

Wife 82

Chapter 82

Considering Yohan's status, Arthur was a bit concerned that Clara's background might not match Yohan's.

“Regardless of her background, if Yohan agreed to the marriage, he must know about her family. She surely comes from a respectable family.

“Besides, judging by Clara's demeanor, her background can't be too poor. Don't worry about it, Mr. Gardner. Yohan is the kind of person who takes relationships very seriously once he commits to marriage. He will treat his wife well. We just need to observe them.” www.®V£ℓwó©m.co(®)

Yohan had witnessed marital problems between his own parents, which deeply affected him. He once told Chuck that he would ensure his wife was never unhappy or distressed if he ever married. www.no(v)elwo℞m.com

He said he would do everything to make his wife's life carefree and joyful. Unlike his parents, he will be devoted to his family and marriage as long as he is married.

“Well, let's see how it goes. I genuinely hope that Mr. Morris and Mrs. Morris will remain loving for their entire lives.”

Noticing that Yohan still treated Clara like a stranger, Arthur wondered if they might eventually divorce. But he kept his concerns to himself.

Everyone wished for Yohan's happiness. ww(®)w.nOv©Lw©℞m.com

Duncan had an affair when he was young. Although it was all in the past now, the presence of his illegitimate son constantly reminded Jennifer of what happened back then, and it irked her.

“Of course, I hope so, too! We all wish Yohan happiness, that he finds true love, and that he believes in marriage.”

After finishing the coffee Clara had made, Mandy set down her cup. and added, “The coffee Clara made was excellent. Mr. Gardner, I need to get back to my clinic. I'll leave now and chat with you more. another time.”

“I'll see you out, Ms. Smith,” Arthur offered and personally escorted Mandy.

As Mandy drove out, she encountered Chuck. She didn't stop but honked her horn as a greeting and gave him a smile before driving off.

Chuck followed her car at a leisurely pace.

Hillhaven Garden was just a 15-minute drive from Morris Corporation. However, due to some traffic, it took Chuck 20 minutes to arrive at the office building.

As soon as he walked into the lobby, the receptionist said, “Mr. Potter, Mr. Morris asked us to let you know that you can go straight up to see him.”

Chuck responded with a hum.

Chuck and Yohan played very different roles in the company. One was approachable, while the other was intimidating.

Yohan was stern and authoritative. So, everyone respected and feared him. Meanwhile, Chuck was the go-to person for anyone with grievances. He would speak to Yohan on their behalf.

Outsiders often claimed that Chuck was more likable than Yohan and suggested that Yohan should be wary of him. However, this was a misconception or a tactic used by rivals to create discord. between the two.

Despite Yohan's cold demeanor, he was fair and not harsh with his employees. He simply looked indifferent. Hence, people tended to communicate with Yohan through Chuck.

Chuck used his ID card to access the executive elevator, which took him straight to the top floor.

In the CEO's office, Yohan was drinking coffee.

Clara had brought him a cup earlier, but he had yet to try it.

Given that Mandy found it acceptable, he presumed it should be fine. (®)www.ℵo(v)èlWO(r)m.c©(®)
