

Wife 51

Chapter 51

Ruby kept cursing Bailey incessantly

Clara, however, was fixated on the photo of the elderly man on the wall. She noticed that the old man in the picture appeared to be shedding tears.

She quietly nudged Mark. When he looked at her, she whispered, “Mr. Mcleod’s photo is shedding tears. Can you see it, Mr. Fowler?”

Mark was startled. A crying photo typically indicated a ghost’s presence. He quickly glanced at Noel’s photo but didn’t see any tears.

“I can’t see it. Is his spirit in the room?” Mark asked.

“Yes, but he hasn’t appeared. He’s just crying. I can’t tell if it’s because he’s heartbroken over Ms. Anderson’s situation or for some other reason.

Ruby, in the midst of her rant, turned to see Clara and Mark talking. She hadn’t heard Clara clearly so she smiled and asked, “What did you say, Ms. Fowler?”

Yet Clara responded with a question, “Ms. Anderson, how was your relationship with Mr. Mcleod? Did he treat you well when he was alive?

“Noel? He was okay with me. Not great, but not bad either. Just okay. But Allen and Bailey were very nice to him. It was only after he passed that they started treating me poorly.

“Mr. Fowler, do you think Noel could be causing these issues?” Ruby suddenly asked.

If Noel was causing problems, she thought she might need to move his photo out of her room.

Mark answered, “When I did the reading for you, I didn’t detect any evil. spirits around you. I don’t think it’s related to your husband.”

Only then did Ruby heave a sigh of relief. www.novélWorm.CD®

She trusted Mark’s reputation as a renowned exorcist. If he said there. were no evil spirits haunting her, she believed him.

Ruby then led Mark and Clara to other parts of the house.

She had excellent eyesight and was sure she saw the elderly man in the picture crying. As they closed the bedroom door, she thought she heard a sigh.

Noel was definitely in Ruby’s room, though he hadn’t shown himself. But why was he crying? And why the sigh?

After touring the house, they returned to the living room. Liam offered them some water. Ŵ\(w\)w.NoVeLworm.©O\(m\)

Mark and Clara took a small sip of the water out of politeness before. setting their cups down.

“Mr. Fowler, is there any issue with the geomancy of Ruby’s house?” Liam asked.

Mark replied, “With my expertise, I didn’t find any major issues. There are some minor ones, but that’s common. Every house has some small issues. None are perfect.”

Even the palaces of kings had their flaws.

“Could these minor issues be causing Allen’s disrespect?”
