CHAPTER 101

The meeting hall was still standing and pack members were sleeping in whatever buildings hadn't been burnt down. So it was getting pretty cramped, but it was necessary for right now.

My house was still standing. They obviously didn't know which one was mine and probably thought that I was living at the packhouse.

But none of that mattered anymore.

The whole pack gathered in the meeting hall and took their seats while I was on the stage with Koda, Tyler, Dean, Grayson and Sophia.

The first person we called for trial was Elias. The werewolf from the supernatural council.

He was forced to kneel before us and he looked up at me who was sitting right in the middle of the Alpha family.

"You tried to have me killed." I said.

"You're dangerous." He said.

"Just remember that whatever you say here, is going to determine whether you live or die. Now, I know how stubborn you council members are. So, I am only going to ask one question. And remember, I will know if you're lying." I explained.

"Then ask the damn question." He scoffed.

"If I let you live, are you going to try and kill me again?" I said.

He looked at me and then at every member of the Alpha family before he looked back at me. "Yes." He said.

"That's too bad." I said.

So Koda got up from his seat and he walked over with extended claws.

He stood behind Elias and he ripped his claws across Elias' throat, causing him to bleed out and die right in front of us.

"I have a feeling that all of the council members are going to say the same." Grayson said. "Me too. But I'm giving them one last chance." I said.

Grayson was right. Each of the supernatural council said the same thing so all the guys got a chance to kill someone that day. And even Grayson killed one since there were four of them.

CHAPTER 101

It was a long day questioning the supernatural council and I was reminded that I still had to put Wesley on trial. But I didn't want to do that today.

I decided that we'd finish off tomorrow and I headed home.

When I got there I sat on the couch and I felt relieved to be home.

It was good to be home. I wanted to be here. But at the same time, I wanted to go back to the castle.

There was something about that place. I just knew that I belonged there. And I wanted to go back there. As soon as possible.

But I still didn't know where the pack stood on the issue of the castle.

They might not want to move to where the castle is. They may not want to live at the bottom of the Queen's castle.

I could understand that. But I had a role now that I needed to follow.

The second I picked up this necklace, I accepted my role in the royal family.

The door opened so I looked over expecting to see the triplets but it was Logan.

"What the hell are you doing here?" I asked.

"Well, I am one of the vampires that you won't kill so I've been asked to come here and give you a message." Logan said.

"I don't like the sound of this." I said.

"It's nothing bad. Really. The vampires saw the battle. It was recorded."

"How?" I asked.

"That warlock that you killed. He wanted it documented on the dark web for all supernatural beings to see it. To see you die. Instead it went the other way." Logan explained, walking over and sitting on the other chair. "Okay. So, what are you doing here? I haven't heard anything from the vampires." I said.

"That's why I'm here. They're surrendering and aren't intending to fight you. They are going to follow you as their Queen and they are hoping that you don't wipe them out because they know you can find them now." He said. I started laughing, but Logan was looking at me worriedly.

"Tell the vampires that if they step one foot out of line, I'll cut that foot off." I said.

"I will do that." He said.

"No more killing humans for sport. If they get hungry, I'll try and arrange for blood banks to be set up for them around the country." I said.

"Really?" He asked.

"Yeah. The less humans that die, the better." I said.

"Alright. I will definitely let them know that." He said.

The triplets walked into my house then and they all growled when they saw Logan.

"It's alright. I was just leaving." Logan said, standing up quickly and he went out the back door so he didn't have to walk past the triplets.

"What did he want?" Tyler asked.

"To let me know that the vampires don't want any trouble. They are willing to follow me and obey my rules." I said.

"That's good." He said.

"I guess." I said.

"Are you alright?" Dean asked, sitting next to me.

"I'm really tired." I said, leaning my head on his shoulder.

Koda sat on the other side of me while Tyler sat on the floor leaning against my legs.

"We need to talk about Wesley." Koda said.

"I know." I said.

"You know what has to be done here. I know that it's not easy, but it has to be done."
Dean said.

"Stop trying to convince me. I already know that he has to die. It's gonna happen tomorrow morning. I don't know why I should be struggling with this. He tried to kill me. He ignored me

my whole life. He tried to pay me off every month so I would hopefully like him when he finally showed his face. I don't owe him anything." I said. "But he's still your father."
Koda said.

"Yeah."

"I'll give the order." Koda said. And I nodded my head.

"Don't bother asking any questions. I don't want to hear his bullshit excuses. I don't want to hear him plead. I just want him gone." I said. 3/5

"You got it." He said, kissing me on the forehead.

I must have been more tired than I realized because I fell asleep on the couch, still leaning against Dean.

They took me to bed at some point during the night and they all jumped in as well.

I woke up the following morning, sandwiched between the guys but I just laid there staring at the ceiling.

I was dreading this morning and I didn't want to get out of bed. But I knew that I couldn't put it off forever.

I looked at the clock and it was 8am.

The latest I've slept in, in years.

I could tell that the guys were awake, but they didn't want to wake me so none of them got up.

But they knew as soon as I was awake so we got up and went to the kitchen.

I sat at the table with a coffee.

"Can someone take Wesley to see Camila? I guess I should probably let them say goodbye.

And take Rory as well." I said.

"What do you want to do about Camila and Rory?" Koda asked.

"They can go. I was only keeping them to keep Wesley in line." I said.

So Koda called the head warrior and set it up.

As soon as I finished my coffee and got changed, I waited for the guys to change and we headed over to the meeting hall.

Wesley was the last person to go on trial and Koda did everything that I asked.

He was brought into the room and he wasn't asked any questions.

Everyone knew what he did to me and how he betrayed me. So, there was no question about what was going to happen.

I was at the meeting hall for the whole event, but Koda is the one that carried it out. And killed Wesley with his own bare hands.

Camila and Rory had already left town by the time that happened. Wesley had told them to go and he rejected Camila so she wouldn't feel him die. Because that would be a lot worse than her feeling him die.

And once that was over, Grayson started talking to the pack about moving to the castle.

CHAPTER 101

I was surprised when I didn't get much resistance.

The dragons had gone back to the castle and that was something that they were going to have to get used to, but they thought it was a good idea to start over somewhere fresh.

So they were going to come back to the castle with me.

They were going to rebuild their homes at the bottom of the stairs to the castle, and make a village at the bottom of the castle.

I thought it was very medievil of them, but I loved it. I thought it was a great idea and no one hesitated or had second thoughts about it. So we started making arrangements immediately.

CHAPTER 102

A YEAR LATER

The triplets and I had settled into the castle. Their three best friends Aiden, Julian and Anthony were also living in the castle because they were going to be the guys council, or Beta's, however you want to look at it.

But Grayson and Sophia were living in the castle as well because they were still the Alpha and Luna.

But the dynamic had changed a lot. Since I was Queen and everyone had to answer to me.

People kept asking me if I was going to have all three guys crowned as King or just Koda because he was the oldest. But I couldn't choose just one. It was going to be all of them or none of them.

Lexie was also living in the castle because she was basically my lady in waiting. And she loved it.

