

Fire 1512

Chapter 1512

Gilbert just could not bring himself to be cruel to the woman before him.

Despite everything, he took her to his place—a decrepit courtyard tucked away deep in the alleyways of the old city district.

Kelvin had been taking care of his grandmother's illness here.

With Kelvin around, Kisa did not have to worry about Thomas' injury.

But Kelvin was not exactly thrilled to see her.

As soon as he laid eyes on her, his face darkened, and he grabbed Gilbert's arm, saying in a harsh tone, "Why the hell did you bring her here? What if she rats us out to David and puts your grandma in danger?"

Kisa was quick to defend herself, blurting out, "I won't tell David. I just escaped from him."

Kelvin sneered, "Yeah, right. You're full of sh*t. Who knows if you and David cooked up this little scheme to mess with us."

"I didn't—"
