Chapter 1451 Sneaking An Attack

The woman was quite frightened by Jerry's gloomy expression. Without waiting for him to ask, she confessed everything. "It was Brody from Trinity Entertainment who made me do this."

Under the temptation of Brody's one hundred thousand, the woman agreed to lure Charlotte out. Unexpectedly, Charlotte was extremely vigilant and almost escaped. After they managed to tie up Charlotte, the woman got out of the car halfway through the journey.

Later, Charlotte was taken to Brody's place by the driver. What happened after that, the woman didn't know.

Jerry knew that Brody was not a good person. If Brody has the chance to catch Charlotte, he certainly won't let her go. However, I can't figure out what's the deal with the bloodstains in the parking lot.

Seeing that his subordinates were unable to find Charlotte after a long time, Jerry secretly cursed them for being useless and called Armand for help.

Only Armand had the authority to view all the surveillance footage in the city.

Jerry didn't utter a word. His gaze was gloomy.

When Armand mentioned that someone was keeping an eye on Brody, Jerry began to suspect if it was that person. However, he had planted quite a lot of his men in the Pann family.

If Sebastian sent someone to Jadeborough, Jerry would definitely know about it.

During this period, Jesse had also been closely following Sebastian. Now, he learned from Jesse that Sebastian never left Xedells.

If it's not him, who else has the ability to make Charlotte disappear without a trace?

Jerry couldn't find Charlotte, nor could he find Director Lin. He could only hope that Director Lin had taken her somewhere. If it was Sebastian...

Jesse felt a sudden shift in the atmosphere within the car, so intense that even he, who was leading a dangerous life, felt a chill run down his spine.

"What do you have at your house? Aren't it just two dogs and three cats?" Jerry said. "Sasha's mom is on a business trip abroad. I'm not at ease with the child being home alone."

Even though Mary used to be a housekeeper who served Abigail, she was getting older. Moreover, Sasha was too lively and active.

Jesse scratched his brows and asked, "Is her father dead?"

"Yeah, more or less." Jerry briefly explained the situation of Sasha's parents to him. "Sasha is very well-behaved. You're raising a cat, right? Just take care of her the same way you do with your cat."

Children—with their slender arms and legs—were like fragile items, and Jesse certainly didn't want to get into any trouble.

Just as Jesse was about to speak, Jerry transferred the money to him. Upon opening the text message and seeing the massive amount being transferred to him, Jesse swallowed his words of refusal.

Who could resist money?

Jerry had other matters to attend to. Hence, he left after chatting with Jesse. Before leaving, Jerry said, "Mary won't be staying here tonight, you can sleep in the living room at night."

"Isn't there a guest room?" Jesse asked.

"This is where my wife lives. She has mysophobia, so you should consider yourself lucky I'm even letting you sleep in the living room."

The next day, at a certain orphanage in Jadeborough, Gracie was busy tying a little girl's hair when a teacher entered the classroom to inform her that the volunteers had arrived. Subsequently, Gracie, accompanied by a few teachers, went outside to welcome the volunteers.

Upon reaching the entrance, Gracie noticed several cars parked by the roadside. Shortly after, a few people disembarked from the vehicles.

There were photographers carrying cameras and reporters wearing press badges.

The woman speaking to the field reporter was dressed in a simple black cropped down jacket. Despite her simple attire, she was strikingly beautiful, and there was a gentle smile in her eyes.

Gracie recognized her at a glance but remained silent.

The teacher—who came out to greet the volunteers with Gracie—was the first to greet Genevieve and the others. “Ms. Brown, this is Ms. Genevieve, the owner of Genevieve Orsi Productions.”

“Hello, Ms. Rachford.” Gracie shook hands with Genevieve, then shook hands with Scarlett.

Charlotte collaborated with Jadeborough's Department of Public Information to arrange for Scarlett to volunteer at the orphanage. The aim was to strengthen Scarlett's image and attract more fans to her. However, Genevieve did not visit the orphanage to put on a show.

Genevieve had children of her own and was a mother, so she felt deep sympathy for these children who were abandoned in the orphanage due to their disabilities from a young age.

While chopping carrots, Genevieve accidentally cut her left finger with the chopper. A drop of blood immediately welled up. Upon seeing this, Scarlette handed her a handkerchief.

Genevieve swiftly wrapped the handkerchief around her wound.

The handkerchief Scarlette gave was light yellow, but it didn't take long for the blood from the wound to soak it red.

Once Gracie hurriedly brought iodine solution and gauze, Genevieve unwrapped the handkerchief. Upon seeing that the wound wasn't bleeding, she breathed a sigh of relief and asked Gracie to help dress her wound with gauze.