I didn't ask too much of her and we just got to spend most of the day together.

I was sitting in my room in front of the vanity wearing a dressing gown and staring at my reflection when Lexie walked in.

"You're not even dressed yet. Everyone's here." She said.

"I know. I don't know if I can do this." I said.

"What do you mean?" She asked, sitting next to me.

"I know that I've been doing royal duties for the last year. I've been sorting out packs and species and punishing Alpha's that are abusing pack members, punishing vampires for not following the rules. I've set up all those blood banks for the vampires. But after tonight, it's going to be official. I'm going to be the Queen. I'm only 19."

"Nova. If you weren't cut out for it, then you wouldn't have that necklace around your neck. You wouldn't have saved us from that attack. You wouldn't have been able to do what you've done in the last 12 months. You've amazed everyone with what you've done. You are definitely cut out for this." She said.

"I'm scared." I admitted.

"You'd be a fool not to be. But you have three fantastic mates that are going to help you navigate your way through this."

CHAPTER 102

"Well, that's something else entirely. None of us really know what we're doing." I admitted.

"Then fake it. No one will know." She said. And I just smirked at her through the mirror.

I looked back in the vanity and it felt like I didn't even notice the woman that was looking back at me.

"What am I supposed to do?"

"You're supposed to do what you were destined to do. You're going to go out there and be the best damn Queen to those people that you can be. No one expects you to do st that you can't do. So, you do the best that you can." Lexie said. She grabbed the brush off the vanity and she got up and started brushing and styling my hair.

I then started applying my makeup and I was trying to concentrate on what needed to be done tonight.

As soon as I finished my makeup and Lexie had styled my hair, I walked to the walk-in wardrobe and I looked at the dress that was picked out for me to wear tonight.

I got dressed into the straight white princess cut floor length dress with thin straps with a white cape over it that covered my shoulders and attached at the front with a gold dragon attaching both sides of the cape to keep it closed. I walked back into the bedroom and the triplets were standing there in their tuxedos and they all stopped to look at me.

"Is it too much?" I asked.

"No way." Dean said.

"It's perfect." Tyler said.

"And you look beautiful." Koda said, walking over to me and kissing me.

"Don't ruin her makeup." Lexie warned them.

"Are you ready?" Dean asked.

"Not in the least." I said.

"Well, the people are." Tyler said.

"I know."

We walked out of the bedroom and down the hallway of the first floor of the castle and we found our way to the front doors.

I had to take a couple of deep breaths before the guards opened the large mahogany doors and the four of us walked out onto the stone landing at the top of the stairs.

We walked to the edge where there was a stone wall that came up to my waist. Grayson and Sophia joined us just after we walked out.

And out in front of us were thousands of people and creatures.

There were werewolves, vampires, witches and fae's. All cheering on the new royal family. All enjoying this big celebration as me finally coming out as their Queen.

I had never felt this nervous before, so the guys had to help me down the massive staircase to get down to the field beside the castle where the village had been built and there were people everywhere.

They all greeted us and they were ready for this big extravagant party that we had set up for the subjects that I was now responsible for.

The triplets stayed close to me that night and I wouldn't have had it any other way.

We were sitting up at the head table and I was sitting there looking out among everyone. The first time in my life I had seen every specie mingling with each other and not trying to kill each other.

I leaned back in my chair and couldn't help but smile as I watched all the happy faces in front of me. And I made a vow to myself right then and there.

I was going to ensure that they never lost those smiles. That they would live out the rest of their lives happy, just like I was with Koda, Tyler and Dean.

"If I could have everyone's attention please?" I asked, standing up. So another assistant of the castle announced for everyone to be quiet.

"What's going on?" Koda asked.

"I just have one more announcement to make. It's such a beautiful night out here with such beautiful people. I was going to wait until later but I feel like I want everyone to know right now. Including my incredible mates." I explained.

"You're making us a little nervous here." Dean said. But I just looked down at him and smiled as they were all still sitting down while I was standing..

"I wanted to announce that soon enough there is going to be a prince or princess gracing this castle with us." I announced.

Koda dropped the glass that he was holding and it smashed all over the ground as he looked at me in shock before he stood up and made me face him.

"Yeah. I'm positive." I said. And he pulled me into the tightest hug I've ever felt along with Tyler and Dean behind me.

The love that they are feeling towards me was unmistakable. And I didn't need a mate bond to tell me that. We were going to be a proper family and that's all that mattered to us.

PART TWO CHAPTER ONE - PRINCESS EMMA

16 YEARS LATER

I guess my life seems like a fairytale to so many she-wolves out there. My mother is the werewolf Queen and I have three fathers. They're triplets and none of them ever cared who my real father was and neither do I. They've all been there for me growing up, but still, growing up in this castle can be stifling.

Don't get me wrong. I love all of my parents. They have treated me so great and they will do anything for me.

But sometimes it's a little hard to tell if people are actually my friends or if they just want to get close to me because of my connection in the Royal Family.

I mean, I am the next one to take over the throne since I am an only child.

I always wondered why mom never had any more kids, but I'm happy being the only one.

They've taught me not to think I was above other werewolves because of my rank or to think that I was better than anyone else.

I go to school like a normal teenager and I'll be turning 16 in a couple of days.

I'm looking forward to that. That's the age my mother said that I can start dating.

I got my wolf a few years ago. Around the same age my mother was and she said that it was young to get a wolf at that age.

She's a white wolf. Very special.

My wolf is silver. And still a rarity. My parents said that I obviously take after my mother, but at the moment, I don't really think I do. I mean, she's got so much power and I'm not talking about being the Queen.

She's a witch and a fae and a vampire and a werewolf. She's everything mixed in together and I think everyone was expecting me to be just like her. But I haven't shown any signs of having those sorts of powers. It's a little disappointing, but there's nothing I can do about it.

I walked down the stairs to the dining room one morning and I saw my mother and my three dad's already sitting there waiting for me.

"Are you alright Emma? You're usually the first one to the breakfast table." My mother said as I sat in my usual seat.

"Yeah. I just overslept a bit. I'm sorry." I said. But my mother looked at me a little intensely, so I tried not to look at her and tried to control my thoughts. She can read minds if she wants to, but I know that she doesn't if it's not life threatening.

I just wasn't sure if she would do it to me because she's worried about me.

"Are you sure?" Mom asked.

"Nova. She said that she's fine. Just leave it." Pa Koda said.

"Alright. Well, what have you got planned for today?" Mom asked as the cook started bringing out our breakfast.

"School and then training and then I don't know. I might hang out with some friends after school." I said.

"Why don't you invite them back here? We know who they are but they've never come here before." Pa Dean said.

"It's complicated. I'd just rather hang out with them outside of the castle." I said. And my mother nodded her head like she completely understood.

My dad's looked confused, but I think my mom managed to calm them down.

"What about you guys? What have you got going on today?" I asked.

"Well, the werewolf council is going to be here to talk about new laws that they want to start enforcing." Pa Tyler said. And my mother scoffed. "Yeah. Like that's gonna happen." She said. And Tyler smirked at her.

