Chapter 1381 Her Tender Trap

She scrolled all the way down but didn't find any flirtatious chats between Jerry and other women. Moreover, her own WhatsApp account was the only one pinned at the top.

Charlotte knew that this WhatsApp account was the only one Jerry had, and his work account was managed by his assistant.

She instantly understood that there was no woman coming at all. It was just Jerry trying to provoke her on purpose, and this realization instantly put her mind at ease.

"Your hand is injured. Let me get the first aid kit."

The recording of the conversation was already out in the open, so Charlotte wouldn't be foolish enough to argue with him. Instead, she quickly changed the subject and got up from the couch, taking a first aid kit from the cabinet under the LCD television.

Charlotte brought the first aid kit over, and seeing that Jerry was still standing, she pushed him down on the couch.

She pulled up Jerry's left hand, only to discover a long gash on the back of his hand caused by a knife. The skin and flesh were turned outward, making for a shocking sight.

Charlotte felt extremely distressed. "Why didn't you go to the hospital? Doesn't it hurt?"

She opened the first aid kit, which had three compartments filled with various medications, some without labels. After searching for a long time, she couldn't find a bottle labeled iodine solution, so she decided to ask Jerry for help.

Just like now, he knew that Charlotte didn't feel she had done anything wrong at all. She instinctively used her usual tactics to coax him, and with just a few words, his heart softened.

Charlotte lowered her head and gently kissed Jerry's thin lips, whispering softly, "Jerry, I miss you so much. Please don't ignore me."

Her lips were soft and alluring, like a deadly poison that drew people in.

Jerry was at a complete loss. He grabbed the woman's slender waist and pulled her onto his lap, making it easier to kiss her. Charlotte snuggled into his embrace, and the loose belt on her sleeping robe was rubbed open.

She straddled the man, her delicate body faintly visible beneath her nightgown. As she moved, her shoulder slipped out from the garment.

The skin was delicate, even fairer than the light.

Jerry lifted his hand to brush away the wet hair on her cheek. Charlotte smiled gently, and her rose-like, vibrant lips landed on his tense neck, playfully kissing and nibbling.

The man was completely lost in passion, unable to extricate himself. However, Charlotte suddenly remembered something and got off him without any warning.

Chapter 1383 Do I Have To Remember This Too?

She recalled that when she was in her teens, Jiminy always had to go on business trips to Xedells. At that time, Xedells was quite prosperous, and she wanted to go and have some fun too. So, Jiminy took her and Jessica along as well.

While strolling down the street, Charlotte had witnessed several people rushing out of a casino from a distance. At that time, a man had brutally chopped off the left hand of another man who was lying on the ground with a machete.

Charlotte had always lived in a safe environment, so she had no idea that someone could be so brazen as to attack someone in broad daylight. She was simply terrified.

After that, the scene would forever remain etched in Charlotte's mind. Coupled with frequently witnessing gang members fighting with the police, harassing women who were having late-night snacks with no regard for consequences, and using drugs to lead families toward destruction, her disgust only grew stronger.

Even though Charlotte loved to have fun, she remained upright and behaved properly.

Aside from smoking and drinking, she steered clear of everything else, especially keeping her distance from scions who were also drug addicts.

Charlotte noticed that Jerry remained silent, as if he understood something. She tried to comfort him, "Jerry, he's not even in the same league as you. You're way more handsome than him. I'm just joking around."

Jerry said, "Deep down, both of us are the same kind of person."

His voice was low, and Charlotte was crouching quite far from him, so she couldn't hear him clearly. "Jerry, what did you just say?"

"Nothing," he replied.

Despite her enthusiasm, Jerry remained indifferent and glanced over lazily. "Didn't you leave already?"

"I didn't leave. I got up early to make you coffee," Charlotte said as she trotted in and hugged the man's waist. "I also ordered your favorite breakfast. Aren't I amazing?"

"Yes, you are."

Charlotte was very dissatisfied with his perfunctory response. "Jerry, have you fallen in love with another woman? You're treating me so coldly. Tell me, where else can you find a girlfriend who wakes up early just to make you coffee?"

"Didn't I say you were amazing? When was I ever cold to you?" Jerry simply turned his head to speak to her. "Or do you think I didn't 'perform' well enough last night, and you weren't satisfied?"

As her legs ached and were still sore, Charlotte didn't want him to punish her in bed again.

She pouted and argued, "You used to praise me and kiss me, but now you don't even want to kiss me. If that's not being cold to me, then what is it?"

Jerry bent down and moved closer to her. "Would you want me to kiss you with the shaving foam?"

Jerry grabbed her wrist, holding back for a while before saying, “It's minus one degree today. Change out of that short skirt.”

“You know very well I don't like long pants,” Charlotte said as she leaned in to give the man a kiss.

“Don't worry. I'll wear a coat outside, so I won't be cold. Bye!”

Her skirt brushed against his wrist as she turned and walked away.

Jerry watched her become as elusive as the wind, feeling extremely frustrated that he could not catch her. Annoyed, he picked up his phone and made a call.

“Follow her.”

As Charlotte stepped out, she casually grabbed the gray scarf hanging on the coat rack. It carried Jerry's scent, faint but pleasant.

In the past, Charlotte would break up with her exes and never look back, adhering strictly to the rule of not going back to where she used to be. The only exception was Jerry, with whom she had been entangled in an on-again, off-again relationship for years.

