Chapter 1121 I Understand

Cooper knew Harry had taught Lucian computer skills, but he didn't expect Lucian to be so good at it after learning for just a short period of time. Lucian can easily hack into others' computers now? He takes after Armand. Since he was little, he has been a rather independent child. That's why he can now face everything calmly. I don't even know if that's a good thing or not.

Cooper then patted Lucian's head and uttered softly, "I'm sorry. I didn't take good care of your mommy..."

"I understand." Lucian pursed his lips.

Right before Armand went abroad, he had a talk with Lucian and told him to look after Amanda. "He told me that he was Mommy's husband first before he became our daddy," Lucian said.

At that time, Lucian somehow sensed that something was amiss. He had a feeling his parents would never return.

After Cooper went back to the mansion, he received a call.

His phone call only lasted for a short while. After hanging up the phone, he carried Amanda in his arms and kissed her cheek. "There is something I need to do, so I won't be having dinner with you guys."

"It's all right!" Amanda waved dismissively and said, "After all, you've already kept us company throughout the day!"

Cooper went back to the office to take some gifts Bertilla had prepared. After that, he took an hour's car ride to arrive at an area with self-built mansions.

The area was located near the suburb, and there was a resettlement area right behind it. Hence, it wouldn't cost much to have a self-built mansion there.

The car came to a halt in front of a mansion on the right side of the road.

car and took out the gifts from the trunk. Upon taking a glance at his watch, he said to Sally, "Drive around on your own and pick me up at eight."

When he was talking to Sally, a middle-aged man and a young lady came out of the mansion.

The young lady was behind the man. She was wearing a down jacket and a long

The moment Cooper stepped into the house, he took off his jacket, and sat in the Isaac was a teacher as well, so he wasn't really sure what Yasmin was playing at. “Tiffany has a pair of twins in her class. Mr. Sutton here is their uncle. He's here to pay us a visit.”

Having understood the situation, Yasmin replied with a smile, “I see. What a coincidence, Mr. Sutton. I wasn't expecting to see you in a private setting like this.”

Tiffany shot Yasmin a glance when she heard that. For some reason, she sensed something off about Yasmin's response.

Yasmin showed up outside our house yesterday with her suitcases. She said her house was sold off and that she needed a place to stay while waiting for the ownership transfer of her new house. Dad couldn't say no to her because my uncle looked after him when he was little. However, the fact that Mr. Sutton is paying us a visit a day after Yasmin moved in seems a bit too coincidental...

She was snapped out of her train of thought when Isaac's wife, Jennifer, served up dinner.

While having dinner, Yasmin would interrupt Tiffany's conversation with Cooper whenever she had a chance. Yasmin even went as far as emphasizing her close relationship with Isaac, making it seem as though she was his daughter.

That was when Tiffany realized what Yasmin's intentions were.

When Yasmin went to use the bathroom, Tiffany quickly excused herself and followed her inside. “Hey, Yasmin, did you move in with us because you knew Mr. Sutton would be coming today?”

“No, I didn't. I simply had no place to stay. Besides, you've stayed over at my place in the past,” Yasmin replied with a shrug.

Tiffany pursed her lips and said, “He's here to see me.”

“Pfft... He's just here to ask you how his niece and nephew are doing in school. What's so special about that? You don't think he's into

you. I moved in with you because I'm working at Specter Corporation and know that Mr. Sutton is looking for someone to marry. You're not the only candidate, mind you. His secretary has contacted countless unmarried daughters of wealthy families. Do you really think a school teacher like you is worthy of dating Mr. Sutton? It's obvious that I'm the better choice here.”

“Did he send you a message and ask you

The look on Yasmin's face changed the moment she heard that.

That reaction was all Tiffany needed to confirm her answer. Feeling triumphant that she had outdone Yasmin, Tiffany Yasmin cursed at Tiffany under her breath as she watched her go.

After taking a moment to regain her composure, Yasmin made her way back to the dining table. Upon seeing Tiffany serving Cooper,

"Here, try this, Mr. Sutton. My aunt makes really great pork belly, but my mom can do it even better. You should give her cooking a try if you have the time!"

"It isn't healthy to eat too much meat, Mr. Sutton. Here, have some vegetables instead," Tiffany said while topping his plate up with some broccoli.

Yasmin clenched her teeth in frustration. She then tried to serve Cooper some soup but ended up spilling it on his sweater instead.

Chapter 1123 Are You Satisfied With Your Findings

Thinking it was another guest, Isaac got up to open the door, only to see Sally standing outside.

She had an icy-cold air about her that made her seem unapproachable.

Unsure of what her name was, Isaac said, "Please come in..."

"That won't be necessary. Please tell Mr. Sutton that someone needs to see him urgently. I'll be driving him there," Sally replied coldly.

Isaac could only do as told and delivered the message to Cooper.

Cooper blotted the soup stain dry and tossed the napkin onto the table as he said, "Mr. Yerton, Mrs. Yerton, thank you both for the meal."

