

The First Heir – Chapter 1796

After saying this, Fred sneered. “Young man, things are complicated in Flower City. Do you, an outsider, think you can cause such a commotion on someone else’s territory? Now that I’ve given you the conditions, you only have ten minutes to consider.”

After saying that, Fred raised his hand and made a gesture. An underling behind him pulled out the long dagger from his back and threw it on the floor.

A clatter resounded throughout the private room.

Upon seeing this, Jowin was furious. He pointed at Fred and shouted, “Fred Able, are you not taking me seriously? Do you think that you’re the only one who has brought people here?”

As he said that, dozens of vans and sedans swarmed toward the hotel that was already being surrounded by Fred’s people.

Thugs with baseball bats and long daggers jumped down from the cars, surrounding Fred’s people!

Instantly, the situation around the hotel changed!

Two groups of people occupied two sides of the hotel, forming a confrontation!

As far as the eye could see, the entire area was full of people. It was a situation where these people could overwhelm the city at any time!

This scene made the onlookers exclaim in awe.

“Holy sh*t! Isn’t this Master Benson’s people? They’re going up against Fred Able’s people!”

“Who can tell me what’s going on? Isn’t there a truce?”

“Hehe, don’t you know? I heard that a big shot came to Flower City to deal with Homer Dunley and his son, but later, Milo Dunley stepped in and wanted to negotiate with the other party. The talk fell apart and triggered the current situation.”

Someone with inside information said at this moment. This caused an uproar. Many people began to talk about Homer Dunley and his son, as well as Milo Dunley.

The line of sight returned to Milo, Homer, and Hector Dunley.

Homer was pacing back and forth in the hall at this moment, his expression looking incredibly anxious.

Milo, on the other hand, was sitting leisurely on the sofa while sipping warm tea. He said, “Homer, don’t worry. With Fred’s help, this matter will be resolved soon. Although this kid is a little unusual, Fred’s methods can still be trusted in Flower City. No matter how big a background he has, if he dies in Flower City, we can still make it into an accident and leave no traces behind.”

Homer shook his head and said a little gloomily, “Milo, I can’t help feeling that things are not that simple this time. Philip Clarke gives me a very unusual feeling. I just can’t calm down.”

Hector, who was sitting at the side, chuckled at this moment and said fearlessly, “Dad, I think you just got scared by him. We don’t need to be afraid of Philip at all. With Fred’s help, this matter is already a done deal as Uncle Milo said. There’s no need to worry unnecessarily.”

As soon as he said that, Homer turned around and glared at Hector fiercely. He pointed at his nose and shouted, “It’s all because of you! Why did you have to mess with others? Now, he has come to Flower City and kicked up such a big fuss! After this matter is settled, I want you to go abroad to further your studies!”

Hector pursed his lips and wanted to say something.

However, a subordinate suddenly rushed in and shouted, “Master Milo, Chairman Dunley, there’s news from the hotel. Fred has led his people there but they’ve clashed with Jowin Benson’s people. Now, the entire hotel and the nearby area are packed with people!”