Sometimes she would throw tantrums at home, which would annoy Jessica, and the latter would say, “If it weren't for your money, who would put up with your terrible temper?”

Now that Charlotte was bankrupt, Jerry was still spoiling her.

Zander's gaze lingered on her tightly buttoned coat, his intentions clear without words. Charlotte got what she wanted without fuss, and she still owed Zander from their last transaction.

Charlotte unbuttoned her coat, took it off, and placed it on the nearby couch.

She wore a black and white maid outfit on the inside, with the thin fabric clinging to her body. However, the private room had heating, so she did not feel cold.

The top was cut into a heart shape at the chest, revealing her beautiful collarbone and a glimpse of delicate skin.

Despite wearing such embarrassing clothes, Charlotte could not hide the air of pride and arrogance. Her eyebrows were raised in defiance, and this contradictory combination only made people want to tease her even more.

Charlotte only gave Zander half an hour, not even a second more. If Zander broke any of her rules, she would leave immediately.

Faced with her harsh demands, Zander still agreed.

Seeing the beautiful woman tied up, blindfolded, and as vulnerable as a stock ready to be slaughtered, Zander's innate desire for conquest surged forth.

He saw the phone light up on the table, picked it up, and held it to his ear, but the other person did not speak even though the call connected.

Surprisingly, Joash added her back on WeChat.

Charlotte immediately asked what was going on. Tell him to add me back quickly, or I'll get angry!

Joash replied, I'll talk to Jerry in a bit.

Stephanie waited until the afternoon. Every time she sent a message to Jerry and saw the red exclamation mark before the message, she was extremely annoyed.

Joash said Jerry was busy and did not have time to check his phone. He also did not know Jerry's phone password.

Charlotte planned to confront Jerry in the evening. She would not calm down unless he appeased her properly. However, when she drove to Jerry's residential area, the security guard told her that he had not returned yet.

She checked Jerry's schedule and found out he had two commercials to shoot in Baykeep, and he would be staying there for a while.

She could not believe Jerry did not even have the time to listen to Joash speak. Jerry was clearly trying to give her a warning.

Chapter 1388 Blocking Her Is Fine

Previously, Genevieve had been busy with other matters. When she found out that Yvonne had just finished her announcement and happened to be in Jadeborough, Genevieve booked a table at Golden Restaurant for the evening.

It was a welcome party for the newly arrived Yvonne and Scarlett.

Except for James, who was away on a business trip and could not attend, everyone else, including Scarlett's agent and Charlotte, came together for a meal, creating a lively and bustling atmosphere.

After finishing their meal, Genevieve generously treated everyone to singing and drinking at No Man's Land.

Sienna joked, "Doesn't Specter Corporation own no Man's Land? Do you even have to pay when visiting your own place, Ms. Rachford?"

Genevieve waved her hand. "Specter Corporation may own this bar, but it operates independently. I still have to pay. Otherwise, what if the bar's system puts me on the blocklist?"

In a company setting, everyone was more relaxed, enjoying food and drinks as they please.

Genevieve also offered a cash prize to motivate everyone, stating the person with the best singing would take the money, while those who did not sing well would be penalized with three glasses of wine.

After three rounds of drinks, Scarlett relaxed on the couch with her legs crossed. Casually, she asked, "Ms. Rachford, I heard the company organizes birthday parties for the artists. Isn't Jerry's birthday on the 29th of this month? Will we be celebrating together for him?"

Charlotte picked up the glass of iced whiskey and took a sip. She set the glass down, and someone approached her instantly.

It was Yvonne.

Along with being a gifted and beautiful actress, Yvonne treated everyone with respect throughout her years in the entertainment industry. "Lottie, I've heard Scarlett and Jerry have been transferred under your supervision. Is that true?"

“That's right.”

Although she had a bet with Camilla, Jerry was still the artist assigned to her by Genevieve publicly.

Yvonne clinked glasses with her and smiled. “I know you're trying to get the lead role in Besieged for Jerry. Since you know the movie director, could you do me a favor and talk to them on my behalf? I just want a small role with a scene with Jerry, and I don't need any payment.”

Upon hearing this, Charlotte turned to look at Yvonne, taking in her gorgeous face. As expected from a female celebrity, her body proportion far surpasses those of influencers.

Jibson's maternal grandfather was from Jadeborough, but he grew up in Livingsfill and had hardly ever visited Chanaea.

"I came back with my mother. There was a charity dinner on the nineteenth, and I'll return to Livingsfill after attending it." Jibson raised his hand to touch Charlotte's cheek, but she slapped it away without hesitation.

Jibson was immediately slightly displeased. Leaning down, he spoke closely to Charlotte, "Lottie, you are the one who took my virginity. Don't you have any lingering feelings for me?"

"We've already broken up. What's there for me to miss?" Charlotte said nonchalantly.

"Lottie, you're so mean."

Jibson stared deeply into Charlotte's eyes. "Do you enjoy flirting with men, playing with them for a while, and then dumping them?"

Charlotte smiled and gently patted his cheek. "I pursued you. You agreed to it, and you enjoyed the happiness I brought you. We both invested in this relationship. If I'm mean, do you think that makes you innocent?"

Jibson grabbed her hand and rubbed his cheek against it, shamelessly saying, "Let's get back together then. I know your family went bankrupt."