My mother wasn't a huge fan of the werewolf council. Even though my mother was Queen, they believed that they should have more say in how the werewolf community is run.

My mother is the head of the supernatural council and they think that she can't handle the werewolf council as well.

It's obvious that they don't know her very well.

When I left home I walked down the stairs and through the village at the bottom of the castle.

I walked across the field until I got to the next werewolf pack until I got to my school.

As soon as I got there I saw my best friend standing out the front of the building like she always does.

"Hi Emma." Avery said, putting her phone away in her back pocket.

"Hi." I said, leaning on the brick staircase.

"Are you alright?" She asked.

"I guess. I'm just bored with all the same crap."

"Well, you turn 16 in a couple of days. That's great, isn't it? It means you can actually start dating."

"Yeah. And everyone around here knows that."

"So what? You can have a couple of dates and see how it goes. If you are anything like your mother then you will know if they are good or not." Avery said. And I smiled at her.

"Yeah. Maybe. Come on, we're going to be late."

I was hoping that I could possibly have my mother's instincts, if I can't have her physical ability. But I'm not sure about that.

I wouldn't be sure if any guy wants me for me or because of my title.

But then again, that's where my mother will definitely help me if I have any doubt. And everyone around here knows that.

We got to my locker and I grabbed out the books that I needed when I saw a group of girls walk past.

They started whispering as they walked past me and giggling amongst themselves.

I put my head down and looked at my books as Avery turned to look at me.

She knew that it really bothered me when those girls were hanging around.

I know that I didn't have my mother's looks. I had darker hair than her and I am nowhere near as skinny as she is or ever has been.

I fill out my clothes a bit more, but my dad insists that it's mostly muscle because I've been training my whole life.

I guess you can say that I just don't have a woman's body. It's more like an athlete's body.

That's all.

"Hey. I've told you not to worry about those skanks. You are the princess of all werewolves. They are stupid for picking on you in the first place. They know that your parents could have them banished if you ever told on them." Avery said. "I know. But they know that I'm not going to say anything. I don't want to go running home to mommy and daddy whenever someone is being mean to me. I have to learn how to handle it myself." I said. 3/4

Avery gave me a look like she felt sorry for me.

She knew how much pressure was on me to succeed and be independent because I would

I have big shoes to fill and no one really understands that.

Especially with people like those girls who are hoping that I will fail. And they are just waiting

CHAPTER 002

My favorite class was werewolf history. And not just because I needed to learn it to be the next Queen, but because it was a really interesting subject.

Of course, my mother's name came up a lot in class. The battles that she fought. Her life as a hybrid and how she moved to Alaska in order to save the triplets. Her mates. My fathers. But they ended up saving each other. And that afternoon we had training. Which I was always good at.

My dad's made sure of it. And so did my mother. They all wanted me well trained from a young age because they knew that I would be vulnerable to an attack against them. So they did everything they could in order to protect me and to make sure that I could protect myself.

So I was usually our trainer's assistant. Helping the others with their stances and they're body movements while training.

When we were finished with that, Avery and I decided to go downtown and check out a couple of shops because I needed a new dress for my 16th birthday party.

I could see the castle from up on that massive mountains from where we were in this pack and it looked really beautiful from this view.

I tried not to look at it too much. I lived there. I didn't need to see what it looked like whenever I wasn't there.

Avery and I shopped for a while before I started walking home and she headed to her house.

As soon as I walked inside I could hear music playing in one. of the rooms.

I followed the sound and I ended up standing in one of the sitting rooms.

Mom was in there alone with Pa Tyler.

They were slow dancing in the middle of the room and I leaned against the doorframe to watch them.

He would lean back occasionally and kiss mom and he was holding her so close.

"What are you doing kid?" Pa Dean asked, standing next to me.

"Just watching." I said.

"I can tell that there's more going on in there."

"I guess I'm just excited to meet my mates." I said.

"Mates?" He asked, confused.

"Yeah. Mates."

"Emma. You know that having three mates isn't normal, don't you?" He asked.

"What are you talking about? Of course it is. Mom has three mates and you guys are all great together. I hope I just get a piece of what you guys have." I said.

"You will. When you find your mate. But you have to be realistic. It might only be one mate."

I looked at him, confused and a little disappointed.

That can't be right. I've grown up with three dads. All three are my mother's mates and they couldn't be happier. I have always known that I was going to get what they have. I mean, I have

I just nodded my head at Pa Dean and I walked away from the room and I headed upstairs to my bedroom.

I put my bag on the floor next to my bed and I sat on the seat under my window, looking out among the forests and the packs that had been built closer to the castle so they would be better protected.

It was a beautiful sight from here, but I still felt a little empty. Like there was something missing.

Someone knocked on the door and brought me out of my thoughts.

"Who is it?" I asked.

"It's Rory." She answered. So I got up to answer the door and she was holding a tray of food for my afternoon snack.

She walked into my room and placed it on the desk in my room.

Rory was only a couple of years younger than my mother, but she looked so much older.

Probably because she's been made a servant in the castle instead of my mother putting her to death for plotting to try and have my mother killed before I was born.

She's my mother's stepsister. And my mother thought death would be too easy for her. So she came up with a better punishment. And she's never allowed to leave. Since she's tied to the dragons that protect this place. As soon as she steps away from the castle, they know and they will bring her back.

I actually thought it was a great punishment. But what do I know? I wasn't there when they were plotting against my mother.

"Will that be everything?" Rory asked.

"Yeah." I said. So she left my room and I closed the door behind her.

I sat there snacking on the food while I was doing my homework from that day but it was just a small afternoon snack.

I still had to go downstairs and have dinner with my parents.

We try to have dinner together every night. Mom insisted. It's one way for the family to stay connected.

I wasn't really in a talkative mood today so after dinner I went to the back garden that was above the ocean on the back of the castle.

There was a stone wall around the garden and I sat there staring out at the ocean when I saw my mom coming out towards me.

"Are you going to tell me what's bothering you?" She asked as she sat next to me.

"Honestly, I don't really know. I just don't feel like myself lately." I said.

"What do you mean?"

"Well, I've been really excited about finding my mates because I thought three mates was pretty normal. But Pa Dean told me that it's not that normal. And I've got my 16th birthday coming up which is really scaring me. I know you said that I could date, but how can I know that these guys are going to like me for me or because of who I am?" I asked.

"These are all perfectly normal feelings. Especially for when you start dating. Everything is very strange at first. But you have always had good instincts."

"I never got any of your powers. Does that mean that there's something wrong with me?" I asked.

"Absolutely not. Why would you ever ask that? There's nothing wrong with you."

"I'm not as pretty as you. I don't have the powers that you have. What if I'm not good enough to be Queen?" I asked.

She looked at me suspiciously for a moment before she looked out at the ocean as well.

"Did Hazel say something to you?" Mom asked. And I snapped my head around to look at her strangely and in shock with wide eyes.

"Did you really think you could keep that from me? I didn't have to read your thoughts to know

"They don't say anything to me directly. But they make it pretty well known that they hate me."

