Chapter 101 How About Us Sharing a Bed

She helped Brittany lie down, tucked her in, and wiped her sweat.

Wyatt stood at the door. Noticing Brittany slept so peacefully, he said gratefully, "Every time you come, she has a good sleep."

"Grandma is just like a child. You need to coax her.

"I can't do it. You're the only one who can handle her."

"Wyatt, I have asked for leave for several days from school. I'll take care of grandma. You can take this opportunity to have a holiday."

"That's great. I look forward to seeing you."

After chatting with Wyatt, she turned around and saw Kingston. He was looking at her with meaningful eyes.

She stepped forward and said, "What's wrong?"

"Nothing."

He said indifferently, hiding his emotion in his eyes as he looked down.

The night outside was pitch-black, and Krista felt sleepy.

She yawned. "I'm sleepy. I'll go have a rest. Are you busy tonight?"

"No, I'm not. Goodnight."

She nodded and went to the bathroom.

After taking a bath, she opened the cabinet to look for towels or bathrobes. But it was empty inside.

She was stunned. There was a small note inside.

"The towel is in the wardrobe outside. If you want it, ask your husband to get it."

"Grandma!"

Krista crumpled the piece of paper into a ball. In such a poor health state, Brittany even wasted her effort on such a matter!

Krista's dirty clothes were in the laundry basket. They were so wet that she could no longer wear them.

No matter Krista or Kingston took the bath first, the one had to ask the other one to get their clothes. It was true that the older, the wiser.

Krista had no choice but to open the bathroom door, revealing her head. Her cheeks were flushed red, and her eyes were filled with shyness.

She coughed. "Kingston..." Kingston closed the computer and replied, "What's the matter?"

"The bathrobe is in the cabinet outside. Can you ... take it for me?"

She said embarrassedly.

Kingston was slightly stunned. Without any delay, he immediately got up and went to get the bathrobe.

The door was made of frosted glass, so Kingston could not see clearly what was inside. But Krista was so close to the door that her graceful figure.

She was slender with a soft womanly figure..

He couldn't help but clear his throat and hurriedly looked away.

He handed the clothes over.

Krista hurriedly closed the door, her heart beating wildly.

She quickly got changed, and then came to bed as fast as she could.

After Kingston washed up, he prepared to take out a new quilt and lay it on the floor. However, silk flew everywhere as soon as he took out the quilt.

All the blankets looked intact, but the inside was torn apart.

A piece of paper flew out as well.

"Don't think about sleeping on the bed."

"Grandma has gone too far!"

Krista was angry and wanted to go out to find a new quilt, but she was stopped by Wyatt.

“Wyatt, get me a new quilt.”

“No.”

“Wyatt, are you going to play the fool like Grandma?”

“This is all Brittany wants. Krista, just do as she wishes. You won’t be able to find any blankets here in these few days! And you’ll have to share a cup, a towel, and so on.”

“Wyatt ...”

“It’s useless to beg me.” Wyatt interrupted in time. “It’s getting late. Don’t stay up late. Goodnight.”

“Wyatt, aren’t you afraid that Kingston will kill me in a temper?”

“You are in the old mansion, Mr. Irwin knows the rules so well. He won’t act recklessly.”

– Krista was discouraged. Dropping her head, she returned to the bedroom.

She looked at the silk on the ground and said apologetically, “Tonight, you can’t sleep on the floor. How about us sleeping together? I promise I won’t do anything to you.”

Chapter 102 I’m a Man

“Krista, you’re a woman and I’m a man. Do you think it’s appropriate to say this?”

He frowned unhappily. What did she mean by not doing anything to him?

Wasn’t she worried about him?

He was a man!

“You are Kingston. You know the rules better than anyone else, especially the rules you set yourself. You definitely won’t act recklessly. I can completely trust you. I just don’t know if you will believe me!” She looked at him nervously. If he didn’t believe her, then it would be really hard to deal with it.

Kingston's eyes were gloomy. Was he so rigid in the eyes of others?

"I'm at least a man!"

He frowned and stepped forward.

"A man, so what?"

"Are you unguarded against me, or all men? Am I going to compliment you for being innocent, or should I blame you for being too stupid? Also, do you know me well?"

As he approached, Krista felt danger.

Wasn't trusting him a good thing?

It proved that he was a righteous gentleman, but why was he unhappy?

"Kind of... Or not?"

She stammered.

