

Forgiveness 23

Ex husband's Plea for Forgiveness

Chapter 23 Janet

As the secretary, he could only follow the CEO's orders. Shaking his head, the secretary told himself not to think too much into what had transpired.

But he had to contact the informant once again, because he had asked him to get away.

After dinner, Kent went back after staying in Melinda's place for a while. Melinda was recuperating well and had made improvements in her health. She went to bed after writing a chapter.

As for Kent, who had just gotten back home, his day wasn't ending as well as he thought it would. When he got home, the door was wide open. Only a few people had the key to his house. He was sure that his parents must have come since they were the only people brave enough to come to his house unannounced.

As expected, Kent came into the house and saw his parents sitting on the sofa. Each of them had a cup of tea, with nuts piled on a small plate for themselves. They were engrossed on a program they were watching on TV.

"Dad, Mom, why are you here?"

Kent changed his shoes and walked towards them. He checked his phone, but there was no call. It seemed that his parents hadn't called him at all.

"Since you never come home to visit us, we may as well take the mountain to Mohamed and decided to visit you instead. Why are you always so busy with your work that you have no time to visit even your family? Have you had dinner yet?" Kent's mother, Janet, asked with dissatisfaction.

Her son had always been busy as soon as he grew up, and didn't go home often. He had even taken the habit of working late into the night; how could he take care of himself with such a crazy schedule? He needed a girlfriend to keep him company and take care of his needs.

"I have already eaten," said Kent, not wanting to agitate his mother further.

He walked to the sofa and sat across from his parents. He had already gotten used to his mother's nagging and her impromptu appearances at his apartment. He could almost guess exactly what she was thinking.

"Son, are you just coming back from work at this time?" Janet asked tentatively.

Kent's father seemed to be concentrating on the TV, because that was where his eyes were looking, although all his mind was focused on the conversation between his son and wife.

"Yes."

"Son, it's time for you to get a girlfriend. You can't only work all day long. How about dating someone after work?" asked Janet

She had come to visit her son this time with a very specific agenda. She wanted to discuss the direction in which Kent's life was taking. Janet was worried that her son's age mates back in their hometown all had children who were big enough to run around.

"Mom, it's still too early for me to get married. I'm not in a hurry."

He knew that all his mother cared about was marriage. In the past few years, he had always been in love with Melinda, so he had never dated any other girl. His mother on the other hand had been so worried that she had even begun to question his sexual orientation. She had once accosted him and repeatedly made him promise that he was straight before she could let him go.

But shortly after, she had begun to urge him to get married every chance she got.

"You're in your late 20s. You're old enough. Do you remember your primary school classmates?" Janet began her usual train of rants insinuating that someone's child was already going to school and Kent should bring his girlfriend home to introduce the new girl to her and his father and get married soon.

"Your father and I are still young. If you have a child now, we can help to look after him; however, when we get old in the future, you can only look after him by yourselves. You don't know anything, and you can't take good care of a child..." Janet reiterated her exhortation once again.

this point he could recite word for word. He was amazed at his mother's tenacity, and he didn't understand how his mother never got tired eyes, he was not young any more.

am searching and as soon as I have a to her, because he was actively pursuing Melinda who had finally left the Gu family. He was sure that he had a

I am an old woman now? My friend has already informed me that she has spotted you several times going to the hospital to take care of a girl. Why do you spend so much time taking care examination as she had not feeling well recently. She happened to see Kent with Melinda several times and told Janet was tongue tied; he didn't know that his mother had a battalion of spies watching over his love life. He didn't the girl doesn't like you and it is unrequited love?" Janet said, dramatically in her eyes. Kent was her joy and there were two issues. One was that he was this topic for now, please change the subject. We can polite to him, so he didn't want to frighten her away. After all, he had been waiting for so many years. He wouldn't be in a that's enough. Our son has grown up, and he knows what to to help him out. Kent was relieved and immediately took the opportunity to hide in the study away from his mother's prying eyes. He gave the excuse that he had something to deal after his son got out of the room. Janet kept talking to Charles the whole night, lamenting changed her clothes, disguised brought breakfast for her. Janet followed him with a big smile on her face. She couldn't help taking out was quiet and polite at first sight, which made elderly people really attracted to her the girl too. She thought her son's requirement was really high, but fortunately this girl seemed to

They even put a bunch of flowers on her desk and helped her with the work that had accumulated the whole time she

she had not interacted with a lot of people and always felt accompany her. They were joking and making fun of each other and asking Kent who had invited him for lunch. Of course, it was Kent who ended up paying for together anytime they had a break, she was certain that they were in a relationship. When she returned home, she showed photos of Melinda to Charles Jiang. Charles Jiang praised Melinda that there must be something happening for our son to leave so early and come back good at photography, marveling at the wonderful pictures she had taken. On second thought, she realized that maybe it was because the girl from work in the evening, but he couldn't have dinner with her because his parents

I'm so sorry I have been taking so much of your his parents were visiting, she would have chosen to take the subway or a

It's not safe for a girl the seat belt and was ready to get off the car. Just then, Kent's cell phone rang, and the screen showed that it was his

Kent had a bad

I just got off duty. I'll be home soon," Kent said directly as stopped moving around and sat there quietly waiting for soon? Had you gone to pick up your she heard that Kent was ready to go

I have told you before, I don't have a