Chapter 591

My Flirtacious Husband

She contacted Paula and got the people in the entertainment industry to deliberately let Sylvie get a film with a good production team and a huge investment. After Sylvie signed the contract, Genevieve got someone close to Cooper to invest in the film by using Cooper's money, who then became the highest investor in the film.

After that, Genevieve sneakily arranged for two particular female actresses to take part in the film. They were the ones Sylvie had stolen projects from.

Although those two female actresses weren't as established as Sylvie, they were still formidable individuals in the entertainment industry.

When Sylvie had gotten her hands on the script, she realized those two other female actresses were in it. Besides, only then did she know what her character had to do in the film. Immediately, she tried to quit the film. However, she had no choice but to proceed because the production company showed her the enormous amount of compensation she had to pay if she were to quit.

Not long after that, they started to shoot for the film.

Genevieve was told by someone on the production team that slapping scenes were shot on the first day of filming.

Those two female actresses took the opportunity to take revenge by making mistakes in those scenes so that they could constantly slap Sylvie across the face. As if that wasn't bad enough, Sylvie had also fallen and broken her leg when she was doing stunts on a wire. As a result, the shooting was postponed.

After getting exposed, Vanessa didn't bother to put up a front anymore. "Yes. However, I'm doing this for Timothy. After being married to Jeremiah for so many years, I know his son better than he does. Jeremiah looks down upon Jojo. He wants his daughter-in-law to be someone like Charlotte. Not only is she pretty, but she'll also help Timothy with his business."

Prior to that, Vanessa and Jeremiah attended an event and bumped into Jiminy.

Jiminy liked Timothy a lot, and he kept pouring praises on Timothy.

In fact, Jiminy had also told them how he overheard Charlotte and Timothy talking on the phone, and they were fond of each other. According to him, Charlotte got shy and ran to her room because she was afraid that Jiminy could hear their conversation.

After that, Charlotte held a party on a cruise ship and had a great time with her friends.

Hence, Jiminy assumed they were already dating each other.

Vanessa noticed how much Jeremiah enjoyed talking to Jiminy, and she knew Jeremiah would be happy to have Charlotte as his daughter-in-law. At the same time, she was afraid that Jeremiah would find out that Johanna was her daughter.

She thought that if Jeremiah knew Timothy was all over Johanna, he would hate her even more.

Vanessa then answered anxiously, "That's because your dad doesn't know Jojo is my daughter. If he finds she's my daughter and her father was a gambler, how could he not be angry?"

"How would he know if you keep your mouth shut?" Timothy retorted.

He would never let Vanessa off the hook if it weren't for her relationship with Johanna.

He then added expressionlessly, "Ever since you married my dad, I've been treating you with respect. However, I'm disgusted by what you've done to Jojo! If you could abandon your daughter, how could you ever treat someone else's child sincerely?"

In response, Vanessa quickly explained, "No. It wasn't like that. Back then, I had no choice but to send Jojo abroad—"

Timothy wasn't in the mood to listen to her, so he warned, "If you wish to stay with my dad and keep your fame and fortune, keep your mouth shut! As you said, I'm his son. Do you think he's going to have a fallout with me because of an outsider?"

Genevieve was hurting so much that her breathing was starting to get uneven. She was also starting to feel giddy and had almost lost her balance but steadied herself by leaning against a gurney next to her.

Timothy quickly helped her to the couch to sit down. "Are you feeling all right?" he asked.

"Yes, I'm fine." After her train of thought was disrupted, Genevieve's heart seemed to hurt less as she stopped thinking about the man. Then, she took out a bottle of pills from her bag.

"Can I take a look?" Timothy noticed the woman's pale expression and wanted to see what pills she was taking.

After Genevieve passed the bottle to him, the man saw the description on the bottle and realized that it was medicine to relieve chest pain. It was a commonly seen medicine in pharmacies.

"Are you having chest pains?"

"Mm," Genevieve answered before elaborating, "I've had it for a long time. It only acts up occasionally, though."

Timothy was aware that the doctors had examined Genevieve back in Dartan, but they were unable to find anything wrong with her heart. The pills were also given to her by the doctors in Dartan.

However, Timothy was still worried. As such, he contacted Jermaine to ask him to do a body checkup for Genevieve.

After Genevieve and Jane reached the manor, both women were stunned by what they saw, which was like a scene straight out of a fairy tale.

"This is gorgeous! Even I feel like having a wedding after seeing this," Genevieve joked.

When she saw the look of envy on Jane's face, she tugged at the woman's arm and said, "You don't have to be envious. When Coop and you get married, I'll make sure to plan a wedding for you that's prettier than this!"

Jane shook her head and pressed her lips together before replying, "There's no need for that. Nothing else matters as long as I get to be with him."

Jane loved Cooper.

However, she was worried that the man would be made fun of if others knew about their relationship.

As such, just being able to stay by his side was enough for Jane.

When the wedding crew saw Genevieve, they ushered her to the rehearsal. Meanwhile, Jane headed into the house after waving to Genevieve.

The rehearsal lasted half an hour, and it was also about the time the wedding started. Most of the wedding guests had already arrived at the venue.

At that moment, Cooper came up to see Genevieve.

After knocking on the break room's door, he opened it to see Bruce holding Genevieve's snow-white feet. At the sight of their intimate position, a gloomy expression descended on his face.

"Bruce Gable!" Cooper stormed in and ruthlessly threw his drink at Bruce, his eyes filled with murderous intent. "Do you have a death wish?"

By the time Genevieve realized what was going on, she put on her shoes and handed Bruce a tissue to wipe his face. "Coop, Bruce was just bringing me my flats as I broke the heel on my shoes."

