

The First Heir – Chapter 1781

Hearing this, Homer's expression changed abruptly. He stared gloomily at Philip in front of him and shouted, "My friend, do you really think I have no men in Flower City and that's why you're being so arrogant?"

Milo also frowned and said with a pretentious smile, "Mr. Clarke, since you're willing to come here and meet us, it means that there's still room for discussion on this matter. Why don't we sit down and have a good talk?" After saying that, Milo gestured for the angry Homer to sit down.

Philip just looked at the two indifferently without a word.

Milo added, "Mr. Clarke, I think there's a misunderstanding between us. Hector just injured a nanny. Our Dunley family is willing to pay for this mistake. just name a price and we're willing to accept it."

"A price?"

Philip glanced at him and said with a sneer, "You may have misunderstood my meaning. I came to see you just to tell you that if you hand Hector to me, I can still stop now. Homer Dunley will still be the chairman of Homer Pharmaceutical and all the properties and assets under his name will be released. If he refuses to come to his senses, I guarantee that everything under his name will be reduced to ashes in the next half an hour!"

"Are you trying to scare me?"

Homer was furious. He slapped his palm on the table fiercely, pointed at Philip, and roared, "I've made inquiries. You're just relying on the power of Victor Bell in Upper creek Are you trying to scare me with that? I'm telling you, even if Victor comes to Flower City, he has to watch his step! Believe it or not, with just one phone call from me, you'll be killed on the streets the moment you walk out of this hotel!"

Homer was really angry. The young man in front of him was so obstinate that he refused to listen to their suggestions.

“Oh ? I must say I don’t believe you.” Philip grinned with a trace of disdain and contempt.

“You!” Homer inhaled sharply.

It was a slightly exaggerated claim to say that Philip would get killed on the streets, but there were a hundred ways if he wanted Philip to disappear from Flower City!

After all, within the boundary of Flower City in Charbury, Milo Dunley was a well known figure. Even the six underground lords had to Show some respect to the Dunley family of Flower City.

The reason why he said that was just to give Philip a warning and let him know the current situation he was in.

However, who would have thought that Philip was actually so arrogant ? In that case, he must take things more seriously.

Homer flicked a glance at Milo next to him. The latter signaled to him not to get too excited before he smiled at Philip and said, “Mr. Clarke, it’s impossible for us to hand Hector over. After all, he’s my fourth brother’s son and my nephew. You can change the condition...”

“My condition will not change. You only have half an hour to think about it. If you don’t hand over Hector in half an hour, Homer Dunley will lose everything in Flower City!” Philip said coldly, not at all joking.

Smack!

Milo was also angry now. He stood up abruptly, slapped the table, and pointed at Philip. He shouted, “Boy, you really don’t know what’s good for you! You should remember that this is Flower City, not Uppercreek! If I want you to die, it’s just a matter of words! Hector is still young, so it’s understandable that he couldn’t control his strength. Now that things have already happened, why are you so relentless ? Let’s name a price. How about 50 million dollars ?”

“50... million?”

Homer was stunned. He looked at Milo with a frown and wanted to say something.

However, Milo’s brows were furrowed and Homer understood his intention. He made no comment. He said, “Boy, 50 million dollars is our limit. Take the money and leave quickly. Otherwise, I think you’ll have to stay in Flower City forever!”

“Hehe.”