"There is no need to thank us! I'm just glad the food was to your liking!" Isaac said.

"Are you leaving so soon, Mr. Sutton? Here, why don't you change into this sweater before you go?" Yasmin asked while handing him the shopping bag.

"No, thanks. I have spare clothes in the car," Cooper replied.

"I'll walk you to your car, Mr. Sutton," Tiffany said as she retrieved Cooper's down jacket from the foyer.

Yasmin shot her a furious glare in response.

Cooper then flashed her a gentle smile as he said, "You're welcome. Your mother's cooking is amazing. I'll treat you to a meal next time."

As his behavior implied he was into her, Tiffany tried her best to maintain her composure as she nodded in response.

Cooper then got into the passenger seat of his car which sped off into “What do you think?” Cooper asked.

“I don't think you are. You wouldn't have said that last sentence if you were,” Sally replied calmly.

Cooper had suspected Harry of murdering Dylan when the latter died. After all, Harry was far too smart for his age and possessed a ton of skills.

In the end, Cooper was proven to be right.

Not only was Harry a computer prodigy, but he was also physically fit and agile. However, his innocent and harmless appearance often caused others to lower their guard around him.

The look in Sally's eyes grew cold as she aggressively pulled over by the side of the road.

As Cooper turned to the side, he was met by her icy-cold gaze. “He may not be related to the Loake family by blood, but I have always treated him like my own brother. I also promised my father before he went to prison that I'd take good care of Stefo.”

“You didn't have to pull over just to tell me that. I'm not going to harm him while the Loake family is in shambles. I don't mind what he did. He and I are even now,” Cooper said with a chuckle.

"What do you think of Ms. Yerton, Mr. Sutton?" Bertilla asked as he followed Cooper into his office the next day.

"She's all right," Cooper replied without taking his eyes off his computer screen.

Having worked with Cooper for many years, Bertilla was all too familiar with his responses. He knew that Cooper meant he was not very keen on Tiffany.

Bertilla then helped contact the woman who was scheduled to have dinner with Cooper that night.

Throughout the next few weeks, Cooper would work during the day and have dinner with different women in the evening.

He had encountered women from all walks of life, including heiresses of wealthy families, teachers, nurses, pet store owners, and even art teachers.

However, Cooper didn't find any of them to his liking as they were all gold diggers, and he assumed the kids wouldn't like them either.

On Christmas Eve, Lucian and Amanda had to go to school.

After breakfast, Cooper sent the two to school himself. Tiffany happened to be the teacher on duty at the school gate that day.

"Ms. Yerton!" Amanda greeted her with a wave.

Cooper shot Tiffany a glance while handing Amanda her schoolbag. "Mandy, do you like Ms. Yerton a lot?"

"Yes, I do! Ms. Yerton's

then started the car and drove to the school. The kids had just finished school by the time he arrived at the gate.

While waiting for Lucian and Amanda, Cooper sent Tiffany a text.

Chapter 1126 How Shall We Help Her Out

Cooper then brought Tiffany and the kids to a Ferropenian restaurant that he booked.

The restaurant had a Christmas tree, festive decorations, and even a live band performing Christmas songs.

All of that combined made the atmosphere very romantic.

Tiffany had dined in fancy restaurants before, but it was her first time having the entire place reserved. Wow, this feels so dreamy! It's as though I'm dining in a castle!

"Do you like Ferropenian cuisine? If not, we can go for something else," Cooper asked.

Tiffany flashed him a shy smile. "It's delicious."

After dinner, Cooper brought Tiffany shopping at a mall. Because the mall was a subsidiary of Specter Corporation, she was allowed to take anything she wanted while Cooper footed all the bills.

When they were done shopping, Cooper dropped the kids back at Swallow Garden before sending Tiffany home.

Upon arriving at her house, Cooper got out of the car and opened the door for her. "I think I quite enjoy your company, Ms. Yerton. What about you? What do you think of me?"

Timothy glanced at his handsome face and lowered her head as she replied, "I enjoy your company too, Mr. Sutton."

"In that case, how about we get married as soon as possible? I'll come pick you up at ten tomorrow morning, and we'll go pick out our wedding rings. What do you say?" Cooper asked with a smile.

Tiffany froze for a few seconds before nodding with her face all red. "Okay."

While waiting for her to pick out a ring, the screen of Cooper's phone lit up as he received a call from his assistant.

Chapter 1127 Collecting The Marriage Certificates

After ten minutes of driving, Cooper arrived at the police station.

As there had been a major change in the police force throughout the past few months, Cooper didn't recognize any of the higher-ups there. He then approached one of the police officers and said he came to bail Sally out.

The police officer eyed him from head to toe as he replied, "Sally Loake is suspected of dealing drugs. It's a serious crime, so you can't just drop by and bail her out."

"I spoke to the people at the bar before coming over. There were quite a lot of people entering and leaving the locker room at the time, and those lockers can be easily pried open. Besides, you guys didn't find her fingerprints on the bag, so you don't even have sufficient evidence to pin this on her," Cooper said calmly.