The man had walked in front of her, and she was forced into a corner. The atmosphere suddenly became strange. Kingston clenched his fists tightly, suppressing the mania in his heart. His heart had always been like stagnant water, which would not be affected by anything. Until that night when a skinny little girl broke into her room, everything got out of control. He gradually lost control of his emotions. He became irritable, maniac, and was unable to calm down.

He didn't know what was wrong with him.

He stared into Krista's eyes. Her eyes ... were really beautiful.

He held her chin with his big hand.

"Do you trust me that much?"

"I do..."

"Why?"

"Because you are Kingston, because you are different from others."

"Then I'm telling you, I'm not special, and I'm just a man."

After he finished speaking, he couldn't help bending over for her lips.

Krista was stunned. She did not even think of pushing him away. She was nervous and shy, and there was even a trace of anticipation.

She breathed quickly and clenched her hands tightly. She couldn't help closing her eyes.

But above her head, nothing happened.

In the depths of Kingston's mind, Sandra's voice rang out.

"Kingston, you won't leave me, will you? You won't leave me and the baby behind, will you?"

He suddenly woke up and stared at the delicate face in front of him, his heart lurching fiercely.

What was he doing? Krista waited for a few seconds, but before she could get the kiss, she opened her eyes. She felt like being thrown into cold water, and even her soul was trembling from the chill.

His eyes ... were so cold and terrifying.

He looked at her without any emotion, as if she was a stranger.

"What, do you think I want to kiss you?"

He said those heartless words.

Her heart lurched.

Yeah, what was she doing just now?

Was she expecting his kiss?

She was crazy!

She came back to her senses and immediately pushed him away with her back to him,

"How, how is that possible!" She began to quibble, but she felt that her words were so weak. She was clearly looking forward to it!

"You believe me, but I don't believe you."

His voice was a little hoarse, "You, sleep in bed, and I'll be sleeping on the armchair."

There were only two armchairs in the room, so it was too difficult to sleep on them.

Her little hands clenched tightly.

He was humiliating her.

He didn't believe her?

She didn't need his trust.

Chapter 103 | Respect Kingston's Decision

"You can have the bed. I've got other place to sleep."

She said, then slammed the door and left.

She went straight to the living room and slept on the sofa all night.

Wyatt woke up early in the morning. Seeing this, he quickly called her up, "Why are you sleeping here? Did Mr. Irwin drive you out?"

Krista slept on the sofa all night, and now she felt pain all over her body, and her neck seemed to have fallen asleep. She was really uncomfortable.'

She woke up and yawned, waving her hand repeatedly, "No, I decided to come here myself. Grandma has her plans. I have my strategies as well."

"Don't tell grandma, I'm afraid she'll get angry. Myatt, keep this between us, okay?"

It was very early now, and the rest of the servants did not get up, so she was not afraid that others would find out.

Myatt was in a dilemma but could not refuse Krista, so he could only nod in agreement.

"Ms. Compton, why don't you understand Ms. Brittany's good intentions?" Myatt said earnestly, "That woman is simply not worthy to be in this family. Madame has repeatedly obstructed her in order to give you and Mr. Irwin a chance. If other women seize this opportunity, they might even have had babies now. Why aren't you willing to do it?"

Hearing this, Krista felt a little embarrassed.

She was indeed carrying a baby...

But she didn't dare to say it!

"Myatt, even if everyone in the world thinks that she is not worthy of be in the Irwin family, but if Kingston thinks that she is, then she is worthy. Even if everyone thinks that Kingston and I are a match, I won't be with Kingston if he doesn't like me."

"Marriage is like buying shoes. Only the person wearing it knows if it fits. No one else has the right to judge. I know that you are all doing it for my good, but I respect Kingston's decision."

"Don't tell me you have no affection for Mr. Irwin?"

Myatt asked. He's not reconciled.

Hearing this, Krista felt a sharp pain.

Of course, she had.

However, she had always carefully buried this feeling in her heart.

In order to make Myatt give up, she summoned up her courage and said ruthlessly, "Myatt, let me tell you the truth, I really don't like Kingston. If I liked him even just for a little bit, I would have countless opportunities to get close to Kingston in the year of marriage, but I didn't do so."

"I already have someone I like. He is a teacher in my school. His family background is inferior to the Irwin family, but he is a very good person. The most important thing is that he is my mentor. He is my major and we have a lot in common."

