Chapter 2.Fight and explanations

Annalise POV

Future alpha Dalton starts to slowly walk toward me, a tactic used to scare weaker individuals or groups in a fight. I scoff and cross my arms over my chest. I send him a death glare which makes him take a step back. I start walking towards him keeping my head held high and my steps even paying close attention to his movements. He takes a swing at me once I am about two feet from him. I dodge grabbing his arm and yanking on it using his momentum to make him stumble forward and jump out of his way seconds before he crashes into the desk directly behind me. At this point both Charlotte and Samuel are standing, spectating the fight with the rest of the class. He gets back up and he is angry, good I think as I smirk at him. In a fight all anger does is get you hurt or worse killed. He takes two steps towards me, without thinking he swings completely blinded by anger and misses connecting with the wall behind me. Which gives me the opening I need to land a hit to his nose effectively breaking it as blood begins to gush down his face which only pisses him off even more. He starts throwing punches at me left and right, not landing one. I take a step back still blocking his punches and land a kick to his gut and a roundhouse kick to his head almost knocking him out.

He's still lying on the ground barely conscious a minute later when the alpha comes running through the door. It takes him all of ten seconds to figure out who put his son on the ground. I glance at Alpha Aiden who looks at me with a questioning gaze. "What happened? Why is my son laying on the ground barely conscious, with a broken nose?" Alpha Aiden asks. I sigh knowing I have no choice but to tell the alpha what happened so I do and the second I am done speaking the alpha is looking down at his son shaking his head in obvious disappointment. "Ok, everyone, class is dismissed for the rest of the day. You all may go home except Annalise, Charlotte and Samuel. I need the three of you to stay behind." Alpha Aiden says. I walk over to my friends and we watch as everyone else rushes out of class and the pack doctor runs in to check on future alpha Dalton. Once everyone besides the three of us, the pack doctor, Alpha Aiden and the semi conscious future alpha Dalton left the room Alpha Aiden walks over to us. “I have linked your parents and your brother.” Alpha Aiden says and looks directly at me as he says the last part. “They are going to meet us at my office so we can discuss what happened today.” Alpha Aiden says and we nod in understanding as he leads us out of the room. We go to his office after stopping quickly to speak to the pack doctor who now has the future alpha on a stretcher.

Less than 10 minutes later we arrive at the pack house which is really more of a mansion than a house. The exterior is a white washed brick and behind the pack house is a forest with a huge lake in the middle where the monthly pack runs are typically held. These runs are held on full moon nights for shifted members. Members who have yet to shift can still go and celebrate with the pack; they just can't join the run until they receive their wolf. The pack house has five floors, the top floor being for the alpha and his family. The fourth floor is for the beta and his family. The 3rd floor is for the gamma and his family. The second floor is for guests and holds all of the high ranking members' offices. The main floor is where pack members can come and hang out. It has a game room, a huge kitchen, a large dining room that can hold almost the entire pack and a large library. The basement houses the dungeons. We arrive at the alphas office where we are told to sit on the sofa in the sitting area on the far side of the room facing a window. We've only been waiting for about 10 minutes when Charlotte and Samuels parents arrive. I figured my brother would arrive sometime after them as he was in the human city when the alpha linked him. Charlotte and Samuels parents sit directly in front of us in complete silence, their parents eyes glazing over every few minutes meaning their mind linking one another. About 10 minutes pass before I can sense my brother and without saying anything to anyone I run out of the alphas office with everybody right behind me and straight into my brother's arms needing his comfort. I can feel his tense muscles start to relax now that he knows I am ok.

Connor POV

I get a link from Alpha Aiden that my little sister was in a fight with the future alpha. She's ok but I need to report to his office immediately. I quietly walk out of class making a note to email the professor, later. I run out to my car and drive to the pack house probably breaking the speed limit. At this point all I care about is getting to my sister as fast as possible. She's all I have and although the alpha says she's ok I won't be able to breathe properly until I see that she is ok with my own eyes. Once I get to the pack house I park my car and walk as quickly as I can to his office. I am about ten feet from the door when it opens and my sister comes running out and into my arms nearly knocking me over in the process. I wrap my arms around her tightly and breathe a sigh of relief now that I know she's ok. I don't let her go knowing she needs the comfort as much as I do right now. I whisper soothing words and begin to feel her calm in my arms. I let her go after about two minutes when I realized everyone who was in the office followed my sister out. We all head back into the alphas office in silence. I sit with her friend's parents directly across from them. "Before I explain why I called all of you here I would like to know how Annalise knew that you were outside the door, Connor." The alpha says and everyone else in the room besides my sister nods their head in agreement. I sigh knowing it's time to explain some things and link my sister.

Mind link

Me: "It's time we come clean with what we know."

Annalise: "I know I was hoping we would have until you turned eighteen before we had to explain everything but now we don't really have a choice."

Me: Ok then, you trust everyone in the room right?" I ask nervously

Annalise: "Yes of course I do, otherwise I would be trying to come up with a lie or something to get us out of here."

Me: "Ok then I guess it's time."

Annalise: "Yep it's time." Annalise says radiating confidence.

End of mind link

I take a deep breath and try to steal my nerves as my sister begins to speak. "I know you're all curious as to how I knew Connor was in the hall without being able to scent him. As you all know Connor and I were left here by our parents when we were really young to keep us safe, during that time the close bond we already shared became even stronger to the point that it's now unbreakable. With our bond being as strong as it is as long as we are within a ten-twenty feet radius of each other we can sense each other. I've honestly always found that odd but then we always knew we were different."
