

FIRE OF GOD SYSTEM (F..O.G.S)

Chapter 3: The dark realm

Kodak sat in his seat besides kira as he could see the latter was very serious, listening in on the unknown speaker. Kodak felt the atmosphere was tense at least for him, and he couldn't help himself but gulp a bit.

"As we all know many planets are being formed and discovered, thanks to the help of all of you here today." The old husky voice continued, while the other gods payed attention.

"But~" The voice spoke. "The rate in which planets are being destroyed are more faster than the discovery." The voice said in an uneasy tone, and everyone could feel something was wrong.

"I know some gods here have decided to bring their disciples to the meeting." The voice paused a bit looking round. "The information am about to share with you all is secret and should be discrete." The voice warned. Kodak could feel a hint of fear in his lungs, as the voice made that warning statement.

"Since the beginning of time we God's gave lived in harmony expanding our forces and races thought to time."

"We've gathered countless of recources and information across galaxies and universes strengthening our forces greatly." The voice cleared it's throat, as everyone's ear were itching for what was to come next.

"But in our struggle and strides we encountered a forbidden place where dark powers and creatures beyond you wildest imaginations live." Everyone could feel the weight of the speakers words, as they knew what he meant.

Kodak could see a timid young girl with black hair, sitting opposite him with fear in her eyes. Her body was visibly shaking a bit, as all the hairs on her arm stood up in alarm. Kodak couldn't blame her, as the place the speaker was about to mention was a dreaded and horrible place even for the gods.

"For millenniums of years we have been placed by one enemy and that is the dark realm.." the speaker's eerie tone, was undeniably mixed with a hint of fear and remorse, as he mentioned the dark realm.

"N-no way." Kodak muttered in shock hearing those words.

The dark realm was an uncharted planet, discovered by the first gods trillions of years back. It was located in between space and time, as one could only get there by travelling to the ends of time.

This place was a forbidden place for all, as all those who goes there never comes back alive or the same. The sky's colour was died red like blood with barely little sunlight seeping through, it's floor were like rough mountain shards painted deep black.

Different caves and holes could be seen there, along with dark foggy fortresses defended by flaming spikes and dark weapons of all sort.

---

A cloaked figure, slowly made it's way across the rocky floor shards of the dark realm. Staring into the blood red sky, the figure heaved a sigh of sadness as it continued its way to a huge castle up front.

The castle was just like any other castle, except this one stood a freaking 40 meters high and ten meters wide. The walls were replaced with dark pointy spikes, all the way to it's roof.

There were different flaming doors on each section of the west, east, north, and south section of the castles. Each wing was heavily guarded with tall wooden slingshots, and balls of flame. Undescribable and terrifying creatures of all kinds and sorts, guarded the castle.

"State your business." A short troll like creature with no eyes, stopped the cloaked figure. This creature's skin was partly burnt black from its brown body, as it held a club with spikes on it.

"Am here to see king Orvac." The female voice spoke, in a monotone sound to the troll with no eyes.

"Remove your hood and let me see your pretty face." The troll laughed in a cracked voice, as he hit his spiked club against his palm.

"How rude." The cloaked female stretched her hand, as the troll was lifted up the ground gasping for air.

"Don't you know your place, flea?" The female shouted, tightly squeezing her hand. The other creatures seeing this didn't dare to interfere, as they knew who exactly this lady was.

'Thud!' The dead troll body fell with a thud, as the figure released her grip. There wasn't a single emotion, on the eyes of the lifeless troll.

"You flighty things should know your place." The woman coldly said, walking into the huge castle. The other creatures then slowly crept to the troll's lifeless body, as they began devouring him.

'Savages.' The woman sighed, reaching the interior of the castle. The space was really huge, as wooden torches were lit up with fire hung on the castle walls. There were also pillars, made from the core of the dark realm that held the building in place.

The cloaked figure then made its way to the throne room of the castle, as there were already four individuals present there.

"King orvac." The cloaked figure bowed slightly to the pale looking man, sitting on the flaming throne filled with skulls hanged on a spike. The man eyes seeing the figure lit up, as a smile formed on his face exposing his sharp razor teeth.

"Olivia! what a pleasure it's been ages." King orvac cried out like a little boy, his blood red eyes staring at her.

"Come sit." Time seemed to have freezed, as the next minute he was behind her placing his hands on her shoulders. he then guided her, to where the other three individuals sat.

"Hmph!" The the two females that had snake for hairs expressed their dislike for Olivia, while the other male that looked like a tree bark just nodded.

"Here now~ don't be rude to Olivia." King orvac lazily said, his voice containing little to no life. But the two serpent sisters, immediately felt a child sensation flood through their minds.

"King orvac am here to report to you our latest progress." She spoke in a bold voice, causing the two serpent sisters to stare at her weirdly before averting their gazes.

"Speak." Orvac casually waved his hand, lifelessly taking a seat besides Olivia.

