

Chapter 7

Eva stared at the wall in daze, as the man had long left her and was now in the shower. The sound of running water brought her back to her senses, she turned her head and glanced at the wall clock in the hotel room.

'Damn it! That bastard dare to do this to me and not give me a response!' Without a single thought, Eva ignored the throbbing and aching body and struggled to get out of the bed.

With the sound of running water, she made up her mind and came to a decision. Glaring at the closed bathroom door, Eva grabbed one of the robes on the shelf and covered her naked body.

Seeing her black dress she had worn yesterday on the floor, she sighed in sorrow and pity. The dress was the only one made and she knew how much stress she had to go through before she got this dress, it also cost her a fortune as the dress was so expensive. It was a dress she had prepared to wear after her wedding ceremony but since there was no ceremony she had worn it to the club last night.

But now this expensive dress she only got the chance to wear once was torn and rubble thanks to that ruthless man! Eva bent down, even though it was already torn into pieces she still picked it up along with her black heels, panties, bra and purse.

While she was busy with her clothes, her eyes suddenly landed on a gold hotel room keycard. "There you are." Eva muttered as she grabbed without hesitation, it was her hotel room keycard.

After collecting all her belongings in the room, her eyes caught sight of a notepad and pen by the side table next to the bed, which the hotel management usually leaves for their guests to use.

Another idea popped into Eva's mind as she walked towards the table. She thought that it would be rude to just get up and leave since the man had seen her face already, so she sighed and picked up the pen and started writing. Once she was done, Eva opened her purse and wrote a check and placed some cash on the table. She glanced at the bathroom before she darted out of the room as her life depended on it at the moment.

Eva let out a huge sigh of relief the moment she stepped out of the room and closed the door behind her, yet she still felt like a huge mountain was dropped on her.

She raised her room keycard and looked at her room number but fortunately across from the man room was her room. 'Just how much luck I must have possessed.' Eva thought, shaking her head in disappointment. However, she didn't bother to waste time as she had to get out of the hallway before that man noticed her absence in the room. She quickly scanned the keycard and entered her room and slammed it shut.

The moment Eva was sure that she was in her room, she lost the energy in her legs and dropped to her knees, trembling as she hugged herself tightly.

Back in the other room, the closed door to the bathroom opened. The man walked out of the bathroom with the hotels white bathrobe over his body, he left the white collar slightly loose, revealing the center of his muscline chest and nice collar bones.

He had a towel in one of his hand which he used to dry his drenched wet hair as he strolled out. The first thing he did was look at the bed and found it empty, he turned his gaze to where her cloth and shoe were and there was nothing on the floor.

A deep frown appeared on his godlike handsome face when he saw the empty room. However, before he turned his attention away he caught sight of a note at the side table. He walked over to the table and picked the note up.

Reading the content in the note, the corner of lips curved and arc into an evil, yet seductive smirk that could make any woman fall madly in love. But the smirk only lasted for a few seconds before it disappeared.

NOTE: In case you're reading this note now, I probably would have been gone, but I'm truly very sorry for what happened yesterday, however, let's be modest and overlook this as a one-night stand- Nothing else attached. And I've written a check note of a million dollars and the five hundred thousand dollars cash you see next to the note is for you. Since you didn't name the amount you want, I hope this would be sufficient enough for you. So just consider all this situation as one of your worst nightmare....Let's never meet again. 1

*Ring! Ring!*

The man's attention was immediately disrupted by the sound of the phone ringing. He glanced at it and picked it up.

"Speak." He commanded in a cold and indifferent tone.

"Where are you, Boss. You have a meeting at 1:30pm" A male voice sounded on the side of the phone as he hurriedly reported.

"Same place. Send a car." His response was curt. Without waiting for the other person to speak, he hung up the call before glancing back at the note again. 1

'One-night stand? We shall meet again!'

Eva was oblivious to what she had done with her note. She walked out of the bathroom, feeling extra clean and refreshed after taking a long shower using the soap bar to scrub herself clean. However, the only she couldn't get rid of was that her lower part was still in so much pain, even her legs was on serious pain.

She workout everyday, yet she couldn't understand why having sex could make her so tired.

Standing in front of the full-body mirror, she lowered the white bathrobe revealing her bare upper body.

Eva creased her eyebrow into a frown as she stare at her body. There were many love marks and slight purple bruises on her snow white skin, which she found as an eyesore to her. She let out a long and regretful sigh at the thought of her first time being stolen by some stranger she didn't even know.

'At least the stranger was handsome. Besides that, something like this is normal nowadays. *sniff* I'm sure he would have taken the money and we won't cross path ever after today' Eva thought to herself, she felt like crying but it was useless. It had already happened and she couldn't go back and demand for her virginity.
