

Found Pregnant After Divorce Novel

Chapter 385

1/4

Chapter 385

When Kingston entered, he subconsciously lightened his footsteps and soon saw Krista asleep on the sofa.

The TV was loud, but it still didn't wake Krista up.

Kingston stepped forward with soft eyes.

He caressed Krista's head and felt sorry for her waiting for him for a long time.

Krista suddenly woke up.

She narrowed her eyes and was like a cute cat.

"You're back."

Her voice was soft and sweet, not as cold as usual.

"Why don't you go to sleep?"

"I didn't notice the time when I watched TV. I'll go to bed immediately."

Seeing that Kingston had returned, Krista felt much more at ease.

She thought that Kingston was too tired, so she wanted to wait for him to come home.

Kingston knew that Krista did not speak her mind, but he pretended not to know.

"Go to sleep."

13:33

Kingston turned off the TV and the living room suddenly quieted down.

Krista nodded. When she was about to get off the sofa, her feet were numb after crossing her legs for a long time.

Then she fell in Kingston's direction.

Kingston quickly hugged her.

Krista fell into his arms.

Kingston smiled when she could not see him.

Krista was embarrassed and wanted to get up. But her hair was hooked on Kingston's buttons and she could not undo it.

"It hurts... Help me undo it."

"Do you want to hug me?" Kingston raised his eyebrows.

"I just have numbness in my feet! Help me undo it."

Krista blushed and said hastily.

Kingston was afraid that Krista's scalp would hurt, so he helped her untie her hair.

She did not say a word and hurriedly left.

Kingston just smiled and felt that all the exhaustion disappeared.

When Krista returned to her room, she found that her heart seemed to beat fast from the moment she fell into Kingston's arms.

She even began to think about why she was so sleepy and didn't sleep, but was waiting for Kingston to go home.

'Because I think he's too tired during the weekend?

Or because I'm worried about him?'

Krista couldn't understand her own thoughts. She thought that as if something had changed, but it seemed that nothing had changed.

She suddenly thought of Lance and became sober.

Then she took a long breath.

'I had promised that I would wait for Lance for half a year. I can't have an affair with Kingston.

Since I know he likes me, I should keep a distance from him.

I should always remind myself that Kingston and I are people from two different worlds. I will return to Phelan City and be with Lance!'

At the thought of this, Krista became firm.

The next day, Kingston woke up early. After morning exercise and washing up, he found that someone had eaten breakfast.

He frowned slightly. "Where's Krista?"

"When you were washing up, Ms. Compton had breakfast and went out."

When Kingston heard this, he wore a long face but he did not ask anything. He guessed that Krista left in such a hurry because of her work.

But soon, he found that he was wrong.

'Krista deliberately avoids me.

She eats in the canteen at noon and comes back at a different time from me at night. In the morning, she either leaves while I'm doing morning exercise or waits for me to leave before going downstairs.'

Kingston was angry and wanted to ask her why she did it.

'Am I a monster or am I terrible? Why is she avoiding me?'

Send Gift

Comments