"That's because they're jealous. Because you are next in line to the throne. You are going to have plenty of male suitors and I know that definitely pisses me off, going by her reputation. And because you're kind and smart and strong. She's not. Believe me, I've looked into that tramp." Mom said.

"You have?" I asked, surprised.

"Yeah. I did a background search when I was first told about her. And you have nothing to worry about." Mom said.

"Can I ask what you found out about her?" I asked, with a wry little smirk.

"You know that I can't tell you that. You just have to trust me."

So I smiled and I nodded my head.

She pulled me closer to her and wrapped her arms around me.

"I love you mom."

"I love you too." She said, kissing the top of my head.

CHAPTER 003

The next few days went really fast before it was finally my 16th birthday and my parents were planning a huge fancy party in the ballroom.

I knew that they wanted to celebrate and so did a lot of people that I knew from the packs. Other packs that I was friends with. Just people that were scattered around near the castle, but we were all separated by schools. A lot of friends went to different schools and that was alright with me. I still got to see them. And they were all going to be here tonight.

Mom came to see how I was doing while I was getting ready and I was getting my hair and makeup done and she looked really proud to see me like this.

There were going to be a lot of people at this party that I didn't know. But that was just politics. It had nothing to do with me.

As soon as my hair and make up was finished, I walked into my wardrobe and I got dressed into the floor length black mermaid style ball gown with a skin coloured under layer and black lace over the bodice that went to where the mermaid bottom started on it. And the bottom was pure black tulle with black silk on the ends of each layer of the tulle.

I put my strappy high heels on and I put on the matching black bracelet and earrings.

I walked back into my room and I looked at my reflection.

Honestly, I felt like I was looking at someone else in the mirror. Not myself. I felt really strange.

Someone started knocking on the door as it opened and Avery walked in with Chloe, Violet and Ella.

"Oh my goddess. You look gorgeous." Violet said.

"Are you sure it's not too much? I mean, it feels a little tight around my thighs." I said.

"You look perfect." Ella said.

"Are you ready? Your mom sent me up here to get you. Everyone's here." Avery said.

I looked at myself in the mirror one last time before I nodded my head and we walked out of my room.

We headed towards the ballroom and they needed to announce me properly as I entered the room and my friends were by my side.

"Sweetheart. You look absolutely beautiful." Lexie said, hugging me.

"Thanks aunt Lexie. You look beautiful too." I said.

"You girls, be sure to take care of her tonight. She needs to have a good time." Lexie said.

"Don't worry. We're all over it." Avery said.

My girls took me further into the room and I was looking around at the massive room that had hundreds of people in it.

Mom and my dads were all sitting up at their seats at the front of the room.

There was one empty seat left there for me. But that was only for when we sat down to eat dinner.

I could see my mother keeping an eye on me, but I knew that I would be alright with my friends.

I had to greet my guests and thank them all for coming, which was a massive effort because there were so many people here.

But suddenly I came across someone that I hadn't seen before.

A really handsome man that had been standing off to the side, not talking to anyone. Just watching me.

When he saw me watching him, he finally approached me and I felt my breathing hitch a little. He took my hand and kissed the back of it, as was proper etiquette in this situation.

"It's a pleasure to finally meet you Princess. My name is Lucas." He introduced himself.

"It's nice to meet you too. I'm sorry, but I don't believe I have met you before." I said.

"You haven't. I've only just moved here with my family. I will be starting at your school next week." He said.

"Well, that's really good to know." I said.

"I know that this might seem a little presumptuous of me, but would you like to go for a walk with me?" He asked.

I looked at my friends who had taken a few steps away but they were all smiling at me. And I was a little nervous, but I looked back at him and his perfectly chiseled face with distinct cheekbones and beautiful eyes just sucked me right in. And the tuxedo just added to the appeal.

"Sure. I'd love to." I said.

So he held his arm out and I wrapped my arm around it and we left the ballroom.

We walked out the back of the castle that was large enough to get away from everyone but there was still a stone wall going all the way around because of the massive cliff that was right next to us.

"I was told that there was a very beautiful princess living here. I didn't actually believe it until I saw you." Lucas said.

I felt the blood rush to my face and I looked down, knowing that he would have noticed my cheeks going bright red.

But he used his thumb and forefinger to lift my face up again.

"You don't have to be embarrassed. You really are beautiful. It's just the truth." He said.

"I guess I'm just not used to hearing it. Well, from people that aren't my parents." I said.

"I can understand that."

"I don't really get out much. Or have much to do with guys." I admitted.

"Really? Guys have never shown an interest?" He asked.

"There have been some. But they get scared away pretty quickly."

"By your parents." He assumed.

"No. Not by them." I said. And he looked at me strangely.

Suddenly there was a loud roar that echoed from above us, causing Lucas to duck as he looked up and he saw a dragon on the roof looking straight down at us.

"Because of him." I admitted.

"Right. I can see how that would scare people away." He said.

"That's Zidrieth. Protector of the forest. He was gifted to me when I was 10. He was newly hatched and has been by my side ever since." I explained.

"So, he protects you." Lucas said.

"Yeah. It's alright if you want to run off now." I said. But he turned back to look at me instead of Zidrieth.

"Why would I want to do that?" He asked.

"Emma." Pa Koda said, coming outside.

"Yeah. Is everything alright?" I asked. He looked a little upset.

"Yeah. I just needed to make sure that you were alright. My parents are here and they want to see you. But just stay away from the front of the castle." "Why?" I asked.

"Your mother's mom just showed up." Pa Koda said.

"Evelyn? Are you serious? She called mom a freak when she found out the truth." I said.

"I know. But now she's here and your mother isn't happy. It would be best if you just stayed away from the front of the castle. Who are you?" Dad asked.

"I'm Lucas."

"Can you please get her back to the ballroom until we get rid of this bh out the front?" Dad asked.

"Sure." Lucas said. And dad rushed back inside.

"I'm really sorry about that. There's a whole long story about my other grandmother." I said. "What's her deal?" Lucas asked.

"She's human. She never knew what mom was until she received a letter from my mother's father. It's a little confusing so I'll use their names. My mother's mother is Evelyn and my mother's father was Wesley. Wesley sent a letter to Evelyn explaining everything and it even had photos of my mom using her powers. I've never actually met the woman, but from what I've heard, I don't want to." I explained.

"Alright. It might be best to get you back inside then." Lucas said.

He suddenly got this strange look in his eyes. Almost like he was concerned or something. So we went back inside and just as we were walking up the hall towards the ballroom again I saw a flash of white from the front of the castle.

I knew that it was my mother doing that, but for her to use her powers on a human then there was definitely something else going on.

Lucas got me back to the ballroom and everyone else were still enjoying the party.

They had no idea what was going on outside but Lucas could tell that I was worried. And I A/E still mingled with everyone around the ballroom and my friends were hanging around as well.

Lucas was staying pretty close and we were talking for a lot of the night. But I had to excuse myself briefly when my mother came back to the party with my dads. "Is everything alright?" I asked.

"It's nothing for you to worry about." Mom said.

