Chapter 1331 Tasteless

Charlotte took out her phone and finally saw the messages in the group chat.

No wonder Genevieve invited her out for cake; so that was the reason.

She let out a cold laugh and promptly disbanded both the small and large groups, swiftly removing these people from her contacts list.

“From now on, I'll be busy making money and won't have time for you all to please me. Go have fun wherever you like.”

Before those pampered rich girls could react, Charlotte casually pointed at one of them and said, “That Birkin bag you have, wasn't it a gift from me? Give it back now.”

D*mn, a package worth more than two hundred thousand, more than two hundred thousand!

How could she have casually given it away in the first place?

Upon hearing this, the pampered rich girl instinctively hugged her bag. After all, it was the only thing she could use to save face. “Lottie, how could you take back something you've already given away?”

Chapter 1332 How I Used To Waste Money

"Seriously, what do I have to be afraid of?" Charlotte said, checking her PayPal balance without even looking up.

"These people are like parasites, only good for mooching off others. If it weren't for me, do you think they'd know any genuine scions?"

"I must have been blind before, to have actually thought highly of them!"

"Who hasn't been young before?" Charlotte understood her feelings. "If they've helped you grow, then they've served some purpose."

Charlotte showed her phone balance to Genevieve, "I used to have only one hundred thousand in my wallet, but now I have more than two million! I can't believe how much I used to waste money."

One or two thousand may not seem like much, but when accumulated, it becomes a terrifying number.

Genevieve glanced and said, "Hmm, quite a lot."

Charlotte suddenly hugged Genevieve tightly and gave her a big kiss. "Genevieve, everything you did today was so satisfying! Genevieve, knowing you is truly my good fortune!"

Chapter 1333 Picking Up My Husband From Work

Genevieve got up first, taking the few portions of dessert that the waiter had wrapped up, and left.

Charlotte called out from behind, "Isn't it still early, Genevieve? Why are you going back? I'm inviting you for a facial treatment!"

"I'm done for now, going to pick up my husband from work."

Charlotte marveled at the magical power of love, but of course, she didn't want to experience this magic herself.

Life is short, and the pursuit of happiness is the ultimate truth.

Charlotte instructed the sales assistants to pack up the items and send them to her apartment. She also ordered a few desserts to take home for her sister to taste.

After leaving Ladym with a cake in hand, Charlotte casually browsed through WhatsApp and noticed someone had tagged her in a group chat.

The other party forwarded some chat screenshots. They were from the socialites who had dessert with Genevieve before. They were complaining that Charlotte had no taste, as she wanted to take back the things she had given away.

"It seems you've really grown a lot," Jessica said with a smile.

Charlotte hummed at Jessica and after a brief chat, she asked her how things were going with her and Kenneth's work.

The Forlisle Group is huge, and she's just a receptionist. She doesn't get to see Kenneth or Jessica during work hours, and since they both have their own families, she doesn't see them outside of work either.

Jessica said, "I've worked on quite a few projects, and by the end of the year, I should be able to receive an eight-figure bonus."

Benson Corporation is in the real estate business, while Forlisle Group is a leader in the medical field. Jessica, without any relevant connections and suddenly landing a high-level management position, did not find it difficult to move forward.

No matter what project she undertakes, her partners are always surprisingly easy to communicate with, and they even introduce her to numerous relevant connections and resources.

Kenneth's experience was similar; he hardly encountered any setbacks.

Both of them were able to work at Forlisle Group thanks to Timothy's help. Although Timothy didn't mention it, they could understand that he was probably assisting them behind the scenes.

Chapter 1335 Rose Love Letter

This hot spring holiday resort is located in the eastern district of Jadeborough and was acquired by Specter Corporation last year.

The holiday resort has added quite a few new features during its recent renovation, and with substantial investment in advertising, the number of visitors has been consistently high since the beginning of this year. As we entered October, the influx of tourists increased even more, making it nearly impossible to find a room without booking at least a month in advance.

The holiday resort had already reserved the best scenic suites for the boss and his entourage.

A few children entered the holiday resort, as excited as ever. They quickly changed into their swimsuits in the changing room and dashed toward the outdoor children's playground and hot spring.

Armand saw that the hot spring was full of children, his brow furrowing deeper and deeper, as he wanted to go and pull his precious daughter out.

After changing into her swimsuit, Genevieve playfully pulled him over.

Seemingly understanding the man's intentions, she said with a smile, "Mando, can you please not be so tense? They like to play, so just let them have fun."

"It's too dirty," Armand frowned, "and Asel is only one year old. What if she gets infected?"

Genevieve rolled her eyes, "The hot spring water is flowing, and the high temperature naturally kills bacteria. How could there be any infection? Besides, children are not that delicate."

"Am I not delicate and precious?" She pointed at herself, "After all, I have a rare blood type."

Chapter 1336 Strict Husband Control

Genevieve was about to speak, but she suddenly felt that if she said it out loud, she would be doomed. Besides, back then, it was Zander who had confessed his feelings unilaterally, and she hadn't even responded to him.

"It's nothing much," Genevieve said casually, "just some old stories from the past."

