

Feel the Way You Feel, My Love

Chapter 1195

Chapter 1195 First Night Of Honeymoon

He leaned in closer to give her a closer view of his face, and Natalie rolled her eyes in response.

Instead of pushing him away, she wrapped her arms around his neck and gave him a kiss on the lips.

Shane froze in surprise for a moment but was quick to return the favor and slid his tongue into her mouth as he kissed her back aggressively.

The flight attendant that came over to serve up some snacks blushed when she saw their passionate act and quickly backed out of there.

Shane had a satisfied look in his eyes when he noticed her response.

She knows not to interrupt this moment we're having. The airline sure knows how to pick its flight attendants!

Natalie was woken up by Shane after what seemed like forever.

"What is it?" she asked sleepily with her eyes half-open.

"We're here," Shane reminded her gently while tidying her hair.

Despite the aching pain in her waist, Natalie forced herself to sit up straight in his arms. "We are?"

"Yup." Shane nodded.

As they were on a private jet, they weren't required to get off the plane immediately after landing like passengers on public airlines were.

Although they could stay in the jet for as long as they liked, it wasn't as comfortable as a luxurious hotel room, which was the reason Shane had woken Natalie up.

Had he not insisted on doing it, I wouldn't have fallen asleep and missed out on the view along the way!

Natalie massaged her neck and shot him an angry glare at the thought of that.

Shane understood what that look in her eyes meant and held her hand as he said, "Come on, let's get off the plane. They need to take it into the hangar for maintenance soon."

"Okay." Natalie nodded and stepped out of the cabin door with him.

Just like that, the two of them got out of the plane with the crew members seeing them off.

As per Silas' arrangements, the two then got into the car of an airport staff and headed toward a hotel nearby.

It was already nighttime in the country, and the city lights looked amazing.

Natalie leaned against the car window and admired the view while Shane spoke to Silas on the phone. The company seemed to be facing some kind of problem, but it probably wasn't a big one as Shane didn't seem too concerned.

They soon arrived at the hotel, and the driver handed Shane a key card to a presidential suite before parking the car in the hotel parking lot.

Shane then dragged the suitcase with one hand while holding Natalie's with the other as he made his way toward the hotel entrance.

The first thing that caught Natalie's eye upon entering the presidential suite was the huge glass wall which gave her an unobstructed view of the ocean.

She then brushed Shane's hand off, ran up to the glass wall, and glanced at the sea with excitement in her eyes.

The five-star hotel was built near the beach and gave its guests a clear view of the beach and sea.

Natalie felt tempted to change into her swimsuit and play at the beach when she saw a lot of people there but quickly dismissed that thought as it was really late at the time.

Shane then walked up to her and hugged her from behind as he rested his chin on her shoulder. "Is the view so beautiful that you'd leave your husband behind?"

"Of course it is! I've always wanted to play at the beach but never had the chance to. There's no way I wouldn't be excited now that I have the opportunity to!" Natalie replied without even looking back at him.

Shane felt a little jealous when he saw that and reached a hand into her shirt while nibbling on her earlobe.

The sudden stimulus snapped Natalie out of it, and she quickly turned around to face him as she said, "Hey, don't do that! Those people outside will see us!"

"They won't." Shane released her earlobe and slowly kissed his way down her neck as he continued in a deep voice, "This window is made with one-way glass, so people on the outside won't be able to see us."

Natalie breathed a sigh of relief upon hearing that, but she still awkwardly struggled as she protested, "Even so, I still don't feel comfortable with this. I just can't shake this feeling that they can see us somehow."

Feel the Way You Feel, My Love

Chapter 1196

Chapter 1196 Cunning Shane

Shane let go of her neck and looked up at her. "I know, but doesn't that make it a lot more exciting?"

Natalie burned bright red when she saw the burning lust in his eyes.

This guy is seriously planning on doing it here...

Shane knew Natalie understood his intentions when he saw her eyes go wide. With a soft chuckle, he spun her around and kissed her aggressively on the lips before she could protest any further.

The two of them then continued to make love passionately against the glass wall.

Fearing that people outside would see them, Natalie was still a little hesitant about it at first.

However, she soon succumbed to the heavenly pleasures and cast her worries aside as she enjoyed the sensation to the fullest.

When they were done having sex, Natalie buried herself under the cover in shame.

Oh my god! I can't believe we had sex in front of so many people! They might not be able to see us, but that doesn't make it any less embarrassing! But I have to admit that it was a little exciting...

Shane smirked when he came out of the shower and saw Natalie all curled up like a little hedgehog. "What's the matter?" he asked deliberately.

Natalie rolled her eyes at him in response.

He's asking me that after everything he just did? How shameless can this guy get?

She then pulled the cover down and pointed at her collarbone as she said angrily, "Look at all these bite marks you've left! How am I going to play at the beach tomorrow?"

"Don't play at the beach, then," Shane said indifferently as he sat down by the bed and wiped his hair dry.

Natalie bit down on her lip. "No way! I came here to play at the beach!"

"What's so fun about it? The sea is so filthy with everyone stepping in it, and the air is stinky with all those guys at the beach anyway!" Shane said casually.

I bet Shane left these marks all over my body, so I can't wear the bathing suit tomorrow! He just doesn't want me being seen by those guys at the beach! What a cunning man he is!

The corners of Natalie's lips twitched when she realized what he was playing at, and she simply stared at him speechlessly in disbelief.

A mischievous glint appeared in Shane's eyes when he realized what she was thinking, but he pretended to not know it and innocently asked, "What's wrong? Why are you looking at me like that?"

Natalie rolled her eyes at him again and snuggled back under the cover.

Shane smiled faintly at the sight of her sulking and went off to blow his hair dry.

Natalie didn't know whether to laugh or cry as she stared at him from behind.

I know he's the easily jealous type, but I didn't expect him to get so jealous that he wouldn't even let me wear a swimsuit. Now I see why he was okay with the other three countries I picked but not this one. He wanted me to pick another one, and he even frowned in displeasure when I refused to. It turns out he only doesn't like me playing at the beach.

As Natalie was unable to put on a swimsuit due to the marks on her body, she could only sit by the window and watch the guests play happily on the beach.

Shane stayed indoors as well and was reading a book on the sofa.

He pursed his lips when he glanced at Natalie and saw her staring blankly at the beach.

Was I wrong to stop her from going to the beach because I didn't want other guys staring at her? It really hurts to see her all disappointed like this. Maybe I really am in the wrong here.

With that in mind, Shane put his book down and walked up to her.

"I'm sorry, Honey," he said while leaning over to wrap his arms around her neck.

Natalie turned around and looked at him in confusion. "What are you apologizing for?"

Shane lowered his gaze and said apologetically, "For ruining your plans to play at the beach."

"It's all right! I was indeed unhappy at first, but I'm fine now! I'll just forget about playing at the beach!" Natalie replied with a chuckle.