"You promised me that you wouldn't do that. You wouldn't keep secrets from me." I Fighter 106said. So mom looked back at me and she nodded her head.

"Yeah. I did say that. Alright, my mother was just here with another sad story about how broke she is. She wanted money. That's all there is to it."

"Why did you use your powers?" I asked.

"Because she wasn't alone. It seems like she's been making a few friends in the last few years. And none of them were human. I needed to let them know that they couldn't come here and extort money from us." Mom said, sternly.

My dads were standing around my mother really protectively and I let it go for now. So I walked back to my friends and Lucas was still waiting for me as well.

When it was time for dinner we all took our seats and I had to sit with my mom and dads, but then they brought out a massive cake to feed everyone in the room.

They sang happy birthday to me and I blew out the candles and I cut the cake.

There was a massive table along the side of the room that was full of presents.

There were a lot of Alpha's at the party that I didn't know. But they were invited for political reasons. Just like all other royal families. They had to keep the peace and include others in these sorts of things.

I was used to it and I didn't hold it against them. It's just the way it worked with royalty. I knew that.

"Alright. Well, as much as I know our kids would love to continue to be embarrassed by all of us. I have arranged for the second ballroom at the back of the castle to be decorated a little differently. And the teenagers can now go to that ballroom and have a little more fun than hanging around with some stuffy adults." My mother announced.

"Are you serious?" I asked. This was a complete surprise.

"Of course I am. It's done up like a disco and there's food and everything in there for you. Go and have fun." Mom said. So I hugged her and I hugged each of my dads before I left and I led my friends to the other ballroom.

It was a long walk to get there, but it was definitely worth it.

It looked more like a teenage party. A disco ball, a DJ, streamers and balloons decorating the whole room and a photo station where we could take as many photos as we possibly could.

As soon as we all walked inside the DJ starts playing music and we all started dancing around the room.

Avery, Violet, Chloe and Ella stayed pretty close to me when they saw that Hazel and her friends were there as well.

Their parents were friends with my parents, so I shouldn't be surprised that she was here. But I wanted her to stay the hell away from me.

Which wasn't too hard. Because it wasn't too long before Lucas asked to dance with me and I accepted it.

But it was a slow song and he pulled me close to his body.

My heart was thumping so hard that I was sure he could hear it and I was trying to control my breathing, but it was really hard.

If he did notice all of these red flags of how nervous I was, he didn't let me know. He kept dancing with me, despite how I was feeling.

Hazel kept her distance that night, which I was grateful for and we all had a really great time at the second party.

It didn't wrap up until about 2 in the morning and that's when everyone started heading home and most of them thanked me for a great night. They loved the party and they loved my mother for arranging the parent free party afterwards. Which took me by surprise and everyone else.

Lucas was the last one to leave and it looked like it was on purpose.

He handed me a piece of paper with his phone number on it and he kissed me on the cheek before he left.

I blushed again, but I couldn't wipe that smile off of my face.

As I was walking back through the castle I saw Sarah and another servant cleaning up the main ballroom. The other servant was her mother Camila.

She was Wesley's mate and mom didn't want her to die quickly either. She wanted her punishment to be dragged out. So they now both have to serve the royal family.

It also shows everyone else that my mother isn't one to be messed with. Because she means business and she will make you pay if you go against her. If you try to hurt her or her family. They both looked up at me as I was walking past and I couldn't wipe the smile off of my face. They both just glared at me as I walked up the stairs and I got out of my dress and I hung it up and washed off my makeup.

I got ready for bed, but I had such a hard time going to sleep that night. I was just too excited.

But when I did finally go to sleep. There was only one thing I saw. It was Lucas. His face was dancing around in front of me.

I'd never had a better dream than that in my whole life.

Maybe there is hope for me afterall.

Guys had never really paid me much attention before. But Lucas was different. We didn't grow up together.

He's new to the area and doesn't know everything there is to know about me. He hasn't been there for every step of my life, like everyone else around here.

I had a really good feeling about this.

But I knew that he would have to get past my dads first. They will definitely want to know who he is if it goes any further.

I hope that doesn't scare him off. My dads can be pretty scary when they want to be.

Hopefully mom can keep them under control.

CHAPTER 005 450 Points

The weekend went by pretty quickly since it was busy. It's always busy for me. Being the princess my parents always have me performing different tasks. I think they're trying to slowly prepare me for taking over, when I'm ready to. But it's a lifetime commitment. And it's something that they obviously had to get me to start with straight away.

But when I got to school on Monday, Avery was waiting for me and we walked inside the school together.

We got our books out of our lockers and then we headed towards our first class when I noticed a familiar and extremely handsome guy walking towards me, getting the attention of a lot of girls that he was walking past, but his eyes were fixed on me.

"Lucas." I said, trying to contain my excitement.

"Hi. I was hoping I'd see you before class." Lucas said.

"I'm really glad that you're here. I didn't know if you'd be coming to this school or one of the others." I said.

"Well, I had a choice. And then I had to get vetted by the Queen."

"Yeah. She does that to all new kids that start school with me here. I'm really sorry." I said, feeling a little ashamed.

"I don't mind. If it means that I get to see you again. She can run all the checks on me that she wants." Lucas smirked at me.

I looked over at Avery and she was slowly walking away. Trying not to look obvious as she was walking away to give us some privacy.

"So, I know that you're probably really busy being the princess and everything like that but I was wondering if you had any free time this afternoon?" He asked.

"No. I'm not doing anything. I usually only have royal duties on weekends at this point." I said. "Great. Did you want to do something after school?"

"Like what?"

"Well, I'm not sure yet. I was thinking that maybe we could see a movie and then get some dinner?" He asked.

"Alright. That sounds like fun." I said.

Lucas then looked up at something behind me and I turned around to see Hazel walking way with her friends.

Hazel was glaring at me, but she didn't say anything to me. And she looked at Lucas as she was walking past.

"What was that?" Lucas asked.

"Just someone that doesn't like me. You'll have to ask her why. I wouldn't have a clue." I said. "Well, I guess that's her problem." He said. And I smiled at him.

When I got to class I think Avery was just as excited as I was when I told her about my plans. with Lucas.

She was fussing over what I was going to look like after training, but they have showers in the locker room and I had clean clothes here. Plus, Avery never left her house without her makeup bag. So I didn't have anything to worry about there.

It was hard to concentrate that day, but I had to get my head back into my lessons otherwise I was going to miss something.

But it was especially hard when Lucas was in the same class as me and I would always catch him looking at me and smiling.

It would make me blush every time and I was really nervous.

I was afraid that he was going to think I was a loser for blushing every time he looked at me.

I really wasn't used to the attention that he was giving me.

So when school was finally over that afternoon I had a shower in the locker room and Avery stayed in there with me the whole time.

I got dressed in a red top, black leather jacket, jeans and black boots.

I didn't want to get too dressed up for it. And Avery did my hair and makeup.

When she was finally finished I texted my mother that I wasn't going to be home tonight. I was having dinner with friends.

She was disappointed but she said that it was alright.

It was only because we always agreed to have dinner together. And we usually did. But they have to expect me to want to hang out with my friends eventually.

