

The First Heir – Chapter 1767

Hearing this, Neal immediately said with indignation, “Mr. Dunley, as you know, we’re talking about 30 million dollars right now. If you want me to take the money without doing anything, won’t that be wrong of me?”

Milo sneered and said, “You can still do what you need to do, but I’m just saying that you can delay the timing a little. You can broadcast the incident about Homer Pharmaceutical three days later. Now, tell those reporters of yours to withdraw. It’s not like the party behind you wants you to bring down Homer Pharmaceutical tonight, right?”

Neal was taken aback, and his eyes darted about. What Milo said made sense.

It was certainly possible. If he did things this way, he would not offend the Dunleys nor Philip. This was the best of both worlds.

After thinking about it, Neal’s heart began to waver.

When he was hesitating, Milo spoke again, “Neal, since you’re in Flower City, you should understand what kind of place Charbury is. Here, the Dunley family is king. If you help outsiders to mess with my Dunley family, you should know what the consequences are! So, I advise you not to go too far. Otherwise, even if you escape to the end of the world, the Dunley family will not let you off!”

This sentence was full of threats.

Upon hearing that, Neal’s face turned pale as he said solemnly, “Milo Dunley, are you threatening me?”

“Hehe...”

Milo sneered and said, “No. Everyone has a way to make money. I won’t stop you from making a fortune, but you have to give my fourth brother a little time to react and prepare. I don’t want to see any more reports on this matter tonight. Whatever has been done, leave it to our public relations to handle it. As for the rest, I hope you understand what to do.”

After saying this, Milo ended the call.

In the office, Neal’s face was pale. Holding the phone tightly in his hand, he bitterly smashed it on the floor and yelled, “Damn you, Milo Dunley! Sooner or later, your entire family will be destroyed!”

Philip received a call from George who said, “Young Master, our plans have been halted. The other party received 30 million dollars from us but is trying to find a loophole with the timing. We estimate that the broadcast on Homer Pharmaceutical will be delayed until three days later.”

Philip’s face was grim as he said, “No matter what you do, I want Homer Pharmaceutical bankrupt tonight!”

“Understood, Young Master. I’ll make the arrangements.” George hung up the phone, looked at the dozens of elites around him unhappily, and said, “I received a call just now. The plan against Homer Pharmaceutical in Charbury was stopped. We must figure out a solution as soon as possible. The young master is in a bad mood. We must do whatever it takes to bring down Homer Pharmaceutical!”

“Yes, Mr. Thomas!”

Hearing this, everyone frantically sprang into action. In a flash, information on the entire Homer Pharmaceutical, as well as the background information on Homer Dunley and Milo Dunley that included their interpersonal relationships, was collected!

In Homer Dunley’s villa.

At this moment, Homer’s face looked very unpleasant. Although he had just received a call from his seventh brother that things had eased, he was still a little flustered.

The reason was simple. Philip's tactics had somewhat caught him off guard.

He did not expect the other party to be so heavy handed. He directly forked out 30 million dollars to deal with him.

Who the hell was this guy?

He actually had such financial resources to take out 30 million without blinking!

Moreover, the speed was too fast! He bought Neal Pearce over so quickly!