Chapter 1281 Carefully Serving A Woman

Johanna lowered her gaze to the ground, but first caught sight of her own protruding belly. She didn't want any mishaps to befall her baby, so she withdrew her hand with a cold expression.

Zephyr felt her leaning her back against his arm, the corner of her mouth curling upward.

This private hospital has a complete range of departments and medical equipment, but it is not very spacious. Zephyr took Johanna for a walk around the ground floor, and it only took them a little over ten minutes.

Johanna glanced at the sky, "The smell of disinfectant in the hospital makes me uncomfortable. I want to go for a walk in the park."

Zephyr could sense the annoyance in Johanna's tone. He glanced at her without saying anything and gestured towards the bodyguard in the shadows.

After they arrived at the hospital entrance, a car was already parked there.

Zephyr opened the car door and instinctively placed one hand on the roof to protect Johanna from bumping her head as she got in.

Upon seeing the man's actions, the subordinate was quite astonished.

Zephyr insisted on hugging her, "I'm afraid those little deer might attack you."

Johanna suddenly realized that a bundle of deer crackers in her hand had been snatched away by one of the little deer. Zephyr hugged her and went to buy another bundle.

He whistled, and the deer around him came bounding over.

With Zephyr around, the deer that gathered once again didn't dare to push Johanna. They carefully nibbled on the deer crackers she handed out.

Johanna touched the deer's fur, finding it very soft and pleasant to the touch.

Johanna knew that there were many tourists in Spring Park, so after entering the park, she was constantly looking for a second chance to escape. However, Zephyr was guarding her closely, not leaving her side for even a moment.

She said she wanted to use the restroom, and Zephyr, taking advantage of her pregnancy, asked the staff to escort her to the restroom designated for expectant mothers.

His steadfast defense left Johanna both angry and frustrated.

Zephyr lifted his hand and gently tucked Johanna's hair behind her ear. He noticed a small cut below her delicate left ear and said, "You're injured, so it's best not to eat anything too spicy."

He had been holding a gun for many years, and as a result, there was a thin layer of callus on his finger.

When his finger touched her earlobe, Johanna's body stiffened, and without hesitation, she slapped his hand away.

Johanna finished the few pieces of greens in her small bowl and suddenly looked at Zephyr with her hand on her cheek. "I really want to eat pickled cucumbers, they're sour and spicy, and very appetizing... Since you won't let me eat them, why don't you eat them for me?"

Zephyr leaned back in his seat and said, "I don't really like this kind of food."

Johanna, of course, knew that he didn't like greasy and spicy food. Precisely because she knew this, she said, "But I like it, and watching you eat it is like me eating it."

"Otherwise, I would constantly be thinking about this bowl of pickled cucumbers and would try every possible way to get some."

She said, moving the bowl of pickled cucumbers in front of her, "If you don't want to eat them, let me finish them to satisfy my craving."

After the two of them finished eating and left the restaurant, it was dark outside.

Johanna slid into the car through the door Zephyr had opened for her. Once he got in as well, she said, "The hospital has a strong disinfectant smell, I don't want to go there anymore, it's uncomfortable."

"Let's go to the hot spring resort then," Zephyr said, and gave an address to his subordinate.

This hot spring resort is privately operated and is quite far from the city center, taking about an hour to drive there.

After having a satisfying meal and with the comfortable temperature inside the car, Johanna soon became drowsy.

Zephyr wanted her to lean on his shoulder so she could sleep more comfortably. As his hand wrapped around Johanna's waist, she immediately opened her eyes, pushed his hand away, and moved closer to the car door.

Zephyr didn't mind, picking up the coat that had fallen under the seat and placing it back on her lap.

The car made its way through the forest and up to the mountain peak, gradually coming to a stop in front of a building designed in pure Jetroinian-style architecture. Zephyr got out of the car first and walked around to open the door on the other side.

Chapter 1285 Affection and Tenderness Devoted To Her

For many years, the subordinate had been following Zephyr, and he knew about the numerous women in Zephyr's life. Zephyr merely used those women to pass the time, even his relationship with the heiress of the Sheraton family was just an act.

However, Zephyr's feelings for Johanna were crystal clear.

Johanna was in a bad mood, not wanting to do anything or go anywhere. Zephyr never forced her, putting all his affection and gentleness towards Johanna.

Not the least bit afraid of Zephyr's vulnerabilities, everyone in The Dark Crow knew just how terrifying Zephyr could be.

Not only him, but the entire Carlo family also hopes that Zephyr will get married and have children. As long as Zephyr has a child, the family can continue to thrive and prosper for generations to come.

Upon hearing this, Zephyr raised his eyebrows and chuckled lightly, "As it should be."