Lucas was waiting out the front of the school when Avery and I walked out and he was looking at his phone until he heard us walking up to them.

So he put his phone away and he looked up at me.

"Wow. You look great." He said.

"Thank you." I said.

"Alright. Well, you two have fun tonight. I'll be expecting a phone call from you when you get home." Avery said, looking at me and I just nodded my head.

Lucas smiled as Avery left and we started walking away from the school and we actually went to the park first.

There was a movie showing this afternoon but it didn't start for a little while yet. So we sat on the swings talking.

"So, where were you before you came here?" I asked.

"I was living in a pack in the states. Near Seattle." He said.

"Oh yeah. Lucky you. I've never left this place."

"How is that possible? Aren't you the princess? Don't you travel a lot?"

"No. Wolves always come to see my mother. We don't really have to go anywhere. And when they do have to leave, I usually stay here because my mother doesn't want me to get behind on school work." I explained.

"I guess I can understand that." He said.

"I can't. I hate it. I'd love to travel. I guess I'll get my chance when I graduate high school."

"Yeah. Of course. Do they want you to go to college?"

"Yeah. Mom does. But she said that it's up to me when I go. She said that I can take a year off before I go to college if I want. She's really leaving that part up to me."

"Well, that sounds alright. At least she's not trying to control the whole rest of your life. Only until you graduate high school." He explained.

"I guess. My mom's pretty cool. Strict when she has to be but loved by everyone." I said.

"Yeah. I've heard that. I guess they are big shoes to fill."

"You have no idea. I don't know how I am going to take over when she leaves me in charge."

"I'm sure you'll be properly trained by then." Lucas said. And I smiled at him.

"I really hope so. It's scary. But my mother was thrown into it. She didn't want it but she didn't have a choice. Not until the last second. She needed to take on the crown in order to protect my dads." I explained.

"Yeah. We've all heard that story. Of the dragonite." He said. And I nodded my head.
"Where is that dragonite now?"

"I don't know. Mom has it somewhere but don't ask me where. I don't want to know which is why I've never asked. I'm not even sure she'll tell me just yet. But no one has any idea how powerful that stuff is. It's not to be messed with." I explained.

"Yeah. Doesn't it control the dragons?"

"Nothing controls the dragons. But their loyalty is to our throne. And all royal family members have a guardian dragon. You met mine the other night." I said.

"Yeah. That's right. I did. That thing was scary." He said but I started laughing.

"He'll be less scary when and if he gets to know you."

"What do you mean 'if'?"

"Well, we'll see how today goes first." I said.

When the movie started we found our seats and we were chatted a little bit through the movie but not much.

We went to the diner to get dinner afterwards, which I actually suggested. Lucas thought he had to take me to a fancy restaurant or something, but I thought that was a joke.

We had a really good time. We were getting to know each other and talking and we actually got along really easily.

He walked me back home afterwards but we stopped at the bottom of the stairs.

"I think I should go the rest of the way from here." I said.

"I kind of feel like I should walk you to the door."

"I know. But my dads are really protective. And Zidrith will be waiting."

"Okay. I can leave it here. I don't want to get cooked alive." He said and I started chuckling at him.

"I had a really good time tonight." I said.

"So did I. I hope we can do it again real soon." He said.

"Yeah. Me too. Just name the time." I said.

Lucas was looking at me pretty intensely. Staring into my eyes when he slowly moved in closer and he slowly kissed me on the mouth.

He pulled away and moved my hair out of my face and kissed me on the forehead before he walked off.

LUCAS POV

I walked a fair way across the field before I turned back and I saw Emma getting up to the top of the stairs where her three fathers were waiting for her. And that damn dragon started rubbing its head up against her like she was in danger or something.

I don't know. Maybe it really is just being protective and happy that she's at home.

Either way, I turned back around and kept walking in case any of them came after me.

That wasn't really a conversation that I wanted to have with her parents.

I walked to the nearest village that was set up and when I got to a cabin in the middle of town,

I opened the front door but as soon as I walked inside I had to duck as a glass bottle came flying at my head.

"What the hell Hazel?" I yelled.

"What the hell were you doing with that bh?" Hazel growled.

"That's my business. Not yours."

"As long as you're living here with me then you better make it my business." She yelled.

"Your parents are friends with the Queen. I'd watch it if I were you." I warned her.

"What is that meant to mean?" She asked, putting her hands on her hips.

"Emma hasn't told her parents what you've been doing. But that doesn't mean that I won't. We're cousins Hazel, who haven't seen each other in about 5 years. So I don't really think of you as a close relative. Just leave Emma alone." I demanded as I walked down the hallway to my room and I slammed the door.

I could hear Hazel ranting in the living room and her mother walked out there to see what the hell was going on but Hazel couldn't tell her the truth.

If her parents found out that she was bullying the princess then she would be in so much trouble. Her parents want the Queen to like them. Not to hate them because of their daughter's behavior.

I went to the bathroom to have a shower and I got dressed in a pair of shorts and I went back to my room.

I laid on the bed looking through my phone at an encrypted page that was dedicated to the royal family.

CHAPTER OOG

There were so many photos of the Queen with her mates, the three Kings, going to different functions. Photos from Emma's birthday party and photos going back to when Emma was born. Everything has been documented on this site for everyone to keep up to date with what they are doing.

I tried to find upcoming events that Emma would be at, but she was telling the truth.

She doesn't really do anything during the week. Only on weekends. When she doesn't have school.

She does look a lot like her mother, but a little thicker than her mom. But that doesn't matter a whole lot. She's not fat. She's just built more like her dad's. That's all. She's got an athletic body and there's nothing wrong with that.

I was laying there looking at my phone when I got a message from another guy at school. LEVI - So, how did the date go?

ME - A lot better than expected. Jealous?

LEVI Not yet. It was one date.

ME-I can tell that she already likes me.

LEVI - Well, good luck man. You're gonna need it being an outsider and she does have three dads.

I couldn't stop thinking about what Levi had said. And I wasn't sure where this was ever going to go with Emma. Not while she was a princess and she had three overprotective fathers. This was definitely going to be an uphill battle.

I eventually dozed off but it was pretty late so when my alarm started going off the following morning I was still really tired.

I dragged myself out of bed and I went to the kitchen where aunt Jayla was making breakfast.

"You got in late last night. I heard you and Hazel going at it again." Jayla said.

"Yeah. She was pissed about something. I don't even know what the hell she was pissed about." I lied.

"Okay. Well, I hope you two sort it out. I hate it when she's like this. She's in a sour mood for days and unbearable to live with." Jayla said. And I scoffed in agreement. Jayla and I ate breakfast together because Hazel was still in bed. She always slept in. Even on school days and then she only had a few minutes to get ready for school and it was a nightmare in the morning.

So I've given up waiting for her. I just go to school when I'm ready to go.

"Where's Uncle Thomas?" I asked.

"He had to leave for work early this morning." Jayla said.

"Alright. Well, I better get going too. Thanks for breakfast. It was great." I said.

"No problem." She said.