"Look, Kingston is 11 years older than me. There's such a huge gap between us. He could even be my uncle."

The reason she pulled Lance out was because there was no better candidate more convincing now.

If Krista were to be with an ordinary person, Myatt would definitely feel that there was something wrong in her brain that she would abandon such an outstanding man like Kingston and go find a loser instead

Wyatt looked at Krista's expression and didn't want to be fake, so he could only sigh

"I thought you two were made for each other. Mr. Irwin is dumb with words and he has strict rules. You're lively and cute, and you are honey-mouthed. The two of you complement each other perfectly. I didn't expect that you two are no points destined."

"Who complements him? He doesn't like to laugh. He always has a straight face and always glares at me fiercely. I don't want to be with him. My teacher is a fine man. I will tell him that I like him when I graduate. Myatt, stop pushing me."

"But your grandma..."

Chapter 104 Devalue Him as Nothing

"Don't tell her about that. I'm afraid she would be really upset. I'll confess to her once the three-month period is over. After all, if Kingston and I still have got no results, which fully prove that we're not suitable for each other. She would have no reason to force us to be together, right?"

"And there are only two months left. It will be over soon."

Wyatt sighed, and could do nothing but accept.

Krista laughed with relief when she saw him believe it.

What she did not know was that all the conversation had been heard by someone.

Kingston stood at the staircase. His expression was somber and grave. He held the handrail so tightly that it almost crushed.

He tossed and turned all night, worrying about her. Even though he knew she might be with his grandmother.

So, just after dawn, he woke up and prepared to go downstairs while he heard the conversation.

She was quite right. Even if there was a shred of love, there was an infinite possibility in their marriage year.

She had never been tempted by him and had always in love with Lance.

She also did not like the fact that he was eleven years older than she was.

And that he was too serious, too unsmiling, and too bad-tempered.

She had a crush on someone which had nothing to do with him, but why made him so uncomfortable?

He always thought that it was he who had let Krista down first.

During their marriage, he met Sandra. So, he had always been in debt to her ever since their divorce.

Therefore, he was always bound to take care of her.

But now, she did not deserve any of his guilt and compensation.

During the entire year of their marriage, she had never given him her heart, but ... another man.

Even if they were both wrong, she was the one who made mistake firstly.

Besides, was Lance that much perfect in her heart?

She devalued him to nothing.

He closed his eyes, and when he opened them again, they were passionless.

He faintly looked at the emaciated figure with no emotion.

Krista felt uneasy all over.

She turned around quickly and looked behind her. The stairs were empty, and no one was coming down.

She touched the back of her head, wondering if she had been delusional.

When Brittany woke up and saw that both she and Kingston were wearing black circles, she said, "Well, didn't you sleep well last night?"

Krista puckered her lips. Obviously it was an intentional question. Brittany was also a little disappointed. Nothing had happened that night.

They stayed for another two days. Wyatt arranged her a guest room, so that she could rest alone. Finally, she was free from a stiff neck.

But when Brittany was around, she still had to stay with Kingston.

"Kingston, I heard you like tea very much. Try this one."

After dinner, Brittany rarely had the mood to drink tea with Kingston.

Krista secretly slipped away on the pretext that she did not like tea. This was a splendid opportunity for them to enhance their relationship, so she had better not bother them.

Kingston sipped the tea slowly and tasted it carefully.

Brittany was relieved while he was drinking.

Just drink it!

“Alright, I’m kind of tired. Take the tea and go back to your room.”

Kingston slightly raised his eyebrows; he could not understand what Brittany meant.

However, he did not interfere and helped her back to her room.

Wyatt said, “Do you need me to ask Krista to accompany you?”

“No need. Kingston, you can go back now.”

Kingston nodded and left.

Suddenly Wyatt realized something and said, “Did you do something again?”

Chapter 105 Treat Him to Tea with Purpose

“I thought you would do something. But you were on Krista’s side. You got her a room to sleep alone last night!”

“They don’t have any feelings for each other, so they wouldn’t settle for their marriage.”

“No way. I don’t think so. There is so much chemistry between them. It’s just that they didn’t show it!”

“I see. You treated Kingston to tea with purpose?” Wyatt had figured out what Brittany wanted to do.

Brittany smiled meaningfully. She went to the guest bedroom and locked the door from outside.

No one could come out before tomorrow!

