

Wife 21

Chapter 21

For a moment there, Bonnie didn't know what to say.

It took a while before she replied, "Perhaps it's fate that we meet today, young stranger. I am from the older generation. My parents and the matchmaker actually arranged my marriage for me. As such, my husband and I got married after only meeting once.

"After we got married, we spent time together and eventually fell in love. Our love lasted for decades. We have so many wonderful children and grandchildren together. My husband had always been sweet to me and had never hurt me.

"You and your husband got married on a whim. That is rather similar to the arranged marriages common in my generation. I think you should try spending time with your husband and see if the two of you will fall in love. Don't rush into getting a divorce.

"As the old saying goes, we inherit our karmas and destinies from our previous life. This marriage might be a reward you both earned in your previous lifetimes.

Clara smiled and thanked Bonnie. The former said, "Thank you for your advice. Okay, I've decided. Unless he asks for it, I won't talk about getting a divorce anymore."

Clara said nothing about whether she'd try to get together with Yohan.

Bonnie was a sharp woman. She could tell that Clara had no intention of trying to be with Yohan.

It was as Clara had mentioned earlier. If Yohan continued refusing to get a divorce, then the two of them would keep things as they were. Neither would get involved with the other's life, and their marriage would, be hidden.

Bonnie spent a lot of effort to urge Yohan to get married. However, she didn't do that just to get him to have that legal status for a year. What she wanted was for Yohan to be happy. More than that, she wanted to have great-grandkids. WwW.nOveLwOrt@cOm

Bonnie's first impression of Clara was pretty great. The former felt as though the latter would bring luck. After talking to Clara, Bonnie also found Clara to be a graceful, kind, and Innocent woman, Bonnie thought the bit about Clara being an orphan was a bummer, though.

The elderly lady also guessed that Yohan's mother, Jennifer Tunt, wouldn't like that. However, Bonnie found comfort in the fact that Yohan and Clara were already legally married. That meant it didn't matter whether Jennifer was okay with it. The fact they were married was already set in stone.

However, Bonnie believed that Clara would still need to spend some time dealing with Jennifer.

With Jennifer in mind, Bonnie decided to help Yohan keep his marriage a secret. Bonnie would wait until the two youngsters fell in love before thinking about what to do. She concluded that she wouldn't be able to do anything if the two of them still weren't in love after a year, anyway.

Yohan never got into a relationship or thought about getting married. His parents' terrible marriage must have had some effect on that.

If Bonnie hadn't been nagging relentlessly, it was entirely possible that Yohan would stay single for the rest of his life.

I pray that you and your husband will have a long and loving life together, young stranger," said Bonnie lovingly and sweetly.

"Thank you," replied Clara, who was still slightly upset earlier, cheered up after talking to Bonnie.

Given Clara's style, it was likely she would let her marriage with Yohan develop.

The honey lemon water that Clara ordered was served.

Bonnie grinned as she watched Clara sipped the drink,

When Clara noticed it was getting late, she got up to pay the bills. After that, she turned to Bonnie and said, "I have a previous appointment, ma'am, so I have to leave now. Thank you for spending time with me today."

Clara made her way over to help Bonnie out of her chair. The latter was okay with that and let the former hold her arm as they exited the café..

"You should go work, young stranger.

Clara helped Bonnie to the side of the car. The driver hurried out of the car and took over for Clara after that.

"Bye."

Clara waved at Bonnie before making her way to her car. After Clara got into the car, she rolled down her window and bid Bonnie goodbye again. Only then did she drive away, with Bonnie grinning at her the entire time.

After Bonnie watched Clara leave, she got into the car by herself without the driver's help. She ordered, To the company."

When it came to Clara, there was nothing Bonnie could do to sway her. That was especially true since Clara didn't even know that Bonnie was Yohan's grandmother.

However, there was something Bonnie could do to affect Yohan.

Yohan didn't know that his grandmother would grace his office that day. He had just finished discussing corporate matters with Justin and Chuck when the phone on his desk rang. wWw.nOvelwOrtM.cOm

Yohan put the call on speaker.

His secretary, Adam Cooper's voice filled the entire office. "Mrs. Morris Senior is here, Mr. Morris." Yohan was surprised to hear that his grandmother was there.
