

Wife 27

Chapter 27

Chuck quickly checked the screen on his phone and confirmed that he was, indeed, talking to Yohan.

When he put his phone back to the side of his ear, he asked, “Yohan, if you’re married, why would Mrs. Morris Senior keep nagging you about it? Also, when did you get married? Do you even have a girlfriend? Who did you marry?

“I’ve known you since we were kids, and we are neighbors. Yet, I never met your girlfriend.”

Chuck wondered if Yohan was lying.

Yohan remained silent for a moment before he answered, “Yesterday, Grandma was being especially naggy, and I got annoyed. In a fit of frustration, I brought all of my papers with me and went to City Hall. I waited at the entrance to see if the deities above would send someone for me to marry.

“In the end, I legally married a stranger I met there.” www.Nov©(l)WbR®.co®

“You mean you got married on a whim?”

Chuck was so shocked that he hung up the call immediately.

Chuck barged into Yohan’s office in less than three minutes. He closed the door and then smiled as he made his way to the seat in front of Yohan’s desk.

Chuck was eager to gossip and asked, “Yohan, tell me how everything went down. The woman who got you to marry her on a whim must be gorgeous, huh?” ©wW.N©(v)E(l)©ôrm.©ôM

He paused momentarily before saying, “You got married even though you’re not in love. Even if you were upset with Mrs. Morris Senior, you shouldn’t have made light of something like this. Marriage is a huge deal, and you’ll have to deal with the issue for the rest of your life.” Ww.NôV©(l)WbRm.COm

Yohan never shared anything in detail. He simply said, “Nowadays, there are tons of people who get divorced. Signing the legal papers will give me some peace and prevent Grandma from nagging me every day. I’ll be able to work without worrying about anything. It’s worth it when you think about it.”

Chuck couldn’t speak for a moment there. He eventually said, “That proves how relentless Mrs. Morris Senior is. She pushed you so far that you married a stranger on a whim.”

“Yohan, didn’t you say your grandma will live at my place for a while? Can I turn her down? I worry she’d nag me every day. As you know, my grandma has spoken with your grandma and asked her to help me keep an eye out for any eligible bachelorette. Even my parents are on board with that.

“Your grandmother has everyone in my family united against me. I cannot fight her. Seriously, why do the older generation enjoy nagging us into getting married?” said Chuck.

Yohan’s parents never pressured him to get married because their marriage was not a happy one. Since they couldn’t even get things together themselves, they couldn’t urge their son to get married.

That was why Bonnie nagged Yohan every day. She worried that his parents’ unhappy marriage would make him stay single for the rest of his life.

“You can tell my grandma you don’t want her to stay at your place.”

Chuck swallowed hard and said, “I am too cowardly to do that. Besides, even if I tell her the truth, she would twist the meaning of my words. Ah, forget about it. I will go on a business trip when Mrs. Morris Senior lives at my place.

“Quick! Check to see if there’s any corporate matters that need me to travel.”

Yohan rolled his eyes at Chuck. He said in a hostile tone, “If you want to go on a business trip, plan it on your own.” Yohan checked his watch before he spoke to Chuck again. “You’re too distracted to work now anyway, so let’s go. We’ll have a meal together.”

As Chuck got up, he said, “Wow, today must be Opposite Day. The workaholic is clocking off ten minutes early. How very rare indeed.”

Yohan wasn’t always the last to leave the company, but he definitely never clocked off early. His time was money, and it was precious.

No one but Bonnie would have the guts to take up his time. If anyone else wasted his time, they would have to endure his wrath.

Chuck and Yohan were childhood friends, but even the former didn’t dare to mess with the latter.

Yohan didn’t respond to that.

The truth was that he was simply in a bad mood. He could clock off in about ten minutes, but for the first time in his life, he didn’t feel like working. That was why he thought he might as well eat. He’d return to the office after his meal and work harder later.

The mere thought of living under the same roof with a stranger frustrated Yohan.

At first, he thought signing the papers and getting married would dissuade his grandmother from badgering him again. He never imagined that Bonnie would only let him off the hook if he lived with Clara. Yohan eventually accepted the idea of living together with Clara. He thought that didn’t mean he’d have to have a kid, anyway.

Yohan refused to have a kid before he was mentally prepared to be a father.

He decided that he would not sleep with his wife.

No sex meant no baby.

It didn’t matter how naggy Bonnie was. She still couldn’t do anything about it if he refused to sleep with his wife.

About ten minutes later, something happened in Sunville Hotel. www.©ovéWórm.CoM