So I grabbed my bag and I left the house but I didn't go straight to school.

I stopped at the park that Emma and I were at last night and it was on the way to school.

An alarm started going off on my phone and I looked at it to see the timer giving me a reminder. It was a countdown.

96 HOURS REMAINING

It wasn't long before I looked up and I saw Emma walking past on the other side of the street.

So I grabbed my bag and I ran across the road to catch up to her.

"Emma." I said. And she turned around and gave me a big smile like she was really happy to see me.

"Hi. Have you been waiting for me?" She asked.

"Yeah. I was at the park. I was hoping you'd come this way." I said.

"I always do."

"Do you mind if I walk you to school?"

"No. Of course not." She smiled.

So we started walking towards school and we started up our conversation about last night. It was more of a debate really. Who was better, DC or Marvel.

Emma was a Marvel girl and I liked DC more. And we were trying to convince each other why ours was better.

It was a pretty interesting debate and I actually liked getting into it with her. She knew what she was talking about. And I was really impressed. Most girls I've met doesn't care about this sort of stuff.

"So, do you have anything planned today? After training?" I asked.

"You won't be. Don't worry about it." She smirked.

When we got to school Avery looked at Emma like she was really impressed, but I could tell that she was playing it cool.

We stopped to talk to Avery out the front but it wasn't long before I saw a guy standing across the front yard of the school building and he was leaning against a tree staring at us.

I looked back at him briefly with a fire in my eyes, hating that he was here staring at us. But I turned back to Emma and gave her my full attention.

The other guy didn't deserve any of my time. Not at the moment anyway.

CHAPTER 007

EMMA POV

My dads were giving me the side eye after my date with Lucas last night. I didn't see my mother at all. They said that she was out on official duties, which I guess I believed, but I was shocked to see that all three of them were here and they let her go without them.

Even if she does have guards and dragons protecting her.

They didn't ask me directly about Lucas but I knew they could smell him on me and they saw us at the bottom of the stairs.

I just hope they didn't scare him off. I do really like Lucas.

So, when he was waiting for me at the park this morning, I was really happy that he was waiting for me.

When we got to school Avery was waiting for us outside the building like she always did, but she was surprised to see that I was with Lucas again.

Lucas had to get to his first class while Avery and I went to our class.

"So, how did your parents handle it?"

"Well, my dads were acting really weird all night. I know that they wanted to ask me questions but they didn't. I don't think they knew how. Mom talked to me this morning. Without them around." I explained.

"How did she handle it?"

"She was fine. She just asked me the questions. That's what I wanted. She wasn't angry, she wasn't pissed off. She wasn't telling me to be careful. She just wanted to know about him and what we did last night." I explained.

"Your mom is so cool. I wish mine was as easy as yours. And yours is the Queen. She should be more strict." Avery said.

"When it comes to security, she's strict. But otherwise, she's good. She didn't expect me to start dating the week after I turned 16, but she's happy for me." I said.

"That's great." Avery said.

"He wants to get together again this afternoon. I don't really know what we're going to do though. There's not much to do around here." I said.

"That's because you haven't really lived like a teenager." She said.

CHAPTER 007

"I guess not. Do you have any suggestions?" I asked. And she smirked at me.

I knew that meant trouble when it came to her. But I needed to find something to do that was going to be fun around here.

I don't want Lucas to think I'm a loser or anything like that.

So as soon as school was over that day, I showered in the locker room and I got dressed.

I walked out the front of the school building and I saw Lucas talking to Hazel, causing me to stop walking.

He saw me standing there and Lucas said something to Hazel before he walked over to me.

"It looks like you've got a fan." I said, but he scoffed.

"No way. She's my cousin. And the biggest pain in my ass." He said.

"Oh. I didn't know that you two were related." I said.

"Unfortunately." He said.

"I bet she loves that we're hanging out." I said, sarcastically.

"Oh yeah. Totally pleased. She gave us her best wishes." He said, playing along. And I started laughing.

"So, I was talking to Avery and I think I've come up with something that we can do today. But it's a bit of a hike. Are you alright with that?" I asked.

"Yeah. I'm cool with that. Are you gonna get in trouble? Your dads didn't look too happy last night."

"It's alright. They're always like that. I know they are going to give you a hard time when they first meet you. So I am trying to put that off as long as possible." I said. So Lucas held out his hand and I grabbed onto it and we started walking down the road.

We walked through the village until we got to the woods and we followed the trail right to the beachside.

We stood on the pebbles that made up the shore next to the ocean and we walked a little further up until we came across a log that was placed next to a firepit.

We weren't going to need the firepit right now but we are going to use the log.

As soon as we sat down, I opened my bag and I started pulling things out.

"What's all this?" Lucas asked.

"Picnic." I said, showing him the blanket that I pulled out of my bag last and I laid it on the ground in front of us.

I set up all the food on the blanket and sat on it while leaning up against the log. So he slid down and sat next to me.

"I can't believe how beautiful it is here." He said, looking out at the ocean.

"I know. It's a beautiful place to grow up. Mom said that she would rather have raised me here than in California. That's where she came from." I said.

"Yeah. She had a pretty crappy life there. I know the history. I think everyone does."

"Yeah. She did. But then she met my dads and everything went up from there. That's what she told me anyway. They tell it differently. Apparently my mom drugged them with wolfsbane once because they were following here as she going to head off some enemies that were coming for them. She needed to get rid of them and they weren't meant to follow her. She was trying to protect them." I said, starting to laugh.

"Holy st. Are you serious?" He asked.

"Yeah. They've got a very interesting history that's not written in the history books." I laughed out loud.

I turned back to look at Lucas and he was staring at me with a strange look on his face.

He was making me a little nervous. I couldn't tell what he was thinking. But then he slowly started moving closer to me and he kissed me, softly and gently.

He cupped the side of my face and deepened the kiss as he leaned me back, laying me on the blanket.

I was getting so wrapped up in the moment that I barely even noticed the pebbles and rocks that were under the blanket.

Lucas started moving his other hand towards the hem of my shirt and he slid my shirt up slightly.

I grabbed a hold of his hand and I stopped him from moving it any further, suddenly feeling really uncomfortable and I pushed him away.

He looked a little confused at first, but I sat up and he sat next to me.

"I'm sorry. I guess you just found my flaw." I said, unable to even look at him.

"That's not a flaw. That's just something for me to admire more about you and respect." Lucas said.

I looked over at him and he looked so sincere that I couldn't stop from smiling.

When I got home that night my dads were waiting for me in the sitting room.

"So, were you with him again?" Dean asked.

"I was." I said.

"And when are we going to meet him?" Koda asked.

"When I know that you're not going to scare him off."

"We need to know who is spending all this time with our daughter." Koda said.

"I know that. And you will. But not just yet." I said.

I then heard mom come into the room and she stood at the doorway staring at my dads.

I could tell that they were mind linking with each other and my mother was definitely scolding them right now.

They try to hide it when she's revving them, but I've gotten used to the look on their faces when she does it. So it's pretty easy to tell now.

"It seems that your mother would like to talk to you. So, we'll finish this later." Tyler said.

