for her loved ones and nostalgia for the past were understood.

After all the stuff was moved into the national treasury, Jocelyn, together with Noah, returned to her home by private helicopter, with a large army of bodyguards with her.

It was six o'clock in the morning when the plane landed in the courtyard.

It's 6am in the winter morning and it's not quite light yet.

The whole world is grey.

This is the time of year when the city, at its quietest, is at its best.

It seemed that the whole world stood still.

Jocelyn and Noah, who had been busy for a long time, were both tired at this point.

The two of them got off the plane and went straight into the house for a quick shower.

And then they lay down together on the bed.

The sky, at this time of year, has a bit of light.

Jocelyn pressed the remote control and closed the curtains remotely, blocking out the light from outside.

The whole house, once again, returned to darkness.

Snuggled in Noah's arms, Jocelyn, word by word, explained all the spiritual events that happened in the underground palace to Noah.

After hearing everything, Noah's eyes remained as calm as ever, "So, something really happened. I guessed it."

Jocelyn, "I think that the whole thing is getting more and more complicated. Our past life seems to be tens of millions of times more complicated than we think."

"I must have had some involvement with that god, and Sophie, in my past life, otherwise that god would not have treated me so badly, nor would he have chosen Sophie, or even said that Sophie's burial goods should have belonged to me."

When the subject came up, Jocelyn lost her sleepiness.

Noah's eyes were full of planning, "Well, I believe it sooner or later will have an answer."

Jocelyn nodded, "Okay."

Noah frowned deeply, "Do you really want to take Sophie with you? Not afraid of her in lying?"

"I envy Jocelyn, at all times, there are so many handsome men thinking about her."

"Same envy, and even a bit of jealousy."

"All the handsome guys I like are related to Jocelyn."

The comments on the internet are something she now just looks at.

Never takes it to heart.

After browsing around for a while, she closed the topic and looked at the current news.

About an hour later, Noah came out of the bathroom.

With long legs, the man took a step in front of Jocelyn, instantly melting a face of ice and snow, "What's for dinner?"

Jocelyn, "Eggs, and vegetable salad, egg and ham sandwiches."

Just woke up and all she wanted was something simple to eat.

Noah, "Well. I'll do it."

Jocelyn nodded obediently, "Thank you."

The man then left the room in style.

It was only after the man had left that Jocelyn lazily climbed up, and after that she went straight into the bathroom to wash up.

Soon Sophie let out a long, helpless sigh and continued to follow in Jocelyn's footsteps.
When she returned to her room, Jocelyn pulled Sophie with her and went into her huge cloakroom.

Jocelyn pulled Sophie straight to the front of the countless clothes and began to take one by one and keep comparing them on Sophie's body, looking for the right clothes for Sophie.

Sophie, on the other hand, is full of unknowing eyes.

She was, though, in an underground palace, but she was aware of the world outside.

The practice of magic allows her soul, at will, to roam the outside world.

But even so, her mind, too, remained in the time when she was in the country of Egypt to which she belonged.

For other strange clothes, Sophie inside is resistant.

Once she had matched the outfit, she carefully placed it on Sophie and compared it carefully.

Sophie is very tall, very small-boned and well-built, so comparing like this, Jocelyn can already imagine how Sophie would look in this outfit.

It must be great to look at.

With a satisfied face, Jocelyn placed her matching clothes, in Sophie's hands, and said, "Change into this, do you like it?"

Sophie subconsciously took the clothes, but with a face of difficulty, desperately shook her head.

A glint of inquiry flashed under Jocelyn's eyes, "What's wrong?"

Just as the words left her mouth, it occurred to Jocelyn why.

After taking Sophie to see the second bedroom, Jocelyn drove her red Maserati, with Sophie, out the door.

Behind them, dozens of luxury bodyguard cars followed along, protecting the two.

A big row of luxury cars, driving on the road, attracted many eyes.

That's a scene Sophie never experienced.

Before, she had seen those who drove sports cars, but her own soul, however, did not go in and sit in them.

At this moment, she really appreciated it.

She loves it.

This is so much faster than an ancient horse.

Modern life is a happy one.

Jocelyn drove the car with one hand and naturally gathered her big dark curls with the other.

And then looking at Sophie, she asked with a smile, "Sophie, how do you like it?"

Sophie nodded, "I like sports cars. Master, I used to love to find excitement. I used to race with my father together."

"I rode super fast every time, every time my father couldn't beat me. I thought that the horse I owned was the fastest thing in the world."

"But little did I know that many, many years later, in this world, something faster than a horse would appear."

"The world really changed so much."

Sophie said truthfully.

Jocelyn listened attentively with a gentle face and a warm smile at the corners of her mouth, "Well, yes, I'll get you used to it all soon, I'll take you experience the world as it is now."

"Sophie, in this world, I can protect you. Anything you need, you can just call me." added Jocelyn.

This girl, too, is really quite pathetic.

She wants to take care of her.

Jocelyn, "Her family background is very good and she is good looking, why did you break up with her?"

King, "She..."

Once again King stopped.

Jocelyn smiled again, "It's okay if you don't want to talk about it."

Who doesn't have some privacy as an adult?

King, "It's not that I don't want to say, in fact, it's just that, it's quite humiliating to say that, she carried out domestic violence."

Hearing this, Jocelyn was stunned.

Domestic violence.

She can't imagine that King, would be domestically abused by a woman much shorter than him.

She really couldn't have imagined.

Jocelyn, "Why?"

King aggrieved, rubbed his head, "What else could it be? She is just violent, I will be beaten. She hit me, I do not want to fight back, because I love her. And, after all, I am a man, I can't hit a girl."

"But then I figured out that no matter how much I love her, a domestic violence can't be wanted." King added.

"Well, you're right, there's only a difference between zero and a hundred domestic abuses. one domestic abuse and a lifetime of domestic abuse." Jocelyn added.

"Yes."

Sophie listened in silence, but did not interrupt.
