

The First Heir – Chapter 1772

He found the target.

He bit the dagger in his mouth and observed the situation in the room. No one seemed to be in the room except for the target.

Then, he slowly removed the vent cover.

He waited until Wynn walked to the living room and jumped into the room through the vent opening.

The faint noise was masked by the thunder outside. Ernie crouched down as he looked around. Holding a shining dagger in his hand, he approached the woman in the living room who was on the phone with her back facing him.

At this moment, Wynn was completely unaware of the danger approaching behind her. She was still on the phone and said anxiously, “Philip, we must cure Anne. This only happened to her because of me.”

At this moment, Ernie was already right behind Wynn. The dagger in his hand was aimed at her neck. However, suddenly!

A cold female voice rang in the room.

“Who sent you here?!”

Boom!

This sudden sound made Ernie’s movements halt in the air!

He turned around and saw a woman sitting on the living room sofa. She was wearing a black leather jacket and leather pants. She had shoulder length hair and a valiant appearance. There were two butterfly blades on the coffee table. She was holding a revolver in her hand that was aimed at the center of his eyebrows.

All the hairs on Ernie's body stood on end!

There was someone else in the room. However, he had not heard the sound of her breathing just now!

Despite that, another woman was indeed sitting on the sofa right in front of his eyes!

"Ah!" Wynn also realized something and turned around abruptly. She saw a man standing behind her while holding a shiny dagger. He was wearing a mask, and his eyes were flashing fiercely.

"W-Who are you?" Wynn was shocked. She quickly clutched her stomach and stood behind 17.

Bam!

At this moment, the door of the suite was slammed open from the outside!

In a flash, seven or eight fully armed bodyguards rushed in with the guns in their hands aimed at Ernie in the room.

With a self-deprecating sneer, Ernie said in a low voice, "This has been arranged a long time ago. It seems that I underestimated this mission."

He suddenly made a move and quickly attacked. With a killing move, he rushed toward the seven or eight people at the door!

He wanted to force his way out. At once, those seven or eight bodyguards started fighting with Ernie!

However, the bodyguards were obviously not a match for Ernie's skills and strength!

Biff, bang, thud!

Pretty soon, several bodyguards fell to the floor. One of the bodyguards quickly tried to pull the trigger!

However!

Swoosh!

The dagger in Ernie's hand flew out and pierced through the bodyguard's wrist!

Following that, Ernie darted around and kicked the two at the door, trying to take advantage of the situation to escape!

However, at this moment...