

Chapter 11

The two ladies quickly garnered attention immediately as they walked into the lobby and headed towards the entrance. With each step Nathalia took, her wavy hair would sway and bounce as the wind ruffled the edge of her yellow layered dress. Even though Nathalia didn't mean to gain attention her beauty was already doing the job.

The men they walked past had their eyes widened in bewilderment as they couldn't help but leered and took a second glance. They were all shamelessly drooling at the sight.

Eva had a smirk on her face when she noticed the reaction of the people around them. She was too surprised since she was already used to these looks whenever she walked with Nathalia.

While the two ladies chatted away, Eva was unaware that the men were actually staring and admiring the stunning beautiful woman beside the supermodel Natalia. Although Nathalia wasn't a woman whose beauty could be ignored, she was a seductress as many called her. However, the woman next to her was on another level of beauty, she was simply a goddess.

Eva thought this stare was directed at her best friends, and no one else.

With her nose, natural heart-shaped pink lips and fierce eyes. Eva's appearance was the opposite of what she was nine months ago. Although she had a little fierceness in her, but, because she was engaged to Mark she had to act a little docile sometimes to gain his attention.

However, ever since the incident, Eva had nothing to hide. Instead, at the moment she looked like a powerful woman that men seemed to fear but admire in secret.

Despite how Eva viewed her demeanor and composure, her appearance didn't match with her thought. Perhaps, it was due to the years of training and experience but she always walked with confidence.

"Let's go, Josh." Nathalia ordered the driver after both she and Eva entered the car.

A few minutes later,

"Hey, didn't you say we are going to eat lunch? Then what are we doing here?" Eva questioned cluelessly. The moment the car came to a stop and Eva looked out of the car, she saw that they arrived at a very big boutique.

"Did I?" Natalia remarked, trying to fake ignorance to Eva's question.

Eva gave her best friend a pointed look, she knew there was something up with Nathalia urging her to go out today.

"Okay, Fine. I did say we would have lunch but I changed my mind, so we are going shopping first." Nathalia replied as she flicked her hair behind her ear.

"Since when did you plan this, besides why did you need to buy more clothes when you already have enough." Eva let out a long sigh as she rubbed her temple in frustration.

"We are not shopping for me but you. And you're not going to blame anyone, it's you. Seeing your wardrobe today urged me to do some shopping besides shopping would give you more confidence." Nathalia quickly chided, knowing that her stubborn friend could refuse going in there.

"I love my wardrobe as it is, Talia. You know how stressful shopping is?" Eva grumbled to her friend.

"Don't worry, you have an expert like me beside you. Now enough grumbling and stop being lazy and let's go." Nathalia grabbed Eva's hand and pulled her out of the car.

Two seductive and drop dead gorgeous ladies stepped out of the car and walked towards the entrance of the boutique. Immediately they entered the building, Eva was amazed by decorations and how big and spacious the inside was.

"You like it, right?" Nathalia whispered in a low voice beside Eva, seeing the amazed expression on her face.

"It's beautiful." Eva admitted, even she was amazed she still felt it was a hassle to shop.

"Welcome, Miss Evans. It's been a long time since we've seen you visit our boutique." A woman's voice sounded when she saw Nathalia and Eva walk into the building. She had a wide smile on her face as she bowed. The woman was one of the head staff in the boutique.

"Yes, it has, Miss Maria. I brought a guest along with me. Please, treat her with utmost care like you would for me." Nathalia said while pointing at Eva. She was a VIP client in the boutique and visited frequently so it was most likely that she was recognized by the staff.

"Welcome, Young miss. I'm Maria and I will attend to your needs along with these other sales attendants. Please, feel free to tell us what you need." Maria turned to look at Eva while pointing at the other three female attendants behind her.

"Thank you." Eva nodded her head in acknowledgement at them.

"You're just in luck, Miss Evans, we have some new brands of clothes that arrived this morning. I'm sure both Miss Evan and Miss" Maria was suddenly cut off between her sentences by Eva.

"Eva.... You can call me Eva." Eva offered, noticing that Maria was having trouble with addressing her.

Maria blushed slightly but quickly recomposed herself. "I'm sure both Miss Nathalia and Miss Eva would love those dresses. We have them on the fifth floor." Maria finally completed her words as she smiled at Eva.

"You hear that, Eva! New dresses!" Nathalia squeaked in excitement.

"I thought we were here to buy clothes for me? Why are you more excited than me?" Eva suddenly remarked with a teasing smirk on her face.

"Of course, I'm excited because of you. I was afraid that there won't be enough clothes to stuff your wardrobe."

Nathalia replied, Eva almost choked at her friend's shamelessness.

"You make it sound like my wardrobe is utterly useless." Eva whined but Nathalia who was next to her heard clearly.

"Yes it is. Now let's go." Before Eva could even reply to her words, she was dragged away by Nathalia. She couldn't count how many times she had dragged and pulled today.

Seeing the two ladies walking away, Maria smiled and immediately followed behind them along with the other three sales attendants.

Eva and Nathalia walked out of the elevator when they got to the fifth floor. Maria and the other three attendants also stepped out of the next elevator and joined both ladies.

"Wow, so many clothes. I love it." Nathalia clasped her hand together with a wide smile on her face.

She wrapped her arm around Eva. "Let's go over to that area." Nathalia pointed at a clothing section as she pulled Eva towards the area.