Krista went to the bathroom and took a shower. Brittany went to bed early every night. When Krista finished bathing, Brittany should probably have fallen asleep.

Then Krista would secretly go to the guest bedroom.

Krista didn't talk to Kingston these few days. But things went a little weird.

She was puzzled. After all, she didn't do anything to him.

After taking a shower, Krista came out in her pajamas and saw Kingston drinking glass after glass of water.

Kingston's face was strangely red.

"What's wrong with you?" Krista asked worriedly.

Kingston heard it and looked up at her while panting.

Krista was stunned as she met his eyes.

She could see insatiable desire in his scarlet eyes.

God, what was wrong with Kingston?

"Get out!"

Kingston said coldly and clenched his fists.

Krista realized what was going on. So she immediately ran to the door.

But she failed to open the door no matter how hard she twisted the door handle.

The door was locked.

"Wyatt! Wyatt..."

Krista kept shouting, but there was no response.

Behind Krista, Kingston was tortured by his desire. He felt hot and horny. He tried to stay sane, but desire got ahead of him.

He was turned on and couldn't help walking to Krista.

Krista wanted to hide in the bathroom. But before she could run over, Kingston grabbed her with his strong hand.

The next second, Kingston threw her on the bed. Krista's mind went blank for a moment even though the bed was soft enough.

Before she could figure out what was going on, Kingston had pressed down on her.

He kissed hard on her lips.

There was only one thing in Kingston's mind.

'Get Krista!

Krista struggled and tried to say something.

She put her hands against his chest, trying to push him away. But it didn't help because Kingston was way stronger than her.."

The next moment, Kingston tore her pajamas apart.

Krista was so frightened that her arms closed over her belly.

She was lying on the bed, so it looked that she had a flat stomach. People might think that she gained some weight. Anyway, nobody could tell that she was pregnant.

However, Krista was still very worried, afraid that Kingston would notice it.

But Kingston just kept kissing on her ears and neck...

She had been through this.

It was just like the first time they had sex.

Kingston lost control, like a wild beast. All he wanted to do was have sex with Krista.

"No ... Kingston, calm down!"

Krista shouted anxiously.

She was worried about her baby!

She remembered what had happened last time and was still scared. Kingston treated her as if she was a blowup doll. Krista felt that her bones were almost broken.

Even if she could take it, she couldn't let it happen because she was pregnant.

No!

“Sandra ... Think about Sandra. You only love her!”

Krista tried to remind Kingston of Sandra, but it didn't help. Kingston was fully out of control.

He was taking his clothes off.

Krista was flustered when she heard him taking off his belt.

No ... no!:

Chapter 106 Do You Hate Me?

“Kingston, calm down! I know that you didn't want to do this. Come on. I'm Krista, not Sandra. You can't cheat on her! I don't want to make things difficult for you.”

“Please, please don't touch me ... Don't touch me, don't...”

Krista was like a helpless rabbit in the jungle. Kingston was the falcon that had locked onto her.

It seemed that they would definitely have sex tonight.

“Please, don't...”

Krista fell into deep despair.

Tears fell silently.

“Please, don't touch me ... please... don't...”

Krista cried and begged.

Kingston suddenly stopped.

He looked painful with a complicated feeling towards Krista. He was struggling with his desire and trying to stay sane.

He was drugged, and he didn't want to do it.

At the very least, a part of him recognized the woman in front of him. It was Krista.

If it was someone else, he would hate it and hold his desire back.

But for some reason, the moment Kingston saw Krista, his eyes turned red and he couldn't even think.

Everything looked familiar.

That night, Sandra also cried like this.

But now...

"Do you really hate me?"

Kingston tried to stay sane. He grabbed Krista by her chin and forced her to look at him.

Her eyes and eyelashes were wet with tears.

Her tears were filled with fear and unease.

Her arms didn't close over her chest, but her belly.

"..."

Krista could not answer his question.

"You want Lance instead, to be the one on you now?"

Kingston's voice became hoarser.

"Krista, I've always felt guilty about you, but not any more now. We'll spend the three months together, and I won't ask you anything. Whatever happens to you ... it has nothing to do with me."

"We are not running in the same circles anymore."

After saying that with great difficulty, Kingston struggled to stand up and staggered towards the bathroom.

He filled the bathtub with ice-cold water. It was late autumn, and it was cold at night.

But he just got into the bathtub.

The water was freezing.

