Chapter 1321 Money Is Useless

Upon hearing this, Genevieve's eyes flickered for a moment.

With her current status, it's too easy for her to get in touch with the person in charge of luxury brands for a gown. However, although those gowns can add glamour to Yvonne, they are not as good as Xenia's traditional gown.

If Yvonne were to appear at the December charity gala wearing a traditional gown personally crafted by the master, it would undoubtedly cause a sensation.

Without resorting to corporate PR, Yvonne can easily tackle all the problems she encounters.

Genevieve gritted her teeth, and in the end, for the sake of her own two billion in revenue, she could only bear the pain and say, "Give her my spot for the traditional gown."

"Are you sure about the traditional gown design? I've already prepared the draft," Xenia asked. She then got up and walked over to the workbench by the wall, taking out a sketchbook from the bottom drawer.

Xenia opened the picture book to a certain page and then handed it to Genevieve.

Not only is Xenia skilled in making traditional gowns, but she also has an excellent foundation in art. Her portrayal of Genevieve in the sketchbook is incredibly lifelike and exquisite.

Xenia, who has a deep love for traditional gowns, started learning at Joshua's tailor shop through a friend's recommendation.

The Norton family has been running a tailoring shop for generations, and it gained some fame in Jadeborough during the seventies and eighties. Joshua went abroad to study at a prestigious fashion institute and, upon his return, took over the traditional gown shop. He made drastic changes, not only offering traditional gowns but also creating fusion designs that combined Eastern and Western elements. His exceptional craftsmanship quickly earned him a stellar reputation.

After studying alongside Joshua for a while, Xenia gradually became captivated by his gentleness and skill.

However, at that time, she knew that Joshua getting married did not cross the line.

Later on, Joshua's relationship with his wife fell apart, and they got divorced. It was then that Xenia finally mustered the courage to confess her feelings to Joshua, and the two quickly became a couple.

It had been less than a month since they separated, and Joshua's ex-wife was already regretting the divorce. She came to him, hoping to reconcile, but Joshua turned her down.

When Joshua got married, he had a child with his wife. When they divorced, their four-year-old son was awarded to Joshua's ex-wife. She then used their son to manipulate Joshua emotionally and spread rumors about Xenia stealing him away. Even Joshua's father called Xenia shameless for her actions.

Fortunately, Joshua firmly stood by Xenia's side. Unable to tolerate it any longer, he said that he had to divorce her because she had cheated on him multiple times.

Genevieve originally came to find Xenia to make some pajamas. However, she unexpectedly ended up chatting with Sienna for a while, and then with Xenia. Time flew by so quickly that it was already dark outside the store.

Genevieve picked up her phone and sent a message to Armand, telling him that she would pick him up at the government office.

"I'll go back and ask around. If it turns out that Mr. Joshua was indeed wronged, I'll have my husband think of a solution," Genevieve said. After finishing her statement, she stood up and bid farewell to Xenia.

After driving to the vicinity of the government office building, Genevieve waited for a while and saw Armand coming out from inside.

Not only him, but there were also three or four government officials wearing suits.

The man wore a suit with a black overcoat issued by the government draped over it. It was a common outfit, but his broad shoulders and long legs set him apart from the people around him.

Genevieve leaned on the steering wheel, gazing intently at the man not far away through the windshield of the car in front.

She thought to herself, the royal and noble descendants mentioned in ancient times must have been like Armand. Even if he were to work at a construction site carrying bricks, his innate nobility would still be impossible to conceal.

As Armand approached the car, Genevieve unlocked it.

After Armand bent down to get into the car, she leaned in a little closer and reached over to help him fasten his seatbelt on one side.

Genevieve playfully teased Armand over the phone.

Darling's enchanting voice left Armand completely captivated, forgetting all about his intentions to make a request of her. He even shared with her his strategies for dealing with Joshua's wife.

Genevieve felt as if a whole new world had opened up before her, and she exclaimed, "Luc, if you don't end up with a high-ranking provincial or ministerial position, you'd really be letting me down as your mother."

She hung up the phone in a great mood and saw that Sally hadn't left yet, staring at her intently.

"Sally, what are you looking at?"

Sally finally looked away and gave a faint smile. "I never would have guessed that someone as serious as Mr. Faulkner could be charmed by you. It's true, there's always something to tame something else."

Genevieve said, "He only acts serious around others, but in private, he's quite a beast. I even wonder if he has some sort of split personality."

As Genevieve removed the boxing wraps from her wrists, she glanced up at Sally and said, "Besides, acting cute with your own man can be a kind of fun. Don't you ever act cute with my Cooper?"

"Probably not." Sally's personality is rather indifferent; she doesn't have any particular likes or dislikes, nor does she have any strong feelings toward people or things.

This contract has no legal effect, but Genevieve only intends to bind them to sign with Genevieve Orsi after terminating their contract with Ingenuity Entertainment.

She also didn't think Yvonne would be foolish enough to play out a scene like “The Farmer and the Viper.”

Faye, the secretary, brought the contract over, and Sienna took a look before pressing her fingerprint on it. She took the other copy to get Yvonne's signature, promising to have it ready by tomorrow morning at the latest.

After being busy for more than an hour, Faye, holding the contract, and Sienna left the tailor shop one after the other.

After the store quieted down, Genevieve finally told Xenia that her husband could help.

However, Joshua's case for a retrial requires evidence.

She shared her strategy for dealing with Joshua's wife with Xenia and added, “You can also give me the items, and I'll arrange for someone to handle it on my end.”