"Our forces have managed to conquer twice the planets we did yesterday extending our forces more throughout the universe." Olivia gently spoke.

"Really~ good! good!" Orvac clapped his hands at this news. "Soon we'll be feared throughout the multiverse and nothing can stand in our way." Orvac slightly grinned.

"There's another thing." Olivia butted in.

"Oh! There's more?" Orvac said in surprise, he wasn't hoping to hear another good news but it seemed Olivia had more to say.

"It was a tough battle but we managed to kill a god." Olivia nonchalantly said.

"What!" The shocked expression were unable to be hidden on everyone's face, as their jaws dropped wide open staring at Olivia.

"What?" She casually asked without any emotions.

"Ha ha ha!" Orvac chuckled gently as he stood up from his seat. "It seems it wouldn't take long before our plan gets executed." Orvac smiled, his hands placed behind his back.

"H-how manage could she kill a god." The three individuals whispered, as they started at Olivia with envious eyes.

"Enough!" Orvac commanded as their bodies went stiff. "You disgust me you're all useless." He roared, as their bodies were flung outside the castle doors.

"Am sorry Olivia." Orvac apologized.

"You didn't have to do that am used to it." Olivia gently shook her head as she stood up.

"Thanks Olivia.. you've managed to accomplish what those idiots couldn't do." Orvac grinned evilly, his heart pounding more faster as he recalled her words.

"It's no problem we're getting stronger day by day and the god weaker it's all thanks to those worshippers I deceived to stop praying to the gods." She softly spoke.

"We're going to take the multiverse from those gods and kill them all who follows them." She let out her mind, as orvac couldn't help but grin more. he loved how cold and ruthless Olivia was, as she was his war commander and right hand woman.

She had managed to rise through ranks in the blink of an eye, by completing different impossible tasks. She always hid her face behind a cloak, as King Orvac had only seen her face once. Even though she was blind, she was more useful than a person with sight. As her beauty toppled with her cold and ruthless behavior, earned her the name Killing Angel from Orvac.

"I would like to take my leave now." Olivia said while Orvac nodded willingly.

"Oh!" She stopped as she remembered something. "I killed one of your trolls again." She said walking out the door. King Orvac didn't know whether to laugh or cry, as he stared at Olivia's body until she disappeared.

Reaching outside, Olivia could sense the twin serpent sisters were still waiting there and she knew why.

"Where do you think you're going bitch." Silvia the other serpent sister said, her long snake body could be seen from her waist down slithering about.

"Nowhere actually just away from you two." Olivia casually said walking down the steps.

"Yeah you better run coward!" Cynthia the younger of the serpent sisters shouted, as they chuckled to themselves.

"C-coward." Olivia muttered facing them. "Coward? Am not the one that keeps failing all my missions." Olivia spoke with a glint of anger in her tone.

"W-what did you say?"

"I said you should just stay on the sidelines where you belong." Olivia could sense a vein, bulging on both their faces which made her grin a bit.

"Oh! And one more thing.."

"You girls should stop wasting your time on King Orvac he's so over you!" Olivia yelled, adding more salt to the injury.

"W-hy you!" They both screamed as their bodies moved fast towards Olivia's body, while the latter just momentarily stood there. the sisters tails moved fast like a whip, heading for Olivia's body. At the right time, she dodged by shifting her body a bit to the side.

"Weak." She muttered, and the next moment she held their necks firmly against the wall choking them.

"I-i can't move my arms." They both said, feeling the bones in their arms crushed.

"Like I said before your both useless if you can't even beat me then what makes you think you have a chance at orvac." Olivia coldly said, retracting her hands and slowly walking away leaving them gasping for air.

Olivia's mocking voice echoed in their heads, as the sounds of her foot slowly faded away into the wind.

....

In the temple of the gods, the gods were were now taking their leaves as the meeting had come to an end. Kodak was excited to be in an actual meeting of the gods, but the fun wasn't over yet as kira was among the gods asked to stay behind.

"What do you think they want to talk about now?" Kodak whispered to kira, who carefreely crossed his leg on the table.

"Maybe something important." Kira chuckled nudging Kodak. A soft bright light shone on their body, as they found themselves just before the head of the table.

'W-was I just teleported.' Kodak thought inwardly. He had teleported a few times with kira and felt the impact, but this teleportation didn't affect him at all as it felt light to his body.

"Hope I didn't break you." Under Kodak's confused state, he could hear a soft female's voice opposite him.

"N-nexus." He gently muttered staring at her like a statue.

"Oh! my." Nexus gently chuckled, placing her hands on her lips. "I didn't mean to scare you." She teased, winking at Kodak.

"Enough!" Kira grunted, snapping Kodak out from his gaze. "It's not nice to prey on my disciple like that nexus."

"Hmph! You're no fun kira." Nexus puffed her cheeks, crossing her arms on her cleavages.

'W-was I just tempted by the god of systems?' Kodak thought to himself, as he was easily fooled by nexus unparalleled beauty.