It gradually extinguished his desire. In the end, it was as if nothing had happened.

If he was Lance, would Krista resist and cry?

No, she just wanted that.

'Alright,' Kingston thought, 'I should leave now. Otherwise, things would only get more complicated between Krista and me.'

Everything should have come to an end long ago.

Krista was still lying on the bed in shock, naked.

On the ground were torn clothes.

Krista walked to the cloakroom, all miserable. She saw herself in the mirror.

Her eyes were red and tears rolled down her cheeks.

"Honey ... do you think ... I did the right thing?"

"If... if I had sex with him this time, he wouldn't ignore me. Perhaps ... I still have a chance."

"But... I can't do it. I don't want to force him to make a choice. I'm afraid ... I'm afraid that in the end, he'll choose Sandra. I'm even more afraid of losing you. At that time, I'll have nothing left."

"You are the gift he left me."

Krista fell to the ground and curled up.

She was going to have a sleepless night.

Chapter 107 There Is No Way He and I Can Ever Be Together

This was their last night in the old mansion, and Krista had never expected that it would end like this.

Kingston left early in the next morning because of an important videoconference at the company.

Krista stood at the gate of the old mansion. Brittany looked at her wistfully. "You have to go now?" Krista looked at Brittany, who was sad. Krista wanted to blame Brittany for what had happened last night, but she couldn't say anything now.

Brittany only wanted Kingston and her to be tied together forever. Then Krista could live a carefree life, with the Irwin family as her strong protector.

Krista knew it.

Brittany was simply thinking of her!

"Grandma, everything has ended between Kingston and me, even if we never got together for real. He has things to do with his life. So do I. We will never run in the same circles again."

"I know you're thinking of me, but you don't have to. I can take good care of myself! Grandma, don't do anything. It won't help. There is no way we can ever be together."

Krista lost all her nerve after saying the last sentence.

She clenched her hands, and her nails were so sharp that they dug into her palms.

When she said that, her heart ached badly, as if it was broken for real.

Brittany heard it and licked her lips. She wanted to say something, but she couldn't.

"Alright!"

Brittany waved her hand and said heavily, "You have your own life. I'm too old. I won't do anything again."

"Grandma, Sandra is a good girl."

Brittany was stunned.

"I know..."

She replied helplessly.

"Thank you, Grandma!"

Krista thanked Brittany and smiled gently at her.

"Wyatt, it's windy. Take Grandma back to her room."

Krista said softly.

Grandma nodded and turned around, her eyes turning wet.

Wyatt also sighed.

Krista could easily soften others' hearts.

Krista went back to school and the studio started working.

She had classes at school in the morning and stayed in the studio in the afternoon when there were no classes.

She noticed that Kingston seemed to avoid her recently.

When she was resting at home, he stayed in the company.

When she woke up, Kingston had finished his breakfast and went out.

She knew that he still lived with her, but she just couldn't see him around.

Tonight, it started raining.

As winter approached, it was getting colder and colder.

Krista stood by the roadside, waiting for a taxi. The cold wind blew and she trembled.

Her colleagues suggested carpooling. People who lived near each other could take a taxi together.

"Krista, do you come with us? There's a seat for you."

"No, thank you. But I don't live in your neighborhood."

Krista said awkwardly. She was going back to the villa area.

All her colleagues left soon, leaving her behind.

She crossed her arms and continued to wait for a taxi, but she just couldn't get one.

Suddenly, Lance walked from behind and said softly, "I can give you a ride."

"Mr. Hamm? No, I've moved..."

"I know, to the Irwin's Mansion, right?"

"Wait ... how did you know?"

Krista looked at Lance in shock.

Seeing her expression, Lance knew that he was right.

When Krista called him that day, she did not want to tell him who the man was. And Lance chose to believe her.

However, Lance had been lost in thought all day and night, wondering who that man was. Lance was almost driven crazy.

Sometimes, men could be as acute as women.

Lance felt that that man's voice was very familiar. He might have heard it somewhere before.

Then Lance saw the news about Kingston on the Internet. He finally got the ancorci.

Why could Krista get the project

Because she knew Kingston

It was Kingston who answered the

Chapter 108 Choose from the People Around You

"Get in the car. There's nothing to hide now. I won't get close to the mansion. You don't have to worry. It's hard to hail a taxi in this area. It's too cold. Don't catch cold.

Aren't you curious how I found it out?"

The question interested Krista.