Scarlette asked, "The handkerchief is dirty. Would you like me to throw it away for you?"

"No, you're cooking. It'll be bad if your hands are contaminated with bacteria," Genevieve declined, putting the handkerchief into her down jacket pocket.

"All right." Scarlette turned around and continued what she was doing.

Scarlett said, "Genevieve accompanied me to a brand event a few days ago. I saw her effortlessly take down a man who was almost two meters tall."

"Her brother, Cooper, is dating Sally," said Zander.

Scarlett had only recently returned to the country yet had already heard about Sally.

Sally's father was the military commanding officer of Jadeborough. She was a top female special forces soldier who graduated from the military academy, occasionally escorting important officials abroad for negotiations.

No wonder Genevieve was so skilled at fighting. It was all due to Sally's teachings.

Scarlett furrowed her brows and said, "Genevieve is cautious and skilled at fighting. Trying to get a sample of her blood is like attempting the impossible."

Before Scarlett found Armand, it wasn't by chance that Genevieve ran into Zander at the hot spring in the holiday resort. It was a deliberate move by Zander. However, at that time, he didn't succeed.

Later, Scarlett faked an encounter with Genevieve at the pottery shop. She secretly tried to injure Genevieve, but to her surprise, Genevieve reacted so quickly that she didn't get hurt at all.

After seeing the situation, Scarlett also got into the minivan.

Armand leaned over to help Genevieve fasten her seatbelt, inadvertently glancing at the entrance of the orphanage. "When you said you were working overtime, did you mean you were accompanying Scarlett to the orphanage?"

"Yes," said Genevieve, "Charlotte borrowed some people from Sean for an interview at the orphanage. They're writing a news piece about Scarlett's volunteer work. Since she's not around, I have to accompany Scarlett."

Genevieve noticed Armand's gaze shifting outside the car window. "Do you miss Scarlett since you didn't see her? Her minivan hasn't left yet," she said, acting as though she was going to push the door open.

Armand gently pulled her hand back into his, saying helplessly, "I only saw a child standing at the entrance of the orphanage, waving at you. I'm not trying to look at Scarlett."

After Genevieve heard that, she looked out the car window and saw Jill standing next to Gracie, continuously waving at her.

Thus, Genevieve also waved goodbye to her.

Chapter 1458 Where Are You Hiding Her

"I've spoken to Ms. Terry about this child," said the teacher, glancing at the child in Gracie's arms.
This new teacher had worked at the orphanage for less than half a month. Coming from a small town, she was unfamiliar with races, assuming everyone had black eyes and hair.
Upon seeing a baby with purple eyes in the nursery, the teacher thought something was wrong with the child's eyes. During mealtime, she discussed this with her colleagues.

After hearing this, the usually gentle Gracie turned cold.

She reprimanded the new teacher, "When you signed the contract, I told you that your only responsibility is to take care of the children in the nursery. You shouldn't discuss the children's matters with other teachers. If there are any issues, come to me. Some people might bribe teachers to select good-looking kids for them."

Indeed, some teachers worked at the orphanage without a salary, their purpose being to find healthy and beautiful babies a few months old for certain bosses.

However, Gracie did this only to prevent the baby in her arms from being discovered by others.

He asked coldly, "Where have you hidden her?"

"You're out of line!" Sebastian was completely unfazed by the threat of the gun. He slapped the table hard, stood up, and confronted Jerry.

The barrel of the gun was now pointed directly at Sebastian's forehead.

With a face full of anger, Sebastian glared at Jerry, his voice icy. "Today is New Year's Eve, and you bring people here to cause trouble, even pointing a gun at your own father. Are you trying to rebel?"

"Don't be upset, Jerry is still immature," Alicia intervened, fearing that Jerry might accidentally misfire the gun.

Jeremiah went to Nalanica for a trip in January. On New Year's Eve, Timothy took Johanna and Asel to Swallow Garden for an annual feast.

That was also the first annual feast that Armand and his wife had with their two children.

Four days before New Year, Armand gave all the servants in Swallow Garden a holiday. During this time, Armand and Cooper took turns preparing the meals at home.

That was also the case for that night's annual feast.

After Timothy arrived, Amanda excitedly rushed over, but at Asel. She hugged Asel, kissed her chubby little face several times, and then took her to the living room to play.

Timothy led Johanna to the living room. Noticing Genevieve there, he asked, "Where are Armand and the others?"

"They're in the kitchen. Sally went home to have her annual feast with General Loake." Genevieve pointed toward the kitchen. When Johanna approached, Genevieve led her to sit next to her.

No matter how much Sally praised Cooper in front of Gerald, he simply didn't like Cooper and refused to let him go to his house.