Seeing her seemingly unconcerned demeanor, Armand's jealousy subsided quite a bit. The two of them followed Zander to the small courtyard on the left side of the holiday resort, where the hot springs and card room were located.

This holiday resort offers a diverse experience, combining accommodation and entertainment all in one place.

In addition to hotel-style rooms, the holiday resort also features several secluded courtyards, each with a tranquil and elegant atmosphere. These courtyards are designed for family vacationers, offering a full range of amenities. Of course, the prices are relatively higher as well.

Armand and his friends stayed in the best courtyard, where they could have barbecues and throw parties at night without being disturbed.

Inside the card room filled with the scent of sea salt, five or six men and women sat around a round table. Some were playing cards, while others were watching the game. Upon entering, Zander called out, "Guess who I brought with me!"

"At least someone cares about me, unlike you guys who don't even have the chance to be looked after," Genevieve retorted with a grin, "Playing cards is boring, let's bet some money!"

"No way, everyone in the class knows you're an undefeated champion. Playing against you would only mean losing money to you."

Zander was also at the table, and he chuckled, speaking up for Genevieve, "You guys have beaten Genevieve before, so don't act like you can't handle it. Let's just bet money, a thousand bucks a game."

That old classmate with the last name Lin elongated his tone and chuckled mischievously, "Zander, the 'Flower Protector' hasn't changed a bit!"

Genevieve furrowed her brow.

At that moment, Armand returned with a glass of iced Coke in hand. He placed the Coke on the small table and sat down next to Genevieve, his slender arm casually draped over the back of her chair.

Armand spoke in a light tone, "She'll play a round first, and once I've watched for a bit, I'll join you guys."

Armand listened quietly, with no visible change in his expression.

He also praised Zander, "Mr. Foxx is indeed quite good at flirting with girls. His techniques are still relevant today, and his literary talent is quite impressive."

"Hahaha, we thought so too," Andie laughed. "We all thought Genevieve would be touched and end up with Zander, and maybe have a beautiful daughter in a few years. But who would have thought..."

Andie also felt that she had misspoken and slapped her mouth.

Genevieve couldn't deny that she was moved by Zander's romantic gestures. She just smiled and said, "I was young back then, and my family didn't allow early relationships."

"Right, right." Andie nodded, took the card, and saw that he had won this round.

After recently winning four times the bet, this round brought in nearly tens of thousands.

Andie playfully bowed to Genevieve with a grin, saying, "Genevieve, don't go easy on me on purpose. It's no fun if I win too easily."

Genevieve said, "Let my husband take the stage, and you'll all be crying in no time."

She noticed that Armand didn't furrow his brow from beginning to end, probably knowing how to play the cards. She got up, switched places with Armand, and sat in the spectator's seat.

Armand's hand trembled slightly as he picked up the card, but his expression remained unchanged. Meanwhile, Genevieve couldn't help but stifle her laughter.

She almost forgot that her husband had once pretended to be "Bruce" for a while, and that spy movie was filmed with him and Jerry together.

Not only Andie, but she also felt that the chemistry between the two characters in the movie was very strong.

Andie looked at Zander and said, "Hey Zander, since you're the general manager of Ingenuity Entertainment now, why don't you sign some cool and manly male artists like Jerry to give the public a visual treat?"

Upon hearing this, Genevieve was quite astonished, "Zander is the general manager of Ingenuity Entertainment?"

"Oh, you didn't know?" Andie told Genevieve, "His uncle is a director at Ingenuity Entertainment. He asked him to help out at the company, so he's in charge of managing the artists."

Genevieve truly didn't know, or it could be that the executives at Ingenuity Entertainment made subtle changes without letting the public know.

Lately, Genevieve has been worried about how to get Ingenuity Entertainment to terminate their contracts with Yvonne and Sienna, and to minimize the termination fees. However, she hasn't been able to come up with a good solution.

Surprisingly, my old classmate Zander is the General Manager of Ingenuity Entertainment.

Genevieve glanced at the apple on the plate, relieved to see that the skin was still intact. After her thumb was covered with a band-aid, she picked up the apple and continued peeling.

Armand didn't stop them, allowing the departing waiter to take the bloodstained towel with him.

Over there, Armand effortlessly defeated Zander several times at the card table, while on this side, Genevieve diligently peeled an apple, finally managing to remove the entire skin.

However, using too much force left little fruit pulp remaining.

An old classmate joked, "Genevieve, aren't you quite skilled at playing the violin? How come the same pair of hands make the apple peel all bumpy and uneven?"

Genevieve laughed and retorted, "Usually, my husband prepares all the fruits for me. I lead a pampered life, and besides, my hands are best used for playing the violin to bring out its greatest value."

"Ah, how many times have you shown me public displays of affection now?"

By five in the afternoon, the seats at the card table had changed twice, except for Armand's. Strangely enough, no one had managed to beat Armand.

He had earned them hundreds of thousands.

Andie sighed in admiration, "Indeed, outstanding people attract the same caliber. Just look at Mr. Faulkner, a poker novice, who has utterly defeated us experienced players. He's truly worthy of being Genevieve's man."

Genevieve raised her eyebrows, "Could my