She nodded and got into Lance's car.

Across the road, a black Maybach was parked.

Quincy looked at Kingston nervously.

It rained tonight and the temperature dropped sharply. Quincy knew that Krista didn't bring an umbrella, so he took a long detour to get here.

Kingston didn't stop him. He had agreed.

However, he didn't expect to see Krista get into Lance's car when he came here.

Inside the car, the atmosphere was tense.

Quincy drove away.

He sized up the man behind him. Kingston sat expressionless.

His eyes were cold and looming.

"Mr. Hamm, how did you know?" Krista asked curiously.

That phone call wouldn't reveal Kingston's identity.

Lance simply analyzed, and Krista came to a realization.

"Does anyone else know?" she asked carefully.

"Are you afraid that others will know about your relationship with Mr. Irwin?"
Lance asked expectantly. "I didn't tell anyone."

Hearing this, Krista heaved a sigh of relief.

Then she told Lance everything.

"You and Mr. Irwin were married?"

"It was a void marriage. Fine, we did get married," Krista said helplessly.

Lance had mixed feelings. He was shocked, surprised, and sorry.

But soon he calmed himself down.

It was not a big deal that Kingston and Krista were married.

Krista was a good girl. It didn't matter whether she was married or not.

Kingston already had someone he liked. Sooner or later, they would become strangers.

"What do you plan to do after three months?"

"What else can I do? I will leave Kingston, and he won't appear in front of me. We are people from two different worlds."

Krista lowered her head, her long, curled eyelids covering her gloomy expression.

Actually, she felt guilty towards Lance

She used him countless times.

But she didn't dare to tell him, afraid that he would get angry.

"Do you have any new plans for your love life?" Lance asked nervously. He held the steering wheel with both hands tighter.

Human feelings were really strange.

If Lance hadn't overheard those words that day, he wouldn't have noticed Krista's existence.

Once he noticed Krista, he couldn't stop himself from falling in love with her.

"New plans?" Krista murmured.

She was pregnant with a child, so she had no plans.

"I will muddle along first."

Krista just wanted to hide her pregnancy now.

"You can choose from the people around you."

"The people around me?"

Krista was stunned and looked at Lance.

Lance felt her gaze and blushed.

"Forget it. Are you thirsty? There's mineral water under your seat."

Lance quickly changed the subject.

He was waiting.

He was waiting for Krista to say she loved him.

But she might be shy and had never said that.

It didn't matter. She was still young and had a long way to go. When she graduated, Lance would tell her his feelings for her.

It didn't matter who fell in love first.

The most important thing was whether or not the two people who loved each other would be together.

Soon, the car stopped near the villa.

"I have to go back."

Krista got out of the car and waved to Lance. "Be careful on your way home. Send me a message when you get home."

"Alright, you should rest early tonight."

Lance turned the car round and left.

He met Kingston's car halfway.

Their eyes met.

Chapter 109 Leave

Lance felt a chill on his back.

Kingston stared at Lance coldly. He was like a king that looked down at his people.

Blazing anger burnt in his heart.

Lance frowned and stepped on the brakes to calm himself down.

Kingston, like a rumor, was terrible.

Krista must have suffered a lot when she lived under the same roof as him.

Lance was worried and called Krista.

Krista was sitting in the dining room. The servants had got the dinner ready.

She picked up the phone and asked, "What's wrong?"

"Is Mr. Irwin harsh on you? You are just an outsider. Does he deliberately make things difficult for you?"

"No. We seldom talk. He keeps a straight face every day, as if I were his enemy."

"You should evade him afterwards. You know, he is a businessman who knows both illegal and legal means. I'm afraid that he will punish you if you offend him."

Krista was too thin to endure Kingston's torture.

"Did Kingston hit you? Does he show a propensity for violence?"

Lance asked.

"Mr. Hamm, don't worry. Kingston looks fierce and cold. He doesn't like to talk, but he is not bad. He is a gentleman and doesn't argue with me.

But he does have a bad temper. I used to think he was magnanimous, but now he turns out to be so mean.

Forget it, there's still a month and a half left. Then I will leave."

Just then, Krista heard someone cough behind.

Her heart skipped a beat and she immediately turned around. Then she saw Kingston.

Quincy purposely coughed. "Mr. Irwin, I may have caught a cold. I'll go back to my room to rest." After saying that, he glanced at Krista meaningfully and left.