And they all walked out of the room. And my mother reached her arm out, so I walked over to her and she put her arm around me and walked me through the castle until we got to the courtyard out the back.

CHAPTER 008 NOVA POV

I knew the day would come when my little girl started dating and I was even excited about it. It meant that she would be ready for her mate when she finally found him. But I knew that her fathers would give her a hard time so I needed to be a blocker between them.

I took her to the courtyard on the eastern side of the castle because that was our sacred place to talk. It always has been and always will be. No one comes out here but us two.

All the outside of the castle is blocked off into separate courtyards because of how it is perched on the side of the cliff the way that it was.

We both sat on the bench that was leaning up against the brick wall and we stared at the stars and moon in the sky.

"Are you going to give me the third degree as well?" Emma asked.

"You know me better than that." I said.

"You really don't want to know him?" Emma asked.

"Of course I do. But if my calculations are right, you've only had two dates with this guy. How do we know that it's going to go any further?"

"I wish they would understand that."

"You know that they love you. And the thought of losing you is why they are always so overprotective."

"I know. Because of when I was born. They all vowed that nothing was ever going to happen to me."

I remembered back to that day and I got chills up my spine.

"Yeah. That's not a day that any of us ever want to relive."

"So, is that why you never had any other children?" Emma asked.

"We couldn't have anymore after you. Not after the operation." I said.

"I'm so sorry about everything that you've gone through." She said.

"I know. And it's not your fault. Nothing was meant to be easy for me. But you've got a chance. You don't have an ancient prophecy hanging over your head. You actually have the chance to be a normal teenage she-wolf. Something that I never got. I just hope that you are being careful with who you are letting in." I said.

"I am. I promise. I really like him." She said.

"Good. That's all that matters."

"Can I ask you something?" She asked.

So I turned to look at her again and she was looking down at her hands, looking really nervous.

"What is it?" I asked.

"What if he wants to move faster than I'm willing to go?" She asked.

"Then tell him. And if he doesn't listen, you call me for me or your fathers. If he tries anything to hurt you, your fathers will be there in a heartbeat. And then he won't have a heartbeat." I said.

"I was a little afraid you'd say that. I don't want them to kill him. I just wanted to know what to do if he did try something."

"Emma. If you get a feeling that he's only with you because he wants to sleep with you, then get rid of him. He's not worth it and you don't mean anything to him. I know that's hard to hear, but it's the truth. Wait for someone who actually cares for you. And if he doesn't take no for an answer and tries to force you, you fight like hell. You know how to. You get the hell out of that situation because there's no guarantee that we will get there in time." I explained. And she nodded her head.

"I don't know why everyone is so scared to talk to you. I know you're the Queen and everything, but you're not really that scary."

"Well, they don't see what you see." I said.

"Yeah. That's true." She said.

"Are you alright now?" I asked.

"Yeah. I'm good. I'm gonna go do my homework and go to bed."

"Sounds good." I said. So she hugged me and went back inside the castle.

I sat outside for a while longer and when I was sure that Emma had gone upstairs I went back inside and the guys were in the dining room.

"You didn't tell her that we did a background check, did you?" Koda asked.

"Hell no. Have you found anything yet?" I asked.

"No. There's a few notes here from his last pack. He is a bit of a player so I hope that came up in your conversation with her." Tyler said. "Not that he was a player. But I told her that if he tries anything when she's not ready then she has to fight like hell and she knows how to." I said.

"Well, there's nothing else really. He broke a couple of hearts and girls wanted to report him for that. But obviously the Alpha couldn't do anything about that. There's nothing to say he's a bad guy or anything." Dean said.

"Good. Then hopefully he's safe."

"You know babe, have I ever told you how much I love you giving us orders?" Dean asked, putting his arms around my waist from behind me.

"I mind linked you and told you to leave her alone." I said.

"I know. And it was hot." He said, kissing my neck.

"You're asking for trouble." I said, looking at the other two sitting at the table in front of us.

"I don't really care." He said, spinning me around.

He grabbed my waist and sat me on the table that was further up then where the been working and he started kissing me.

It wasn't long before I felt the other two moving closer towards us. Their wolves getting a little too excited as Dean pulled my shirt off over my head and started kissing me around the neck.

Tyler kneeled on the table behind me, reaching around to knead my breasts as he started kissing me.

Dean pushed me back further and my head was practically in Tyler's lap as he leaned down and kissed me.

Dean grabbed the hem of my shorts and pulled them off of me and started kissing up my legs until he reached my v*a and he started stroking it with his finger before he started licking it up and down before he started kissing my clit, causing me to moan only to be kept quiet by Koda kissing me.

I reached my arms back and I grabbed onto Tyler's shirt while Dean started fg me with his tongue.

I gripped onto Tyler's shirt even tighter as Koda started kissing down my neck and Tyler was moving his hands up and down my breasts and stomach.

I saw Koda get off the table for a moment and he went to all the doors that looked into the room and he closed them and locked them.

We've had more than one time where someone has walked in on us. And even though it was our house, we really hated being interrupted. There are always people everywhere.

I reached down and ran my hands through Dean's hair as Koda got back onto the table with me and he leaned back down as I reached for the hem of his shorts and I pulled them down so I could start fisting his ck.

"What do you want, baby?" Koda asked.

"I want...all fg three of you." I moaned out.

So he smirked at me as he leaned down one more time to kiss me.

Dean moved away from my v*a but Tyler pulled me further onto the table and Dean grabbed my hips and turned me over onto my hands and knees.

Tyler removed his clothes as he slid underneath me and he leaned his head up to kiss me while he lined himself up with my entrance.

Koda was slightly off to the side of Koda and he was kissing my shoulder as he also lined up against my entrance.

They both managed to slide inside of me, one at a time. And as soon as I got used to both of them stretching me beyond my limit, I felt Dean slide his finger over my back hole before I felt his ck line up with it and he slowly slid in as well. When we all got to the same rhythm the whole three of them started moving in and out of me slowly. Causing loud moans coming from all of us.

I felt like I was being stretched in every way possible, but in the best way possible.

Dean was leaning over my back and started kissing the back of my neck while Tyler and Koda were kissing me on either side of my neck.

I started moving myself faster on their cs, feeling myself getting hotter all over. Every touch from my three mates causing electricity to spark throughout me and before I knew it, I was plunged over the edge of my orgasm that rippled through my whole body causing me to shake.

The spasms had barely subsided when I felt Dean find his release. And soon did Koda.

As they pulled their flaccid cs out of me, Tyler grabbed me by the hips and used his hand to push me up so I was sitting on him and I started moving up and down on his ck as fast as I could and as long as I could. His tip was just reaching my entrance when I would slam back down on him again.

He moaned even louder before he finally found his release and he grabbed my hips tightly as he released his c*m inside of me.

"Holy shit." Tyler said in a shaky voice.

When I climbed off of him, I laid on the table for a moment trying to catch my breath.

"You three are such bad influences." I said, causing them to laugh.

"We didn't hear you complaining." Koda said.

"And don't ever expect to." I said, smirking at him.
