

First Heir 38

The First Heir

Chapter 38

Lynn glanced at her friends, looking aggrieved, then finally stuttered, "I... I accidentally... left her alone. This was all because she kept fussing about wanting to go home and kept running around, so I taught her a lesson. Have I done anything wrong?" Lynn was still filled with grievances at the start, but as she spoke, she ended up getting more agitated, as if unwilling to admit that this was her fault.

"What's more, Mila's your daughter, not mine. Why should I have to look after her? If she's missing, that's her fault!" Lynn refused to take this responsibility. This had nothing to do with her. It was all Mila's fault! It was because that little b*tch, who was an embarrassment to the family, was such an eyesore!

Philip was really furious. He never expected Lynn to be this unreasonable but still so proud of herself. "Lynn Johnston, I'm warning you. If Mila is not found at the end of today, I will make you regret this for the rest of your life!" Philip pointed at Lynn and admonished. He was now boiling with anger. Had Lynn not been Wynn's cousin sister, he would have slapped her a few times now!

Beside him, Theo whispered, "Mr. Clarke, I've already informed the broadcasting room to start searching. Let's go to the control room."

Philip nodded, then turned to follow Theo as they rushed toward the control room.

Lynn and her friends exchanged glances. Until after Philip was gone, Lynn kicked the air furiously and scolded, "Philip Clarke, who the f*ck do you think you are? That little b*tch is better off being kidnapped by human traffickers!" Lynn was angry because that trash, Philip had actually raised his voice at her, embarrassing her in front of her friends.

"Lynn, is that idiot your cousin brother-in-law?" The boy who had been slapped by Philip earlier was staring resentfully in the direction Philip disappeared off to as he asked through gritted teeth.

"He's just a wretched piece of trash living under my cousin kept man?" Jeremy Hill got even more annoyed. It was such an embarrassment to be frightened by a kept man, so he had to get his dignity back! "Let's go and follow them. My dad's the supervisor of this amusement park. If they want to look for a missing person, they have to go through my dad." Jeremy said coldly, "I won't take this lying down. I will have him kneel and apologize or else he can forget against the idea because Philip was her cousin brother-in-law after all. If her cousin sister found out about this, she would be in don't worry. I'll stand up for you. He's just a piece of trash." Jeremy smirked as a said, the group followed they immediately explained their situation. The staff inside quickly started up the surveillance records and Philip stood in front of more than ten videos as he carefully searched stay here and watch the cameras, I'll go and get my men," not think too much of it and hastily made a few phone calls, getting all of his photo of an energetic and adorable little at Philip's side, he was currently staring meticulously at the surveillance cameras, feeling anxious on the inside. Mila was his everything, she was also Wynn's everything. If Mila was really missing, Philip did not know how he should the video, Philip could see Lynn and her group with a little girl following play and Wynn disallowed it. The last time Philip took her to fun and taking pictures. As for Mila, she had to keep running to keep up with their pace. When she fell