

The vampire's niece

Third Person's POV

Dean and Martin are so stunned after hearing the whole story. They walk to Dean's office and know that it is only one thing they can do. They need to return Maureen to the vampires. Martin is sad that he will also lose his mother, but he knows his mother has done wrong. His parents have never loved him as much as they loved Maureen. Martin loves his sister but knows she is not part of his family. He'll also know she has been very catty and full of herself. Not many werewolves liked her, but I always wanted to be friends with her because she was popular. They never thought of her as being a vampire. And since she grew up with the werewolves, she smelled like a werewolf.

Everybody always thought that she was different. No one wanted to say it because she was the beta's daughter. Many older people were gossiping and saying she was not a werewolf. Of course, they did not say it out loud. They only whisper amongst each other.

No one wanted to upset Alpha Dean. I knew that he was always in love with Maureen. They all thought that Maureen would become the Luna of the Red River pack when she got her wolf. None of them were surprised when Maureen did not get her woof at eighteen. They all suspected that she was either a human or another creature. Although they were talking behind their backs, Martin knew what was happening. He knew that the people thought that she was not a werewolf.

"We will have to return Maureen to her family, and we have no choice, but they are also looking for your mother, who stole her. I do not know why the vampires all of a sudden decided to come and look for her now. Maybe it has something to do with the blood and that she has the blood of the originals inside her. Perhaps they fear the humans will get something they can use against them. The original vampire family is very close to their people. They will not let her go. Unfortunately, they will also not let your mother go for stealing her. I wish I could help, but there is nothing I can do now. Maybe if we go to the vampires and talk to them, they will let your mother go. If we tell them how much your mother loved your sister, they might not be so cruel and kill your mother. You know that I do not want this as much as you do not want this. We have to become friends with the vampire. We may need them in the water against the hunters and humans. So many things are happening in our area suddenly, and I am worried. I am also concerned about Tamara and her Pack. Vladimir showed too much interest in Tamara. As you know, tomorrow is my mate. I cannot give her up to a bloody vampire. Even if I have to fight him, I will. But I will not give away my mate," Dean says to Martin, and he does not look too happy. ¹

"I know I will lose my whole family, and that's all because of my mother and what she did all those years ago. It is just a shame that she never told anyone of us about it. At least we would have been prepared for what was coming. We might not have been so rude to Tamara if we had known back then. You may have known that Maureen is not your mate and that Tamara is. You would not have rejected Tamara, and you could have been happy with your mate right now. Tamara would have been at home safely. You would have had one less worry on your mind. I apologize for all the trouble my family has caused you, Dean. If I knew that they would have gotten into so much trouble, I would not have been friends with you. I would have moved them out of this Pack. My father was a murderer, my mother stole a baby, and my sister is a vampire. Wow! What a family I have," Martin says.

"If you ever talk like that again, I will smack you on the head. You are my best friend and have stood by me through thick and thin. I do not know what I would have done without you, and you are one of the best betas an Alpha can ask for. You have always put the Pack first and are not worried about your own life. I have seen you fight with me, side by side, against Rogues and against other creatures that were attacking our Pack. I know how much you love this Pack. Don't ever say that you would not have been my friend if you knew what your family was. I could not ask for a better friend, and I want you to know that you will always be my friend and my beta. We will find Tamara and bring her home. We will find you a mate, and you will have a family again. I do not know if the vampires will kill your mother. Maybe, if we talk to them and ask them for mercy, they will show compassion to Doreen. Doreen is not all bad, and there is still hope for her. Now let us think about what we will do tonight and how we will trust the vampires. Vladimir seems like a guy of his word. But on the other hand, he also likes my mate, Tamara, too much. I wouldn't say I like how he looks at my mate, and I am afraid I will lose my cool. So I need you there. You have always been my right-hand man. And I know that I can count on you," Dean says.

"I am honored to be your friend and your beta. And you know I will be right there by your side, and I will not allow anybody to upset you. And if we have to fight, I will fight by your side," Martin says.

