The First Heir – Chapter 1562

Hearing this, Martha became even more anxious and said angrily, "Old man, what do you mean by that? Do you think he still dares to hit me? If he dares to hit me again, I'll get Wynn to divorce him! This loser doesn't respect me as his mother-in-law at all!"

"Divorce? Do you really think Wynn will divorce him now? The baby in her belly will be born in a few months."

Charles sighed.

"Why not? Do you think our family can't survive without Philip?"

Martha retorted furiously, "I'm telling you, Charles Johnston, put away your thoughts of flattering him. Philip only has a bit of money now and knows some people. If you really compare him to those people outside, he's still far from them!"

Martha was very clear about who Philip was. Even if he became a king one day, Martha would still despise this piece of trash!

Hearing these words, Charles shook his head helplessly and continued to read his newspaper.

This crazy woman was really getting more and more unreasonable.

It was also at this time that the door of the room was suddenly pushed open. Philip walked in with his hands in his trouser pockets. He had a cold expression on his face.

Seeing him, Martha immediately shrank back in fright as her eyes shifted about. She stammered, "You... What are you doing here?"

Charles took a glance from the side and said nothing.

This madwoman was only good at bullying the weak and was timid in front of those tougher than her.

Anyway, it was good to let Philip scare her a little so that she would not cause trouble again when she got better. Otherwise, this family would be arguing all day. No one would be able to stand it in the long run.

Philip glanced indifferently at Charles who was sitting on the sofa before turning his attention to Martha, saying, "Mom, if you want to scold me in the future, just do it in front of me. Don't do it behind my back like this. If you feel angry with me, just say it directly. It's not good to hold it in."

Martha immediately heard the hidden meaning between his words and yelled angrily, "Very well, Philip Clarke. You're really amazing now, huh? You even dare to scold me in such a manner. What do you mean by that? Are you trying to educate me or what? I'm your mother-in-law, Wynn's mother!"

Martha had long figured out Philip's temper. As long as she brought up her status as the mother-in-law and Wynn, Philip would give in to her.

This was a trick she had repeatedly used.

Sure enough, Philip frowned without doing anything else and merely warned her coldly, "I don't care what you think of me but I want you to know that I'm Wynn's husband. I won't divorce her, and you shouldn't keep thinking of getting Wynn to divorce me. If you really piss me off, I won't care if you're my mother-in-law or if you're Wynn's mother."

Hearing this, Martha became anxious and yelled, "Hey, Philip, what do you mean by that? Are you threatening me? I'm telling you right now that I'm going to break you and my daughter up. A piece of trash like you is not good enough for my daughter! Don't think I don't know that your identity as the big boss of that crap investment company is just to fool others. I had people check on that company. It doesn't live up to its name and only has a few employees!"

Previously, Martha had people investigate Philip's Milanelson Angel Investment Group.

She thought it was a big company at first, but after checking, there were only a few employees and they did not have much money.

It was just an empty shell used to fool others.

Thus, Martha concluded that Philip had deceived Wynn and established a shell company through some means.

After hearing what Martha said, Philip chuckled. The corners of his mouth curled up slightly as he said, "You had someone look into Milanelson Angel Investment Group?"

"Yes, so what? Now that the cat's out of the bag, what else do you have to say?" Martha said with a raised eyebrow and an arrogant face.

As a result, Philip just said indifferently, "In that case, do you know who the investor behind Beacon Group is?"