Xenia shook her head, her expression calm and cold. "Before, I couldn't do anything to her. But now I have the chance. I want her to personally experience the pain that our teacher went through."

Upon seeing that Xenia had her own plans, Genevieve didn't say anything more.

For the time being, Genevieve set aside the matter of helping Yvonne terminate her contract and focused on learning how

With the guidance of a dessert chef by their side, the two children busily worked until 7:30, finally managing to create a decent eight-inch cake.

The table was set with a sumptuous dinner.

As soon as Armand stepped into the house, Amanda rushed over like a little cannonball, hugging him and giving him several kisses. "Daddy, happy birthday!"

"Thank you, Sweetie," Armand said with a smile, as he kissed his daughter's forehead.

Born into a large family like the Faulkners, coupled with his father's tragic marriage, Armand never dared to hope for a happy life. Yet, unexpectedly, he met Genevieve.

She gave him everything he wanted, making him incredibly happy.

Armand handed his coat to the housekeeper and, holding his daughter, entered the house. He asked her where Genevieve had gone.

Amanda said, "Mommy went upstairs to change her clothes."

As soon as Amanda finished speaking, Genevieve descended from the second floor. Her snow-white skin was completely enveloped by a traditional gown, and the high collar made her neck appear even more slender.

A strong classical charm emanated from the woman.

The two of them moved from the doorway to the bed, and then to the bathroom.

As Armand was about to help Genevieve apply body lotion, she gently held his hand and said softly, "When I start working in a while, I'll be too busy to take care of you."

"How about you finish the future tasks in advance?"

Seeing that she loved her job more than herself, Armand felt a bit jealous. However, since his wife said so, he didn't hold back.

The consequence of indulging in joy was that Genevieve couldn't get up the next day.

Thankfully, today is the weekend, and Sally took the two kids to Timothy's house to play, giving Genevieve a day off to rest.

It wasn't until after three in the afternoon that Genevieve finally woke up.

She glanced at her phone and saw numerous WeChat messages. After responding to all the important ones, she was about to exit the app when she unintentionally noticed that people were chatting in a group that had notifications muted.

Genevieve noticed that she was added to a sisterhood group by Charlotte, so she clicked to enter.

Those girls were chatting about clothes and jewelry, casually sharing pictures of their shopping hauls or photos of themselves dining at top-notch restaurants abroad.

Genevieve laughed and asked Charlotte, "Would you take a job with a three million annual salary?"

"So high?"

Ever since she found out her salary, even one hundred thousand seemed like a huge amount of money in Charlotte's eyes.

After the excitement, Charlotte looked at Genevieve with a calm and skeptical expression. "With such a high salary, it's either a dangerous job or something shady. Are you asking me to do something shady?"

Genevieve couldn't help but laugh and cry at the same time, saying, "Don't say I'm not that kind of person. If I dared to touch you, your man would never let me off the hook."

"I don't have any man."

Charlotte slouched in her seat, "Speaking of my ex-boyfriends, they were all quite good-looking, but none of them could compare to Mr. Faulkner. Don't give them too much credit."

Genevieve noticed that Charlotte couldn't understand what she was saying, so she shrugged and didn't say anything more.

Upon arriving at the building's parking garage, Genevieve parked the car, and Charlotte joined her in the elevator. She also knew that the dessert shop Genevieve frequented was Ladym.

Charlotte crossed her legs and leaned back lazily on the sofa, exuding elegance. "So what if my family goes bankrupt? After all, my father was once the richest man in Jadeborough, making me equal in status to Genevieve."

"And before, you all used to serve me like servants just to hang out with me, and it's still the same now."

Genevieve is right.

So what if her family went bankrupt? At least she had experienced glory and pride in the past, something these people could never achieve in their entire lives, no matter how hard they struggled.

She could ridicule them, but they had no right to look down on her!

As several people were being scolded by Charlotte, Genevieve returned after finishing her phone call. "Don't be shy, everyone. I've reserved the entire place today. The pastry chef can make any limited-edition cake you'd like to try."

Upon hearing Genevieve say this, those young ladies didn't hold back either.

In no time, those who went to take photos with the unique sculptures returned. Everyone gathered together, enjoying tea and desserts, all the while praising Genevieve in their conversations.

Chapter 1330 Buy What You Like

The group of wealthy young ladies, who were originally sitting and sipping tea, gathered around the jewelry display and clothing racks, admiring the luxurious garments with eager anticipation in their hearts.

“Genevieve, you're so rich!” exclaimed wealthy girl. “You can just buy the latest fashion show pieces whenever you want.”

In general, ready-to-wear fashion shows and designer bags are reserved early on by the wealthy and powerful elite of high society. Only the items they don't fancy become available for purchase by those outside the circle. Even with money, it's not guaranteed that one can buy them.

In October, when the Marsingfill Fashion Week showcased several luxury ready-to-wear garments and bags, Genevieve almost brought them all here.

If Genevieve just wanted to show off, there would be no need for her to go through all the trouble of having everything moved here. She could have just generously reserved the entire Ladym dessert shop and treated them all. Yet, she still chose to do this...

Perhaps these items are gifts for them.

Almost ninety percent of the wealthy ladies in the room thought the same way, but no one spoke up.

After admiring the jewelry for a short while, they gracefully sat back down and chatted with Genevieve. Their tone was flattering and seductive, as if they couldn't wait for Genevieve to let them choose clothes and bags first.