The subordinate saw Zephyr's usually frightening purple eyes, but now they were filled with a gentle warmth. "Mrs. Juksford is very beautiful, and the little miss she gave birth to must be beautiful too, just like you, Mr. Juksford, with a pair of lovely purple eyes."

Zephyr picked up the iced whiskey and took a sip, rubbing the glass with his fingertips. "I'd prefer if the little one had eyes like their mother."

If it weren't for the fact that he had the same eye color as Silas, he might have doubted that he was Silas's biological child, and that's why Silas didn't love him.

Later, he realized that Silas was not incapable of love.

Silas had a woman in his heart, and he devoted all his emotions to her. This woman also made Cordelia quite jealous.

Seeing Zephyr's downcast appearance, the subordinate held their breath, not daring to make a sound.

About ten minutes later, when Zephyr looked up again, his face had returned to its normal color. He finished the last sip of whiskey and said, "You can go back and rest now."

However, the subordinate didn't leave in a hurry. "Mr. Juksford, there's something strange I'd like to report to you."

"Um."

"I received news these past few days that someone in Kille is looking for the President's whereabouts."

It seems that, out of respect for his own father, Zephyr buried Silas in the same cemetery where Mia Quinn and her husband were laid to rest. As for the Carlo family, he simply told them that Silas had settled down in another country.

Thus, only a few people knew about Silas's death.

Johanna's face darkened, and she thought about getting up and leaving.

Zephyr quickly held her down and turned the hairdryer back on, gently coaxing, "Alright, no kisses then. Let me help you dry your hair; you can't sleep with wet hair."

Johanna found herself mostly enveloped by the man, unable to walk away. She had no choice but to let him help her dry her hair.

Johanna's hair was quite soft and not very thick, so it dried quickly.

The zephyr gently passed through the woman's jet-black hair, carrying a faint scent of citrus. He lowered his head to take a sniff, and couldn't help but plant a soft kiss on the nape of her neck.

Afterward, Zephyr unplugged the hairdryer.

Hearing the doorbell ring, he walked over and opened the door. It was the waiter who had brought the warmed milk.

Upon entering the resort, she noticed that this establishment placed great emphasis on customer privacy. Apart from the main entrance, there were no surveillance cameras in the other areas.

At this early hour, Zephyr's bodyguards should be resting as well.

Johanna carefully opened the door to her room and saw that the hallway outside was indeed empty, with no one guarding it. Relying on the resort map she had seen in the reception area, she hurriedly walked towards the other side of the hallway.

Upon seeing the door, she strode over and pulled on it twice, only to realize it was locked.

Why is there still a lock on this sliding door?

To Johanna's surprise, the last obstacle turned out to be a door. Frustrated, she pounded on the shutter, ready to find some tools to pry the lock open.

At that moment, a hand reached out and handed over a brass key.

"Thank you." Johanna took the key and quickly opened the door. As soon as the door was pulled open, a cold wind blew in from outside.

If it were in the past, he could disregard everything, but now he doesn't want Johanna to dislike him. He wants Johanna to share a bit of love with him.

After a kiss, Zephyr restrained himself and stepped back, leaving the living room and quickly heading towards the bathroom.

Perhaps it was due to the pregnancy pillow, but Johanna didn't wake up at all during the night and had a very comfortable sleep. The next day, after getting up and freshening up, she headed straight to the resort's front desk.

Zephyr grabbed Johanna as she was about to leave the room and pushed her into a chair.

The Jetroinian-style resort does not provide indoor slippers, and the entire resort is made of wooden structures. The central air conditioning temperature is also a bit low. Zephyr is worried that Johanna might catch a cold if she walks barefoot on the floor.

After putting on socks for Johanna, Zephyr said, “What's the rush? Let's have breakfast first.”

Johanna was afraid that if the man became unhappy, he might go back on his previous words. So, she kept quiet and let him lead her to the restaurant.

After finishing a bowl of mushroom soup, Johanna wiped the corner of her mouth with a napkin.

After leaving the restaurant, Johanna went straight to the resort's front desk and said she needed the receptionist apologized and said that the driver had gone down the mountain

Johanna didn't wake up until after three in the afternoon.

After what happened yesterday and today, Johanna has come to realize how cunning Zephyr is. As long as he's around, she'll never have a chance to escape.

For the sake of the child in her belly, Johanna later stopped causing trouble.

The two of them stayed in Jetrouina for almost a month. Zephyr accompanied Johanna as they visited all the fun places in the city. During the summer, Jetrouina had a traditional Fireworks Festival, which Zephyr also took her to attend.

After attending the Fireworks Festival, when Johanna woke up from her sleep, she found herself in a small town in Epea, transported by Zephyr's private plane.

Johanna was absolutely furious.

In Jetroina, all she needed to do was find an opportunity to go to the embassy, and she would be saved. However, she was taken to the other side of the Earth, making it incredibly difficult to return home.