"It's obvious to me that his intentions extend beyond that!" Cooper sneered while being filled with the urge to smash his cup on Bruce's head.

Thinking back to the kiss Bruce had planted on her legs, Genevieve was beset by a sudden sense of guilt.

Cooper's razor-sharp gaze looked as if it could pierce a few holes through Bruce. "As an actor, how dare you covet your own boss? Don't say I didn't warn you. If you dare lay a finger on Genev, I will break your legs myself!"

When she saw how Cooper's disparagement of Bruce was escalating, Genevieve grabbed him and ushered him out quickly. "He's just here to bring me my shoes, so don't let your imagination run wild. I still have my presence of mind with me. There's no way I would be interested in him. Come on, let's go."

When she turned around and snuck a glance, she noticed that Bruce, too, was looking at her with a darkened gaze.

After Genevieve returned to Jadeborough from the wedding, she and Bruce didn't keep in touch with each other.

Perhaps he has kept his word not to bother me.

Nonetheless, Bruce would still have someone bring lunch to her at the office, and it would be a different cuisine every time. Even though Genevieve wanted to get him to stop, she just couldn't resist the temptation of the food.

A few days later, on Twitter, Genevieve saw the director, who was Paula's friend, publish a poster of his new movie.

All this while, Bruce had a squeaky clean reputation on the silver screen and mostly acted in romantic art movies. Even in his new role, where he played a mature introvert, he did so with relative ease.

Genevieve, who wasn't one to geek over movie stars, couldn't help but feel impressed by the poster.

In the midst of admiring it, she received a call from Charlotte. "Genevieve, can you do me a favor?"

"What is it?" Genevieve asked with a smile.

"I feel like asking Bruce out, but he seems really busy. Also, his WhatsApp is being managed by his assistant. As there's this art exhibition today, I was hoping to get him to go with me. Therefore, can you please ask him on my behalf?" Charlotte pleaded.

Genevieve couldn't help but admit the power of Bruce's charm, given how easily he managed to mesmerize Charlotte. "It's not my habit to get involved in my actor's affairs. Besides, I don't have his contact number."

By the time she stepped out, the sky was already dark, while heavy traffic filled the streets. When she caught a glimpse of rainbow-like colors from afar, she realized that they were from a Ferris wheel after taking a closer look.

It wasn't until she arrived in her car that she could see that it was a small-scale amusement park.

Rumor had it that a local tycoon had proposed to his wife on a Ferris wheel, leading him to build the amusement park so that he could share the beauty of a Ferris wheel with the city's residents.

Given that he could make a profit from the amusement park and have fun with his wife there every day, it was a fantastic way to kill two birds with one stone.

Due to the amusement park's strategic location—surrounded by malls and hotels—it would be packed with visitors every night and had become one of the city's landmarks.

Just when Genevieve was queueing to buy a ticket, she heard a deep voice call out from behind her.

"Ms. Rachford."

Turning around by reflex, she was greeted by the sight of a towering man wearing a cap and face mask. With his head lowered, his eyes were staring intently at her.

Having recognized him instantly, Genevieve was stunned. "Why are you here?"

By the time Genevieve regained her senses, she was driving both of them back to Bruce's place.

Ever since he wrapped up his last movie, Bruce stayed at home to rest and would often cook, which was the reason why his fridge was filled with ingredients.

After rinsing some grapes, he placed them on a plate for Genevieve. “Have a seat in the living room. I'll call you when I'm done.”

Since she wouldn't be of any help, she left the kitchen with the plate of fruits.

For some inexplicable reason, Bruce's couch seemed to have a mysterious power over her even though it wasn't expensive. The moment she sat on it, she felt a sense of release and the urge to fall asleep.

Cognizant that it would be extremely embarrassing if she did, Genevieve quickly sat up straight.

In the meantime, she spotted two documents on the coffee table. With some words printed on top and Bruce's name at the bottom, they looked as if they were movie scripts.

“Is this the script for the movie directed by Brian?” Genevieve asked Bruce, who was busy cooking. “Can I take a look?”

“Go ahead.”

Even though Genevieve had no real interest in movie scripts, she would go through them when she was bored, especially if they were from successful movies or dramas. In fact, she had read many that were related to gay romance.

After Genevieve had her fill, she couldn't help but pick up the script on the coffee table and go through it again. "When you receive the rest of the script, can you make a softcopy of it and send it to me?"

After a momentary pause, she added, "Don't worry. I'll read it myself and won't tell anyone else about it."

Bruce took a seat beside her. "Do you like this story very much?"

Grunting in acknowledgment, Genevieve waved the script in his face. "I'm certain that when this is made into a movie, it will be a hit, and you'll definitely win an international award for it! In fact, I'll give Mrs. Hossler a call tomorrow and tell her to invest thirty million more!"

Bruce was stumped for words when he thought about how far he had fallen from being a tycoon that was worth hundreds of billions. It was one thing to masquerade as an actor, but now, he also had to act in a homosexual film that Genevieve predicted would win him a prestigious award.

He didn't need the money nor was interested in any awards. All he wanted was to stay by her side in his current identity.

In the midst of Bruce taking a deep breath, Genevieve suggested enthusiastically, "Since we have nothing better to do, why don't you act out a part to show me?"

"Which part would you like to see?" Bruce was dying to spend more time with her.

Genevieve handed him the opened script and tapped her finger on the top. "This part where they are drinking red wine and dancing. It struck a chord with me when I read it."

The part she highlighted was short, and Bruce finished reading it in no time.

Subsequently, he picked out a bottle of red wine from the wine cabinet and poured two glasses after decanting it. Bringing them over, he handed one to Genevieve. "I won't be able to act the scene out alone, so please indulge me, Ms. Rachford."
