The First Heir – Chapter 1586

“Hehehe...”

Philip smiled and turned to Martin, who was standing with his hands behind his back. He said, “Martin, why aren’t you saying anything?”

Martin’s face was cold as he waved his hand and shouted, “I have nothing to say. Your words are all nonsense! I’m just talking to my friends. Besides, I’ll resign from Beacon tomorrow. What does it matter to you what I do?”

“That’s right, what does it matter to you what Martin does? Are you trying to force him or something?” Bernard’s face was cold as he echoed.

Philip nodded and looked at Martin before saying, “Actually, whatever you do is meaningless to me. Because all of you are unqualified, even if you join forces.”

“Insolence! Philip, you simply don’t put us in your eyes!”

“You’re just relying on your wife to get to the top position and got to know some people through her. Do you really think you’re that great?”

“Hehe, how dare a kept husband spout such big words?”

For a while, several board members expressed their dissatisfaction one after another.

Martin’s face also turned grim. He raised his eyebrows, stared at Philip, and said coldly, “What exactly do you want to say?”

Martin suddenly found Philip impossible to read. Where did he get such great confidence?

All the people here combined were enough to shake Beacon, yet he actually said they were not qualified!

It was too outrageous!

Philip chuckled and said, “Beacon’s total assets are worth about five billion dollars in market value. Everyone here is holding about 35 percent of Beacon’s equity. That’s undoubtedly a lot. I neglected to consider that you might actually be working together from the very beginning.”

As soon as these words were spoken, the faces of the board members became extremely cautious and nervous.

Had Philip actually found out?

Then, his next sentence shocked everyone!

"If you withdraw your capital from Beacon, I really won't be able to stop you. But even if Beacon loses 35 percent of its equity, it's still acceptable. If we don't get rid of those of you hiding in the shadows, there won't be a day of peace in Beacon. I'd rather have all of you withdraw your capital and go with Martin so that I can inject my capital to fill the gap you left."

After Philip finished speaking, everyone was stunned. What did he mean by injecting his capital to fill the gaps of their divestment?

Martin looked skeptical and sneered, "Philip, are you crazy? Do you know what 35 percent equity means? That's at least 1.6 billion dollars! Do you have that much money to fill the gaps? Who are you trying to bluff?"

This Philip Clarke was really over the top! Did he really think he was rich?

Did he think he was a wealthy second generation? Could he just take out 1.6 billion dollars to help Beacon? The others also laughed raucously and looked at Philip as though they were looking at an idiot.

They had thought he was amazing, but he was just a fool.

However, Philip shook his head indifferently and motioned to Theo, saying, "Take it out and show it to them."

Theo quickly took out a document and distributed a copy to each person.

At the same time, Philip's voice rang out. "This is the divestment agreement. I now allow you to divest and encourage you to sign it as soon as possible."

Everyone was dumbfounded when they saw the divestment agreement in their hands!

Philip really dared to act like this?
