

Fire 1516

Chapter 1516

The house looked like it had been through a tornado. The furniture was tossed around like a game of dominoes, and broken dishes littered the floor like shattered dreams. Gilbert raced upstairs at the sight of the chaos, leaving Kisa standing there stunned.

She felt a sinking feeling in her heart, sensing something was terribly wrong.

Upstairs, Gilbert's voice echoed through the hallway as he frantically called out for his grandmother.

Kisa's hand felt icy cold as she followed him up the stairs, stepping over bloodstains and signs of a violent struggle.

There were four rooms upstairs, and as Kisa reached the landing, Gilbert came running out of Sara's room, his face a mask of panic and fear.

He shouted "Grandma" over and over again, but there was no answer.

Suddenly, there was a loud noise coming from Thomas's room.

Kisa's heart leaped, thinking maybe Thomas had managed to escape.

But as she rushed into the room, she saw Kelvin instead.

and legs were covered in bloodstains, and he was pale and not even reached him when Gilbert burst into

Gilbert asked

phlegm on

suddenly

her body as she sensed the anger and hatred in her, his expression icy and his

"What do you mean?"

get you to bring her back. Her real intention was to find out where your grandma is. To help David take your grandma away, she even lured bulging with veins from his cold fear gripping her. She do anything. I didn't reveal anything about your grandma. I didn't plot

As soon as the words left Kisa's lips, there was a loud crash. Gilbert had just smashed the bedpost with his

Her face turned pale.

doesn't believe me.He took a step back, feeling