The police officer's expression turned gloomy. "Are you saying we're trying to frame her?"

"I'm just saying you can't keep her detained without sufficient evidence. It'd be bad for your reputation if word got out about this," Cooper replied.

One of the police officers passing by recognized Cooper and whispered something in the police officer's ear.

As they didn't have sufficient evidence, it would indeed affect their reputation if the media wrote about it. "Only family members are allowed to bail her out."

Cooper took his gloves off and said with a faint smile, "I am her family member."

"How are you going to prove that?"

Cooper handed Sally her household registry, ID card, and marriage certificate before leaving City Hall with her.

thought you'd one day be arrested and detained by the police? You know, since you're General Loake's daughter and all," Cooper asked.

Chapter 1128 Who Would Possibly Dare Marry you

"Because I'm a skilled fighter who has no feelings for you, and I am also capable of looking after your niece and nephew." Sally brought the car to a halt at a red light before continuing, "The Zeigler family won't take a side, so the Gaudette family refuses to let them remain in power because they posed a threat. After taking out the Zane and the Loake families, the Gaudette family will go after the Zeigler family."

Feeling her nicotine addiction kick in, Sally retrieved a box of cigarettes from the armrest storage and lighted one.

As it was Cooper's car that she was driving, the cigarette belonged to him as well.

Unable to stand the intense smell of his cigarettes, Sally rolled the windows down to allow some ventilation. Having a sudden blast of cold air on her face helped clear her head instantly.

"I'll make a quick stop for a box of cigarettes," she said while handing him the lit cigarette.

Cooper nodded as he took it over and began puffing away.

Sally pulled over by the side of the road and went to buy a pack of cigarettes with lower tar content. "Keep going," Cooper said when she returned to the car.

Sally took a puff of her cigarette and rested her left hand outside the car window to avoid stinking the car up.

"Genevieve is the biological granddaughter of Old Mr. Zeigler, so you wouldn't just sit by and watch as others tried to harm the Zeigler family. As long as the Zeigler family still stands, the Gaudette family wouldn't dare lay a finger on Specter

As the car passed by the Harry Winston jewelry store, Cooper asked Sally to pull over by you wear it all the time. Otherwise, it'll be hard to explain it to the kids."

Seeing that he was persistent about it, Sally had no choice but to follow him into the store.

The store manager had just seen Cooper with Tiffany an hour ago, so he was a little surprised to see him bringing a different woman over.

However, he knew that such things were rather common among the upper class, so he didn't ask any questions.

Sally couldn't be bothered to enter the VIP room, so she decided to just pick one from the glass display cases. The one she chose had a princess-cut diamond on top of a platinum ring.

Josephine said, "I'm saying this as a friend, of course. My father is on good terms with you, and he's in big trouble now because of this mess. Yet, you sit here and do nothing about it."

"Oh, really? What sort of trouble?" Sally retorted, "I don't see your father getting sacked or ostracized by others."

For one moment, Josephine was at a loss for words.

Meanwhile, Sally got up from the couch, approached Josephine, and stared at her coldly. "Tell your father that he does have a choice, but he should know what he's done. As long as I'm still alive, I'll clear my father and Mr. Zane's names."

At the same time, Cooper came out of the restroom. He headed for the lounge when he saw Sally speaking to another woman.

He asked, "Has the ring been resized?"

"Not yet." As soon as Sally had finished speaking, the store manager came over with a tray. The resized ring was placed on a piece of velvet.

Sally eyed the ring without making a move.

After stealing a glance at her, Cooper immediately understood what she was getting at. He picked up the ring and slid it onto her hand and waved it at Josephine. "I'm sorry to disappoint you, but someone actually decides to marry me. You should thank your lucky stars that I'm not a petty person. Otherwise, your future husband won't be able to buy a ring from

"I'm not the right person for Ms. Yerton, so I didn't buy the wedding ring." Cooper chuckled. "Ms. Loake will be your aunt, okay?"

Amanda looked at him with a frown. "You like so many women. Why can't you make up your mind, Uncle Cooper?"

Cooper was rendered speechless. He turned around to look at Sally.

Sally remembered how Cooper had helped her at the jewelry store earlier. So, she told Amanda. "I was the one who thought your uncle wasn't the right person for Ms. Yerton."

A wide-eyed Amanda stared at Sally. "Is it because you like Uncle Cooper?"

Sally hesitated for a few seconds before answering, "Um, kind of."

Following that, Amanda saw the ring on Sally's finger. Next, she glanced at Cooper's finger. Both of their rings had a similar style.

She leaped out of Cooper's arms immediately and ran toward Lucian. Although she spoke softly, she sounded proud. "I told you that Uncle Cooper always hangs out with Ms. Loake, and she definitely likes him. Don't you agree, Lucian? See, Uncle Cooper and Ms. Loake are wearing rings!"

Amanda pointed at the two adults and regarded Lucian again. "You've lost, Lucian. You must build that Lego princess castle for me."

Lucian turned around to glance at the couple's rings. He did not know what to say.
