

Fire 1506

Chapter 1506

"You don't need to say a damn thing," he flicked his lighter and smirked.

"I found you passed out on the street and brought you back. Even had a doctor check you out."

Kisa's heart pounded at his words, and she instinctively clutched her stomach.

David gave her a cold glance and snickered.

"No wonder you never had the balls to take on Gilbert. You've been carrying his seed all this time."

"You knew I was never serious about working with you?" Kisa asked.

David chuckled.

"Your acting skills were top-notch. I was fooled until Mia handed me those classified files. But no worries. Everything is under my control now."

want from me?" Kisa asked, her already gone after Christopher, Carolyn, and taken everything, from the Kooper residence to GK. What more could even close to enough. Compared to the pain I have suffered, those things are mere child's upon Kisa's enraged face, David let should be grateful to me. If it weren't for me, you would never know the truth about those misunderstandings between me and Gilbert," Kisa spat. "He's your own nephew, and he never did anything to deserve your revenge. What the hell do you want damn thing, but the problem is he is a Kooper family descendant. It pisses me off how life is so damn unfair. We share the same last name, but why anger,

like her own son and accept me as part of the cautiously, fearful that he might lash out at and did not harm her. She pressed her lips together and said, "I heard that Mrs. Kooper Sr. wanted to

"Hal" David snorted.

to

at him but did not say

David laughed bitterly.

she thought setting me up with your mother would be a good idea. If Damon had any interest in your mother, do you really think I would stand a chance? Everything I have is just