

Chapter 6

"W-what?! Take responsibility for what?" Eva questioned, confused and taken aback by what the man said. She immediately gathered her strength and pushed the man's body off her and sat up on the bed again.

"Why are you acting clueless? You have to take responsibility for taking advantage of me last night." He replied in a cold tone as he sat up on the bed too glaring at Eva.

Eva fell into a daze for a few minutes when she heard his reply. 'Advantage?' She repeated in her mind.

"Did.... Did I hear you correctly, Mister? Eva questioned when she was finally able to regain her composure." "You mean.... I should take responsibility for last night?" she added while pointing at herself.

"Yes." His response curt, as his facial expression remained cold and indifferent.

"Tsk..." Eva scoffed out in disbelief when she heard his confident response. "Why would I be the one to take responsibility for what happened? Are you seriously asking me that?" Eva remarked, this time her tone and expression suddenly changed as she crossed her arms in front of her chest.

"Then are you so irresponsible to deny the fact that you entered my room last night?" He retorted back.

Eva eyebrows twitched in anger. "Look here, Mister. Last night wasn't my fault, okay? I clearly remember how I was about to enter my hotel room, when someone unexpectedly grabbed me and I was shoved into this room. And when I tried to get out you stopped me and I was powerless against you. Besides, have you taken a look at yourself? I mean, you're obviously twice my size and stronger than me, so who did you think took advantage of the other person? Did you think it's easy for me to take advantage of you?" Eva immediately remarks while stating the fact, she was slightly pissed by the man's accusation.

"Honestly, you were the one that took advantage of me but I won't blame you either because I was completely drunk and also used you in some ways. That's why we should settle this amicably like normal adults and consider this a one-night stand and go our separate ways." Eva immediately willingly suggested the idea, trying her luck one more time to get out of this mess. She was sure that after the incident that occurred at her wedding ceremony yesterday, her already ruined and tarnished reputation would have taken another heavy blow, and right now her reputation was on the verge of hitting rock bottom.

Right now, she was just hanging on to the tiny thread of reputation she had left and the last thing she wanted was another mind blowing scandal about her that would completely damage her entire reputation beyond repair.

She's hoping that her suggestion would appease this man and he wouldn't give her any difficulties and just agree to her condition. Unfortunately, his response was in complete contrast to her expectations.

"I refused your proposal. It's impossible for me to let this go. Since this was my fault I'll willingly take responsibility." He replied with a displeased expression at the suggestion Eva made.

"Yes, you should take responsibility.... Wait! What?!" Eva questioned when she realized that the reply she got was entirely different from what she was expecting.

"I'm not asking you to take responsibility, so you don't have to, okay? Look, if it's about money....I can pay you any amount you want as long as you just let us treat this whole situation as nothing. Just name whatever the amount you desire." Eva quickly came up with another idea and offered. She can't let this whole situation get out of her hands 2

She looked at the man who was just staring at her intently with a blank expression making it difficult for her to tell what he was thinking but she was hoping that he'd agree to her offer this time around.

"What made you think I need your money? Did you think you could afford my amount?" Eva was stunned by his question.

Why was he becoming so impossible to get rid of and acting stubborn about this? There was absolutely no way he was thinking they were going to become a couple because of the one steamy night spent together. She didn't even remember many details of the night for crying out loud! He should be the one trying to get rid of her, not the other way round.

Eva sucked a deep breath and rubbed the side of her head to relieve her distress. "Excuse me, Mister. I want you to understand that even though we might have spent the night together, whatever happened between us was just a fluke because neither of us were in our state of minds. Therefore, you don't have to bother about whether I can pay you the amount you want. All you have to do is just give me an amount, I can double the price of whatever you want, so let's not prolong this conversation and end it all here." Eva remarked, she was oblivious to the identity of the person she was talking to but she was also confident that she could pay whatever he wanted. 1

"My decision is final. I don't wish to treat this as a fluke or whatever you call it." He refused the offer coldly as he moved the blanket and stood up from the bed.

Seeing his action, Eva quickly closed her eyes shut in order to avoid seeing him naked since she thought he was.

"What are you doing?" He still had the same cold expression but he was staring at Eva wondering what she was doing.

"Trying to avoid seeing you naked." Eva replied curtly.

"Shouldn't you get used to it already?" Eva heard his cold voice which made her open her eyes slowly and glanced at him, to her surprise he was wearing a boxer which made her sigh in relief.

However, Eva's heart skipped a beat when she saw him standing in front of her. Earlier, she had been so occupied in trying to end this situation that she hadn't taken notice of him. But seeing him right now, Eva was completely captivated as the reflection of the sun shone on him.

His face features were perfect and deep, like it was a refined carved work of art and the beauty he possessed made him look like a godly divine being. Totally mesmerized by his godlike figure, her gaze traveled down his body and noticed every detail of his body was well proportioned, his muscles and abs were well toned.

Eva didn't realize that she had been staring at this stranger for a very long time.

"You like the view of what you see?" He asked as his lips curved up into a small smirk.

"Yes, indeed it's a good site. But..." Eva was unable to finish her sentence when she realized she had just blundered out her mind and answered his questions without thinking.

'Stupid!' She berated herself as her face flushed in embarrassment.

 +15 BONUS

To hide her embarrassment, Eva quickly turned her face to the other side, she coughed a little bit to clear the awkward atmosphere before crossing her arms and spoke indifferently.

"I mean the view outside is indeed beautiful, so don't get me wrong."

"They explain why you were gawking at me."

Eva almost choked on his reply. "W-what?! Gawking? Me? That's because you're standing near the outside view, okay?"
Eva quickly replied.

'Just why did you have to answer him in the first instant!!!'

Watching her face flushed completely red, Damien curved into a smile he never knew he could make.

SURPRISE GIFT: 100 BONUS FREE FOR YOU

 GET IT

 Comments

 Vote (1.3k) 