Dean and Martin wait until it is time to leave to go and meet the vampires. They know they must take Doreen and Maureen with them and have no choice. Dean does not care much as he does not like Doreen but cares about his friend, and he knows that more than only has his mother left. He does not want Martin to lose his family's last member. They both know by now that Maureen is not a part of Martin's family. Martin knows he will not miss Maureen as much because she was always a bitch to him. She only uses him to get closer to his best friend. She also knew that Martin would become the beta of the Pack and that she would have to work with him. She never liked her brother, as she never liked any of the other werewolves, except for Dean. Maureen and Doreen have no clue where they are going. They do not realize that they are going to meet the original vampires.

They walk into the clearing, where they agree to meet Vladimir and his family. They all stand here for a few minutes before Vladimir shows up, and he looks at Maureen and nods, and he shows the others to come out. They were hiding in the woods nearby, and Vladimir could not take his eyes off Maureen.

"My baby, my daughter, I cannot believe I found you at last," A female vampire screams as she runs out of the woods. She looks just like Maureen, and Martin and Dean are both amazed.

"What is going on here? Why is this woman looking just like me?" Maureen asks.

"My name is Helga, and I am your mother. This woman stole you from me a long time ago. I always looked for you and returned every year, looking for you when I had the time. We always thought that maybe a human took you. But then we realized the only ones that could have taken you were the werewolves. We had to wait until you turned eighteen to see which werewolf did not get a wolf. As for you, I feel like killing you. How dare you take my child away from me?" Helga says.

"I am sorry that I took your baby. I thought she was a human baby, and I never thought she was a vampire until I discovered that only blood could fill her. Please spare me. I have looked after Maureen for all my life. And I loved her like a mother, and I never mistreated her. I fell in love with the baby and could not return her. That is why I could keep her for all these years. She is like my daughter, and I do not want to live without her, but I also do not want to die and make her sad," Doreen tries to play on the feeling of the vampire before her.

"You stole my child and robbed many years of my life with her! How must I forgive you? How do you think I must feel? I have missed my daughter, and I have missed seeing her growing up, and I have missed seeing her becoming the beautiful woman that she is. Do you think I must feel sorry for you or be thankful to you for just giving her love? Do you think, for one moment, that I can forgive you? How would you feel if your child was taken from you at birth?" Helga asks.

"I know I did the wrong thing and did it for the wrong reasons. But please spare my life," Doreen begs. Maureen starts crying as she does not want to see Doreen die. She has been looking after her for many years, and Doreen is the only mother she knows. She has just lost her father and does not want to lose her mother.

"Please just let my mom live. I will go with you and promise I will be a good daughter to you. But let my mother live, and she is all that my brother has left. If we just lost our father and cannot lose our mother right now," Maureen begs Helga.

"I am your mother, little one, and I will care for you for the rest of your life. But I promise I will not kill this woman because she is the only mother you have known until now. I will also later look for the sake of your brother. However, you can never call her mother again because I am your mother. We can go now. I think we are done here. Unless you have other business to talk to with these people," Helga tells Vladimir.

"It is okay. I promise you can go home now, and I will not touch the old lady. I have business to discuss with the werewolves. We must work with them. You know in what danger all the creatures in these woods are. We will have to work together with them. We have one enemy in common, and we cannot let them beat us. Besides, I'm waiting for one beautiful little wolf to show up. I know she will show up sooner or later, and she has been watching this drama from a distance. You can come out of your hiding place, Tamara," Vladimir says. Dean does not like how he talks to his mate, but he has also smelt Tamara.

"I will appreciate it if you stop calling my mate beautiful and all those stuff. She is my mate. Can you please show respect for me?" Dean says.

"She has not accepted you as her mate yet. So I think she is still fair game," Vladimir says. He likes to tease Dean and get another reaction out of him.

"You are both bloody stupid if you think I will take any of you as my mate. What will we do about the humans and the hunters in our area? That is all I'm interested in, and I'm willing to work with you. We will talk about it right now, and I do not want to hear the two of you talking about me being a mate," Tamara says as she jumps out of the tree.