Kingston had heard what Krista said.

"I have something to do. I have to hang up."

Krista hurriedly hung up the phone.

"I'm fierce and cold?"

Kingston narrowed his eyes and looked at Krista unkindly as he strode closer.

"Uh..."

"I'm mean?"

"No..."

"Krista, did you slander me like this in front of Lance?"

"... I also said good things about you..." Krista murmured.

"Looks like you don't have to wait until the end of the three-month period. You can leave now."

Kingston called for the servants in a cold voice and asked them to pack Krista's luggage. It was just a suitcase.

"I think your teacher hasn't gone far yet. It's not too late for you to ask him to pick you up."

"Kingston... I'll talk to grandma."

Krista wanted to say no, but she changed her mind.

Perhaps this was the best solution.

They really couldn't be together any longer, or she would be reluctant to leave him.

She did not want to make things difficult for him. Brittany would not be angry if she talked to her.

"You are not one of the Irwin family. You are not allowed to enter either my house or the old mansion. You should call my grandma Mrs. Irwin instead. You don't need to talk to her. I will tell her myself,"

Kingston said frostily.

His face was a cold blank mask.

His words were harsh.

Krista was rendered speechless.

Kingston was right. She was not a member of the Irwin family. She could stay here just because Brittany liked her.

"I see." Krista said.

She did not drop her head or bend down, but she clenched her fingers tightly.

She even smiled brightly at Kingston because she knew that if she left now, they wouldn't have any connection in the future. Sandra would take her place immediately.

"Kingston, I hope you have a bright future and a happy and peaceful life."

After saying that, she took her suitcase and left without looking back.

She had always been the person who would leave.

Apart from that night she fled back to the motherland in a sorry state.

When facing Kingston, she tried her best to protect her self-esteem.

Seeing her walking away with stubbornness and unyieldingness, Kingston clenched his fists tightly.

She didn't say a word in a gentle way to him. Was she too stubborn to say? for more Daily updates visit :- Or she just wanted to be soft to Lance?

He just watched as she disappeared in the courtyard.

"Come out."

He shouted coldly with an awfully bad mood.

Then Quincy walked out in embarrassment.

"Mr. Irwin, it is already midnight, do you really let Ms. Compton go?"

"Contact Lance and ask him to pick her up." Kingston said. Although he knew that Krista would call Lance.

After all, Lance was her sweetheart.

However, he was still uneasy and asked Quincy to contact Lance.

Quincy nodded and did what Kingston asked him to do.

Although Lance was far away, he immediately drove back when he got Quincy's phone call. Lance kept calling Krista. But he was refused for several times and finally found her phone turned off. As for Krista, she helplessly walked to the nearest bus stop, feeling a little bit confused.

Wind in the late autumn, was really cold.

Right at this moment on the empty road, a van came towards her fast.

Krista didn't pay any attention. She did not expect that the van would stop and two men quickly got off.

They covered her nose and mouth as fast as they could. Krista fell into unconsciousness soon with no time to escape or struggle.

She was brought into the van and drove away.

Lance drove back anxiously, but he didn't see Krista and only found her suitcase and phone at the bus stop.

His heart skipped a beat. What came to him first was that something terrible had happened to her.

He immediately called Quincy.

"You haven't met with Ms. Compton?"

Quincy became nervous.

Hearing this, Kingston took his phone.

"What do you mean?" Kingston asked on the phone.

"She has refused to answer my phone calls all the time. I could only go back the same way to find her, but what I find at the bus stop is only her suitcase!"..

"Didn't she call you?" That's what he wanted to know.

"No, Mr. Irwin. Why did she leave the villa in the middle of the night? for more Daily updates visit :- It's too dangerous..."

Kingston could no longer hear what Lance was saying.

"Quincy, go find her!"

"Yes, Mr. Irwin!"

They checked the surveillance video and quickly figured out Krista was kidnapped. The two men were wearing masks and hats, so their faces were difficult to be recognized. The license plate of the van was also covered.

The car didn't take the main road. Instead, it was getting increasingly remote and moving forwards on dirt roads with no surveillance cameras.

The car was heading for the suburbs. However, there were several highways in that area, Quincy could only search them one by one.

Krista was locked in a truck and darkness surrounded her. She did not know how long she had been unconscious and when it was now.

She could hear other women's crying and children's voice.

She realized that something was wrong.

It seemed that she had been abducted.
